H1N1 Vaccination Clinics Slated To Curb "Third Wave"

This week, Maryland's local health departments are continuing to hold clinics or schedule appointments for free H1N1 flu vaccinations as part of Maryland's observation of National Influenza Vaccination Week (Jan. 10–16), according to the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH).

The observance is part of continuing efforts to prevent a "third wave" of more intense flu activity as Maryland enters what is traditionally the peak flu season.

"Vaccine remains the best way to protect yourself and your family against a third wave of H1N1 (swine) flu," said John M. Colmers, DHMH secretary. "Maryland now has a plentiful supply of the vaccine so everyone who wants it can get it for free at local health departments or for a modest fee at local pharmacies. The more Marylanders who get vaccinated, the better chance we have of avoiding the third and fourth wave of flu activity that history tells us is likely."

Maryland will report two additional H1N1 flu related deaths to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. The latest report involves two adults, both from the Baltimore metro region. Personal details about these cases, including age, gender, and specific jurisdiction of residence, will not be released to protect the privacy of the residents and their families.

"These flu-related deaths at a time when overall flu activity has decreased simply highlights the serious nature of this disease and the need for everyone who is able to get vaccinated," said Frances Phillips, DHMH deputy secretary for Public Health Services. "This vaccine is now available to everyone in Maryland, but we continue to emphasize vaccination for anyone in the five vulnerable target populations who remain at higher risk of complications from flu."

The Garrett County Health Department continues to hold clinics and schedule appointments for H1N1 vaccinations for all persons wishing to reduce their risk of H1N1 influenza.

Both H1N1 and seasonal flu vaccine will be available

HEY! THAT'S MY DADDY! Friendsville Elementary kindergarten student Taylor Uphold got a visit that she wasn't expecting during class on Tuesday. Her father, Sgt. Phillip Uphold, has been stationed in Iraq with the U.S. Army for the last six months, and was scheduled to visit home soon. His mother, Libby Anderson, began making arrangements with Friendsville Elementary principal Janet Gregory, and as soon as the dates were set, plans were finalized to surprise Taylor. She is pictured in the center of the above left picture as she realizes that the "special visitor" to her classroom is actually her father. (In the photo with her, on either side, are classmates Cheyanne Sines and Tabitha Carr.) Once the realization sank in, Taylor began to wave at him, but remained seated until she was told that she could get up and go see him. She then ran into his arms for a long overdue hug. Sgt. Uphold visited with Taylor's classmates and answered their questions. He grew up in Garrett County and attended Accident Elementary School and Northern Middle School before graduating from Northern High School. He has been in the Army for six years. After a two-week visit home, he will return to Iraq for another six months. See an additional photo on page A-16.

Maryland Public Schools Once Again Rank Best In The Nation

The Maryland public school system remains firmly at the head of the class, according to an independent national report being released today.

Education Week, the nation's leading education newspaper, looked at data in six critical categories over the past two years, and once again placed Maryland's state education system at the very top of national rankings.

Maryland placed at the top of the list in Education Week's annual "Quality Counts" tally, with the nation's only B+ average. New York and Massachusetts followed closely with B grades. The majority of states received grades of C or less, according to the report.

"We have chosen as a people to invest in our public schools – in the future of our State – even when times are tough," said Maryland Governor Martin O'Malley. "Today, Education Week, for the second straight year, has certified that Maryland has built the number-one public school system in America. Even during these difficult economic times, we've continued to fully fund efforts to build new, state-of-the-art classrooms, integrate curriculum across all grade levels, and hire and retain the nation's best educators. Now, for yet another year, Education Week has affirmed the importance of protecting these shared priorities."

Maryland's 2010 ranking is based on state education policies and student performance that reflect nearly two decades of work on a preK-12 curriculum; state accountability and standards; teacher effectiveness; and work on school readiness, high school reform, and preparation for college and the workplace.

"Our work did not end with last year's ranking, and it doesn't end today. Our commitment to our schools and the students and families we serve is undiminished," said State Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick. "The 'Quality Counts' report gives us one significant yardstick by which we can measure our success. We won't rest until we know that all of our students are getting the education they deserve."

Today's announcement by Education Week continues Maryland's long history of success in the annual review. Maryland has consistently worked to strengthen policies and improve student achievement, resulting in a ranking that inched

427th Maryland General Assembly Now Open; Facing $2 Billion Deficit

by Daniel Leaderman
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The Maryland General Assembly kicked off its 427th legislative session Wednesday, a term likely to be dominated by the state's nearly $2 billion budget deficit, as well as legislative efforts to protect citizens from sex offenders.

Lawmakers just need to agree on how to balance the budget, especially with so many reluctant to increase taxes in an election year. In the last year the Board of Public Works has cut more than $1 billion from the operating budget.

"We're facing our California moment, as are many other states," said Delegate Luiz R. S. Simmons, D-Montgomery. The legislature will have to "make some very painful choices ... we should be very careful about imposing any new taxes."

Some lawmakers and advocates are calling for a dime-a-drink tax that would help fund public health initiatives. But legislative leaders including Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, and House Speaker Michael Busch, D-Anne Arundel, are opposed to the idea.

Delegate Paul S. Stull, R-Frederick, said new taxes this year would be political suicide.

"There's too many people out of work, too many foreclosures have taken place ... I don't think you can tax the working man to work your way out of debt," Stull said.

The solution, Stull said, is to create jobs and to "take a hard look at where we might be able to make cuts that hurt the fewest number of people ... that's going to be very difficult."

Delegate Roger Manno, D-Montgomery, said he was aware that tax increases would not be a popular topic in the legislature this session, but didn't see more budget cuts as a viable solution.

"We've cut all the fat off of the bone. More than that, we're cutting into bone," he said.

"We weren't elected to do the right thing only in non-election years," Manno said. "If we wait until 2011, it will get worse."

The December murder of 11-year-old Sarah Haley Foxwell on the Eastern Shore is also likely to be a key issue this session. Thomas J. Leggs Jr., registered as a sex offender in both Maryland and Delaware, was charged Monday with kidnapping Foxwell.

"As the father of an 11-year-old-girl, it enraged me," Busch said, in his address to the House. "There's got to be better communication between the states when these predators are out on the streets."

Delegate Andrew A. Serafini, D-Washington, said Foxwell's death will affect many issues this session.

Burns Dinner Set For January 23 At Will O' Wisp

Organizers of the annual Highland Festival at McHenry will hold their annual Robert Burns Dinner on Saturday, Jan. 23, at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

Burns was a famous Scottish poet and songwriter.

"In January, along with Scots around the world, we in Garrett County celebrate the anniversary of Robert Burns' birth in true style, with whisky tasting, haggis, shepherd's pie, shortbread, bagpipes, and addresses to the lads and lassies," said an event spokesperson.

The dinner celebration will include a performance by well-known Scottish fiddler Bonnie Rideout.

Tickets, which cost $45 each, are available via the Highland Festival web site (www.highlandfest.info), at Gregg's Pharmacy in Oakland, and at the Garrett County Visitors Center in McHenry.

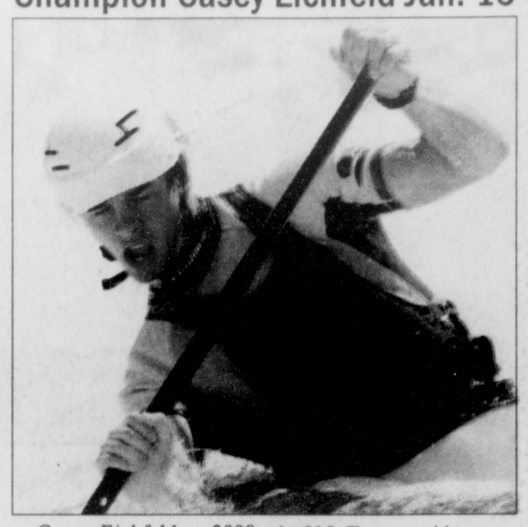
ASCI To Host Olympian, National Champion Casey Eichfeld Jan. 16



Casey Eichfeld, a 2008 Olympian and National Champion on the U.S. Whitewater Slalom Team, will be telling Olympic stories and signing autographs at ASCI's "Little Otter Discovery Room" on Saturday, Jan. 16, from 2 to 4 p.m. The Adventure Sports Center's new mascot, "Asci the Otter" will also be present. Kids are invited to meet Eichfeld, and to play in the Little Otter room for free.

Eichfeld is just finishing a winter training camp at Lake Placid in New York, and will be working part time at the Adventure Sports Center International on weekends during the winter. He also works as a raft guide and canoe instructor for ASCI during the summer.

Eichfeld grew up Drums, Pa., and has traveled the world racing in whitewater canoes. He began slalom racing at age 5, and by the age of 8, he was on the National Slalom Cadet Team as the youngest competitor ever at a U.S. Whitewater Slalom National Championship.

As a teenager, Eichfeld was competing in Europe as a National Junior Team member, and in the June 2000 issue of Paddler magazine was recognized as one of the "Paddlers of the Next Century." Later that year, he was featured in the Sports Illustrated for Kids Olympic issue as a future "Olympic Hotshot."

By 2007, Eichfeld had become a stalwart member of the U.S. Junior and Senior National Teams, racing in the double canoe with Ricky Powell. He also continued to race in the single canoe, and won gold in the 2007 Youth Olympic Festival at the Penrith Olympic Whitewater Stadium in Australia.

Eichfeld and Powell made the 2008 U.S. Olympic Team in C-2, the youngest American whitewater team ever at the games. They finished in a respectable 11th place at the Beijing Olympics, and Eichfeld has since gone on to make the U.S. Team in the single canoe (C-1). He trains full time, and travels between Charlotte, N.C. (home of the U.S. National Whitewater Center and his coach Rafal Smolen), Washington, D.C. (another training center for the U.S. Team, and home to the head coach Silvan Poberaj), and Deep Creek Lake for training camps.

Eichfeld will be signing autographs, telling stories, and entertaining questions about the Olympics. Light refreshments will be provided.

For more information, persons may call ASCI at 301-387-3250 or e-mail at asci@adventuresports-center.com.

Three Wisp Ski Resort Workers Sustain Injuries

Three Wisp Resort employees were recently injured in two separate incidents at the ski slopes. Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad (McHenry) responded to both accidents.

"Out of privacy and respect for its employees, Wisp Resort is not releasing the names of the employees, and wishes all of them a safe and speedy recovery," said Wisp marketing director Lori Epp.

The first incident occurred on Dec. 16 at approximately 3:30 p.m. An employee of the Mountain Operations Department was injured while performing maintenance on a snow- grooming machine in a maintenance facility, according to Epp.

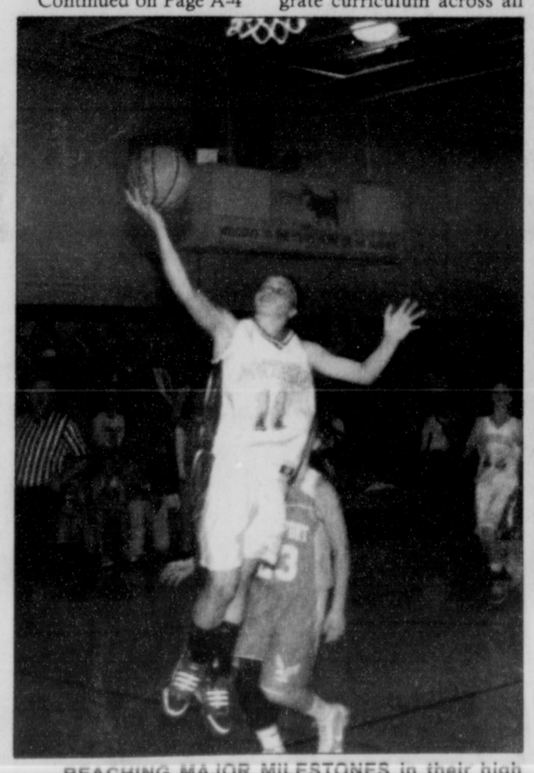
The employee's injuries were not life threatening, and he is currently recouping from the incident, Epp said.

The second accident occurred Thursday, Jan. 7, at approximately 10 p.m. Two Wisp employees from the Snowmaking Team of the Mountain Operations Department were injured on the job, Epp said.

One patient's injuries were "minor," and the other's were "significant," according to the Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Management.

"One employee was treated that night, and the other is recovering in Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown, W.Va.," Epp said.

A departmental safety meeting was conducted the evening prior to the Jan. 7 incident, as an ongoing safety and training initiative at Wisp Resort, she noted.



REACHING MAJOR MILESTONES in their high school athletic careers this week were Northern High School basketball player Kaitlynn Fratz and Southern High wrestler Bubba Scheffel. Fratz, pictured in action at left, became just the fourth Northern female player to eclipse the 1,000-point mark for her career. Because she is a junior, she is well on her way to setting a new record for the school. Scheffel is pictured at right moments after winning his 100th individual wrestling match for the Rams in a team match at Hampshire High School Tuesday evening. The two-time state champion has won 66 consecutive matches. Also in the photo is Erino Leone, Hampshire's athletic director. Photo courtesy of Jim King, sports editor for the Hampshire Review.

She has hopes and dreams of moving up in the racing world, and someday opening her own shop and heading up an all-girls racing team. See feature in today's sports section.

Local 4-H Member Aids In MD Team's Third Place At Nationals

The Maryland State 4-H Livestock Skill-A-Thon team took third place at the National Contest held at the North American International Livestock Expo in Louisville, Ky., from November 14 to 18, with Katelyn Gnegy, a Garrett County 4-H member, as a participant on the team. Gnegy earned a spot on the Maryland team by placing first at the Maryland state contest held in Hagerstown in March 2009.

In order to make the team and represent the state, contestants have to identify breeds of livestock (cattle, sheep, swine, goats); identify the meat cuts from each species; and identify various livestock tools as well as demonstrate how to handle livestock.

In addition, the contestants were required to properly administer medications, calculate withdrawal periods to ensure the public safety of livestock products, and calculate rates of gain, feed conversions, and feed rations to meet the proper nutritional requirements of farm animals.

Gnegy is a junior at Southern Garrett, and is on the distinguished honor roll. She is an active participant in the Garrett County Fair where she shows her Suffolk sheep, and she was the first runner-up for fair queen in 2009. She is currently president of the Country Explorers 4-H Club.

Gnegy is the daughter of Dan and Mary Gnegy. The family expressed thanks to all who helped out with expenses, providing travel, and financial aid.

Hall Of Fame Nominees Sought By Commission

The Garrett County Commission for Women is seeking recommendations of outstanding women for induction into the Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame. Up to three women are inducted each year. Both historical and contemporary women are eligible for the Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame.

"Nominees should be women who have made outstanding contributions to Garrett County and are role models for tomorrow's female leaders," noted a spokesperson. "These women [will] represent the past, the present, and the future vision of Garrett County."

The Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame was established in 1995 as a permanent means of recognizing the significant contributions of Garrett County's women throughout the area's history. Participation in the process provides an opportunity to recognize the many talents and contributions of "extraordinary women."

Information about the criteria and qualifications for the award, as well as the nomination form, are available as a packet at each location of the Ruth Enlow Library. The deadline for nominations is Friday, Feb. 19. All questions and nominations can be submitted to the Garrett County Commission for Women, c/o Garrett County Commissioners, 203 South Fourth Street, Room 207, Oakland, MD 21550.

Organizations and individuals are invited to nominate. Under the guidance of the Garrett County Commission for Women, a selection committee representing a cross section of citizens of the county will review the nominations and make recommendations to the commission. After final review and approval, the commission will announce the inductees, and the honored women will be recognized for their contributions during a ceremony in their honor.

HOSPITAL RECEIVES ACCREDITATION – Garrett County Memorial Hospital has received another full three-year accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO). Pictured with the award is Charlene Bennett, director of the Family Centered Maternity Suite and Joint Commission coordinator. JCAHO has established a standard of care that assures consistency and quality of care at hospitals across the United States. All hospitals receiving accreditation from the commission are required to meet specific performance standards. Each organization's compliance with JCAHO standards is evaluated by a team of surveyors selected by the commission. Three years is the maximum award granted. "The JCAHO surveyor was on site for four full days of intense review and was very impressed with our hospital and staff," explained Bennett. "I am very proud of our hospital and how all our staff, physicians, and volunteers work together on a regular basis to achieve such success." The surveyor sought input from community members, patients, the medical staff, front-line staff, volunteers, and the hospital board of governors. The surveyor also reviewed open and closed medical records for completeness, accuracy, and adherence to established standards; challenged policies and procedures for clinical and environmental standards; and reviewed documentation of medical staff credentials and processes for ensuring competence.

Savage River Group To Host State Biologist

The Savage River Watershed Association (SRWA) will hold its bi-monthly meeting next Thursday, Jan. 21, 7 p.m., at Route 40 Elementary School. The guest speaker for the meeting will be Alan Heft, a statewide fisheries biologist with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Inland Fisheries Management Division.

Heft will share results of a 2009 water temperature monitoring project that was conducted throughout the Savage River watershed, and how this relates to the Brook Trout Barrier Removal Project being planned in the Savage River headwaters. His presentation will be followed by a question-and-answer session about resources of the Savage River watershed.

Heft graduated from Frostburg State University in 1988 with a bachelor of science degree in fisheries and wildlife management, and he has been working in the DNR Fisheries Division for 22 years. His responsibilities include statewide coldwater fisheries research and management.

Heft will be accompanied by Matt Sell, a Western Region biologist and brook trout specialist.

Sell is a 2004 graduate of FSU, also with a bachelor of science degree in fisheries and wildlife management. He has extensive experience sampling stream fishes with the University of Maryland, and the Maryland DNR, Biological Stream Survey. His current responsibilities include conducting Western Region fishery activities and assisting Heft with brook trout management efforts.

SRWA is a group of local landowners and other citizens dedicated to preserving and enhancing the rural nature and natural resources of the Savage River watershed. Members assist interested landowners and public land managers with environmental stewardship efforts and educational outreach. Anyone who is concerned about the Savage River watershed is invited to join.

SRWA meetings are held at Route 40 Elementary School, 17764 National Pike, just west of Frostburg, on the third Thursday of odd-numbered months. For more information, persons may contact SRWA via e-mail at SRWAdirector@gmail.com or SRWAcoordinator@gmail.com, or by telephone at 301-689-7156.

The SRWA is a non-profit charitable organization. Donations may be sent to: Savage River Watershed Association, PO Box 355, Frostburg, MD 21532.

St. Paul's Hosting "Power Of One" Afternoon Event

St. Paul's United Methodist Women of Oakland will host a meeting at the church on Tuesday, Jan. 26, at 2:30 p.m. The purpose of this event is to discuss and demonstrate how one person can significantly improve the world, a spokesperson said. The meeting is open to all members of the community

The efforts of three men in history will be discussed: Greg Mortenson, Muhammad Unus, and Paul Farmer. Mortenson wanted to build one school in a village that assisted him after a climbing accident on a Himalayan mountain. Since that time, he has established or now significantly supports 131 schools in rural regions of Pakistan and Afghanistan, which provide education to over 58,000 children, including 44,000 girls for whom few education opportunities existed before.

Unus, an economics professor, wanted to get the people of one village out of debt to loan-sharks by lending them $26, the total debt of the villagers. He was a recipient of the 2006 Nobel Peace Prize for his path-breaking work in bringing microcredit (tiny loans for small businesses) to millions of impoverished Bangladeshis through the creation of the Grameen Bank.

Farmer set out to cure infectious diseases and to bring the lifesaving tools of modern medicine to those in need. From Harvard to Haiti, Peru, Cuba, and Russia, Farmer changed minds and practices through his dedication to the philosophy that "the only real nation is humanity," a spokesperson said.

"In Garrett County, one person may have the spark of an idea that can produce great improvements in the social welfare of our people — one person with an idea, a dream or a calling," said Ginny Grove, organizer of the Power of One event. "But one person cannot do it alone. There needs to be a large body of volunteers to carry out the dreams."

With that theme, Grove has arranged for representatives of several area service organizations or non-profit groups to speak for three minutes each about their own particular group.

Efforts from within St. Paul's will also be reviewed.

Volunteer opportunities will be discussed. A potato bar will be offered at the end of the presentations. The public is invited to attend.

Man Charged With Assault After Domestic Dispute

A Crellin man was arrested on assault charges Saturday after Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a Crellin Mine Road residence.

Alexander was taken to the Garrett County Detention Center to await a bond hearing before a District Court commissioner.

Snowmobile Wreck Investigated By Sheriff's Deputies

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for a report of a patient being treated as a result of a snowmobile accident.

Upon arrival, the deputy identified the patient as Paul Elwood Liller Jr., Oakland. According to Liller, he had been riding a 2005 Polaris snowmobile on private property in the Gorman area, when he entered a whiteout and drove into a creek bed, causing the vehicle to wreck. He had been transported to GCMH by private vehicle.

No charges were filed by GCSO.

THANKS TO THE NATIONAL 4-H COUNCIL and the JC Penney Afterschool Fund grant, local G-FORCE FTC robotics team is having another successful season. In the photo, Aaron Lantz, Nathan Tichnell, and Levi Lantz are running their 2818 robot in the final match at the Maryland State FTC Championship. The team will compete Feb. 13 in the Ohio State FTC Championship and then at the FTC World Championships in April in Atlanta, Ga. See story.

G-FORCE Team Receives $1,500 Nat'l 4-H Grant

by Arlene Lantz

The National 4-H Council recently awarded a $1,500 grant to Garrett County's G-FORCE (Garrett FOuR-h Cyber Engineers) 4-H robotics team. This funding will support the team as members work together throughout the year to learn how to build robots and participate in robotics competitions across the country.

To support 4-H's expanded robotics programming, and in anticipation of the upcoming 2010 launch of 4-H's comprehensive robotics curriculum, the National 4-H Council raised grants that were awarded to 43 4-H robotics teams in 20 states nationwide. These teams will participate in at least one FIRST Robotics Competition (FRC), FIRST Tech Challenge (FTC), or FIRST LEGO League (FLL) event.

FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) and the National 4-H Council formed an alliance at last year's World Festival in Atlanta, Ga., to expand robotics clubs and programming among new youth across the nation. Through these grants, 27 of the 43 grants awarded are helping to establish brand new 4-H robotics teams in several states.

G-FORCE used this grant money to pay for its team registration, for a new Tetrix kit of parts for this season, and some travel expenses. In addition to building robots, the team members have given back over 1,000 hours of robotic community service to local, state, and national 4-H related robotic demonstrations and workshops.

The G-FORCE team was the Winning Alliance and received the Think Award at the Maryland State FTC Championship in December. Team members continue to practice to improve their robot design and their driving skills for their next tournament. They will compete in the Ohio State FTC Championship in Cincinnati on Feb. 13. They will also compete in the FTC World Championship in April in Atlanta. In addition to their GEARS and 4-H sponsors, Phenix Technologies, Craig & Associates, and Black Bear Enterprises have shown support for the team.

"4-H and FIRST are great partners," said a spokesperson. "4-H is all about volunteers helping youth develop life skills. FIRST gives 4-H leaders another way to give youth the opportunity to build teamwork skills as they develop their interests in science, engineering, and technology." The National 4-H Council and businesses such as Lockheed Martin have developed partnerships to promote 4-H activities across the Maryland community.

4-H is a community of 6 million young people across America learning leadership, citizenship, and life skills. The National 4-H Council is the private sector, non-profit partner of National 4-H Headquarters (USDA). The 4-H programs are implemented by the 106 Land Grant Universities and the Cooperative Extension System through their 3,100 local Extension offices across the country. Those interested may learn more about 4-H at www.4-h.org.

Gaining Perspective...

"All of the important things suddenly became unimportant" was among the many quotes from residents of Haiti soon after this week's earthquake devastated the most populated portion of that nation.

Most of us Americans can't begin to fathom the loss and overall conditions in that country this morning, even with all of the on-location media coverage, but the mega-tragedy should certainly help us put some things in our own lives into perspective. The devastation and extremely high loss of life should make the great majority of our day-to-day problems seem ridiculously minor, if not almost non-existent.

In trying to gain some perspective just on the loss of life from this disaster, and using the most conservative estimate of 100,000, consider this: That number almost exactly totals the entire population of both Garrett and Allegany counties. That's every single man, woman, and child in both counties combined. If that number would happen to reach 250,000, then throw in the entire population of Washington County as well. Some say there could be as many as 500,000, and there will obviously be many more who succumb to both injuries and illness in the days ahead.

Haiti is one of the world's poorest, most fragile nations, and was still in the process of trying to recover from being smacked by four severe hurricanes in just the past two years. Even without the earthquake, life there is full of challenges that most of us Americans do not have and rarely even think about.

However, each of us can do something to help our fellow human beings who are suffering so in Haiti simply by making a monetary donation. There are many legitimate agencies and charitable organizations that have jumped into action in the past 48 hours through which at least 90% of one's donation will go directly to providing aid to the people. They can be found on numerous web sites; however, care should be taken by all donors to not fall prey to a scam. As expected, some unscrupulous individuals have already taken advantage of the situation by establishing bogus "organizations." The best advice is to donate to an organization that is well known and reputable, and earmark the funds for earthquake relief in Haiti.

Readers are urged to donate immediately, as time is of the essence. Most of us do have at least a little money to spare, and any amount will help save some precious lives.

Letters to the Editor

Writers of letters to the editor are reminded that letters will not be published if they exceed 400 words, do not include contact information, and/or are deemed to be libelous.

To the Editor:

In response to my previous letter to the editor (published last week), I received a very nice, informative letter from county administrator Monty Pagenhardt correcting some of my misinformation on the technical side of our plumbing in the Deep Creek Lake area. Apparently I was wrong on a few points, and I do apologize to him and the Department of Public Utilities.

I have tried to encourage him to actually submit an article to The Republican containing the information, as it addressed a few things that I never knew, and I do try to stay informed on things that affect this area.

I do, however, still believe that the odors were there more often this year than they would have liked; a lot more. Maybe I'm more conscious of these things, as I understand that tourism is down and that any bad impressions received can get magnified.

Sincerely,
Gary Wotherspoon

To the Editor:

Before Christmas the Humane Society received some donations by mail. Mr. and Mrs. Rodeheaver and another family member called disappointed that they didn't get their thank-you cards before the holidays. They left a message with our treasurer, who then called them to apologize and to tell them she would send out the cards right away. They requested that we write an apology in a letter to the editor. So, we do apologize for the delay.

Our treasurer, who works a full-time job, explained to them that a close friend of hers had been in a serious car accident and that she had been traveling a lot to and from Morgantown to visit him.

Also, I want to add that we are all volunteers and have no office to work from. Had I known she wasn't able to send out the cards, I would have taken care of it myself. We also had one of our own members in the hospital from a serious accident, so the rest of us were visiting her and traveling to her home to take care of her pets.

In addition, some of us work both part- and fulltime jobs and have families and other commitments.

Last week two of our members were out in the terrible weather investigating 12 animal neglect calls, and today they are investigating a report of a frozen dead dog and a dead horse. So, though fundraising is very important to us, we are spread thin responding to neglect reports, as the county animal control officers are not permitted by law to do.

We responded to 150 calls in 2008, and in 2009 the count is at about 200. We have no office, pagers, or paid vehicles to respond to these calls, but we go because people call us concerned for the animals' welfare.

In closing, because of private donations and the dedication of our members, we continue to provide spay/neuter assistance and help the homeless and/or neglected animals in Garrett County.

Sincerely,
Lisa Baker

To the Editor:

I guess the best way to spread the word about a program dealing with letters to the editor of The Republican is to write a letter to the editor of The Republican.

On January 28-30 at 8 p.m. and January 31 at 2 p.m., Our Town Theatre will present "Letters to the Editor," an updated compilation of letters to our local newspaper from the last 132 years.

A special presentation for high school students is scheduled for January 27 at 8 p.m. Students at that performance will not be charged the $5 that is the ticket price for accompanying adults and for the other four shows. In addition to seeing the show for free, the students may earn one hour of service learning for attending the production.

Ten years ago seven very busy people combed the former issues our local paper to cull letters for this production, and I have spent the last several weeks updating the script with letters from the last 10 years. The letters that we gleaners have chosen deal with all sorts of topics – humorous and serious – and they tend to define the people of Garrett County. The real authors of the production are hundreds of letter writers from the past, and the subject matter varies from the ridiculous to the sublime, as do the writing styles.

In this production, audiences will discover that the past was very different and yet much like the present; they will find that the people of Garrett County are unique, yet they are so similar to all people everywhere. In a time of political upheaval and worldwide unrest, it is refreshing to touch base and, in doing so, reaffirm our roots and their importance in the growth of our society and ourselves.

We suggest that this presentation is best suited to teens as well as adults. Reservations can be made by calling 301-334-5640, ext. 1.

Sincerely yours,
Jane B. Avery
Artistic Director
Our Town Theatre

To the Editor:

This is in response to last week's letter by Bill Thomas.

I realize that we could go back and forth all year long on health care and other issues, but I have decided to just end it like this.

The current Congress will pass some form of a health care bill and it will be signed by the president. With that being said, please then take note of how many Americans continue to die each year in this country after we do the morally correct action and give them free health care.

God bless you,

To the Editor:

This is going to be a tough year for the Maryland General Assembly. Given 2010 realities, Friends of Deep Creek Lake suggests the following modest efforts by Senator Edwards and Delegate Beitzel:

The flush tax – Since 2004, county property owners with septic systems have paid a total of $1,486,000 into the Bay Restoration Fund via flush tax fees. We have gotten back about two dozen septic de-nitrification upgrades – maybe worth $200,000 – leaving about $1,286,000 of our taxes spent elsewhere in the state. This is not fair.

Recommendation: Lobby to retain our flush tax revenue for use in our county. The best use would be creation of a revolving loan program for repair or replacement of old systems, especially along lakes and streams.

Planning funds – The DNR Lake Policy Review Board identified a next step to be development of a dredging plan, which would need to be done by an outside engineering firm. With this plan, you will be able to secure state Waterway Improvement funds.

Recommendation: Work for an earmark of $100,000 in the DNR budget to hire a firm to write a dredging plan for Deep Creek Lake.

More on septic systems – The Department of Health and Mental Hygiene "recommends" that septic systems be pumped out at least every three years. This is generally not being done.

Recommendation: Work to create a part-time DHMH staff position to work on septic issues, including public education, and help shift this DHMH "recommendation" to "requirement."

Stream erosion – Of the 110 miles of tributaries feeding Deep Creek Lake, some are major contributors to cove shoaling, increased turbidity, and algae blooms. The land abutting these tributaries is mostly in private hands, beyond authority of DNR lake management.

Recommendation: Work to create a part-time staff position in either the Extension Service or Soil Conservation to analyze tributary erosion and develop a plan for stabilization and a riparian buffer zone.

These are small, realistic requests, based on reallocation within existing budget items. These are fair, especially since the state of Maryland makes no financial contribution to the management or protection of Deep Creek Lake, but receives substantial revenues from economic activity generated by the lake.

Please bring some of our money back to the county. Feel free to call us if we can help.

Barbara Beelar
Director,

To the Editor:

Each year during January, the Circuit Court for Garrett County mails between 850 to 900 jury questionnaires to citizens of Garrett County who have either a driver's license or identification card with the Motor Vehicle Administration, or are registered to vote with the election board. The sworn answers returned to the court are used to determine who will be eligible to be in our jury pool for the coming year.

Having been randomly selected by computer program to receive a questionnaire does not necessarily mean that the person will be required to perform jury duty. Of the 850 to 900 persons in the jury pool, only approximately 350 will be selected from another random computer program to actually serve on Grand Jury or Petit Jury for the coming year.

The court receives the data from the MVA and the election board. We realize that persons move without notifying the appropriate agency of their new address, and some may be deceased. The integrity of the process is then dependent upon cooperation of those receiving the questionnaire to return it properly completed or with information concerning a new address or other pertinent data about the addressee.

Maryland courts and judicial proceedings define the process of jury selection, and there are penalties for non-compliance by any person for not completing and returning the questionnaire.

Serving on a jury is the highest form of citizenship in this country, and the jury process is essential for our form of government to function as designed by our forefathers.

Sincerely,
Bill Graham
Jury Commissioner

To the Editor:

Thanks, Bill Thomas, for great letters. Maybe America has lost its way and fear has replaced hope in many ways. What else brings so much selfishness to replace giving and sharing?

We need to take a look back to when the corporate world, the banking system, the military industrial complex took over our government. Lobbying seems to be the how, but where does all that money come from? Focus on the bottom line for companies and stock holders became the new way of the world.

Our good-wage-paying jobs got sent overseas – wages became stagnant and depressed. Not a smart move, as that depresses consumer spending. The economy depends on that for growth.

The banks have money coming back from overseas. So increase their bottom lines and help the economy grow by lending back to us what should be our good wages. Credit card debt becomes easy – and the American way of life.

Next they pushed the tricky mortgages that we can't afford. All the while the cost of living goes up – wages still depressed. No need to talk about class warfare – the rich already won.

Let's look at the health care problems. With the for-profit systems of insurance companies and drug makers running the show, it would not be in their best interests for folks to be well. Good health doesn't benefit the bottom line.

Yet, the only grassroots movement going is the tea party folks who don't quite get the picture. They do have representation and the right to speak out about where their money is spent. Where were they when the wars started (paid off-budget to hide the cost.)? Where were they when the stock market/bottom line folks got their taxes cut – but didn't bring jobs or better wages to others? Taxes, you know, are what pay the bills for government services for all. But, when hard-working people are not paid decent "middle class" wages, you get less money in the pot to be shared by all and for all. Even Jesus complained loudly about unfair taxes or costs that favored the rich.

Remember, the progressive movements in this country brought positive changes for all – unions and better wages, the women's vote, civil rights, social security, health care, etc. Better wages equals fewer young folks joining the military, going to war, and dying as heroes.

Peace.

"It will be interesting to see how people vote this session considering it is an election year," Serafini said.

Busch said the legislature needs to confront gang violence in Maryland.

"There is no reason to have gangs in our school systems," he said. "We should be just as vigilant as we were with the H1N1 virus."

Busch also emphasized that expanding health care and continuing to fund K-12 education would be priorities for the legislature.

Gov. Martin O'Malley, a Democrat, greeted lawmakers, calling the beginning of the session "the lowest ebb of partisanship in the year, and the highest ebb of citizenship."

Later, O'Malley told reporters that an in-state tuition freeze in effect since he took office and intended to keep college affordable in Maryland, was likely to end this term.

"The former governor made a decision to jack up college tuition," O'Malley told reporters during an afternoon briefing. "We've made a decision to restore affordability ... we're the only state in the country to go four years in a row without increasing state college tuition."

O'Malley said that an end to the tuition freeze wouldn't mean the end of progress on the issue. "If we hold to modest annual increases ... if we can stick to, say, 3 percent increases while other states are doing five and 10, we continue to keep our colleges affordable."

O'Malley is making job creation a central part of his legislative agenda, calling for a $3,000 tax credit for businesses that hire workers who were formerly unemployed.

When asked about a Wednesday evening rally for potential gubernatorial candidate and former Republican Gov. Robert Ehrlich, O'Malley smiled. "Has he announced (his candidacy)?" he said. "I haven't followed who the prime movers are behind this ... everyone's welcome."

The Associated Press and Capital News Service reporters Brady Holt, Adam Kerlin, Rachel Leven and Shauna Miller contributed to this report.

higher year after year before gaining the top spot for the first time in the 2009 "Quality Counts" report.

"I'd like to thank the staff of the Maryland State Department of Education, members of the Maryland State Board of Education, and local system superintendents, administrators, and teachers for maintaining focus on student achievement," Dr. Grasmick said. "With the support of the governor, the Maryland General Assembly, educators, parents, and the public at large, we are able to continue to transform our classrooms."

Dr. Grasmick gave special thanks to the business community, which has consistently supported Maryland's education reforms. "Our businesses understand the importance of strong schools and prepared graduates," she said. "For our state to remain competitive, we need a vital preK-12 education system."

The new report finds that no other state has a more consistent record of excellence than Maryland. Results for the state were above average in all six of the broad grade categories, and ranked in the top seven in five of the six categories.

Also highlighted in the report is a special look at mathematics progress, using data from the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) results and Advanced Placement scores. Maryland ranked second in the nation, just behind Massachusetts, in this segment of the report.

Most of the state-level data gathered by Education Week comes from a policy survey of the states conducted in the summer and fall of 2009. In addition, the publication draws on data from such organizations as the U.S. Department of Education, U.S. Bureau of the Census, and the American Federation of Teachers.

Positive Parental Relationships Help Adolescents' Development

by Brenda Sisler, parent/ family facilitator, GC Health Department

Everyone recognizes that babies and young children need and love their parents, but what about middle school youth? Are you as a parent wondering how your loving child has come to reject you?

Several studies have found that positive relations or connectedness between parents and adolescents enhance the child's development. Adolescents who have a positive relationship with their parents tend to have better grades, have less behavior problems, and either avoid or have lower rates of alcohol, tobacco, and drug use.

Garrett County is participating in a national program that will benefit families with 12–14-year-old youth. The CARE to Wait Parenting/Family Program focuses on building family strengths during the difficult transitions that occur during middle school.

Parents and youth participate in joint activities that enhance positive communication between youth and parents, as well as teaching goal setting, decision making, problem solving, and refusal skills.

Starting Tuesday, Feb. 16, the Garrett County Health Department will offer a series of 12 weekly workshops at Northern Middle School. Each session starts with a free family meal at 5:30 p.m., and includes 30 minutes of parent/youth activities as well as individual workshops for parents, youth, and siblings.

Monetary incentives are awarded to participants for completing the 12-week program and surveys.

For more information or to register for the workshops, call me at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111. Parent and youth classes are limited to 20 participants.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

I was a little ahead of myself. I thought we were slipping into the January thaw. It was a boost to see some sunshine this Sunday morning. It looks warmer and the winds are quiet.

The Gulf Stream is shifting, so it held the frigid air in Canada and allowed some warm weather to come north and east from the southwest up here. And the Farmer's Almanac also says that we will go into a milder stage. Thank God!

I felt horrible regret that I couldn't go out and cross-country ski. But I can't find my skis, or any number of important things. I guess people believed that they were things that I really did not need, or else just worthless clutter.

Well, I'm sorry to say that the bittersweet period of semester break is over. It was too short. I hate to watch them go out the door. It was very sweet because I just love the company. And Caitlin cooked many delicious meals. I also enjoyed so much the evening activity – Caitlin came into my bedroom and tucked me in and even cuddled with me a little. There were two evenings when they went out to McHenry to see their father.

I know that neither Mere nor Caitlin will get a paycheck for several weeks. Of course, it was my duty to bankroll their trip to their grandparents' – spending money, gas money, and some money to get some presents for them. I am happy to hear that their grandfather is doing well, and Lloyd's sister is moving in with her mother.

Hooray! Cheryl Bender and Sheila Bender Miller finished the Mickey Mouse Marathon on Jan. 10, and they finished the 26-mile race in a very respectable five hours and a few minutes. The weather was not what is expected for Florida.

I saw the weather report the day of the race, which was in Orlando. It said mid-Florida had sleet and subfreezing temperatures. So Cheryl dressed for the race like when she runs here in Bittinger – pretty warmly with many layers. She said she didn't shed any layers.

She may have been better prepared than most runners, because the last few weeks here were just like it was in Florida. It is still too cold down there – not as cold as in Bittinger, but cold enough to threaten the citrus fruit crop. That means more expensive orange juice.

Naomi and Denver attended the Monday morning funeral of her aunt (her mother's sister) Fannie Zook of Grantsville. She was 92 when she passed away.

I don't know how our president keeps his cool

Are You A Visionary?

For the most part there seems to be 2 types of people in the world: REACTIONARIES and VISIONARIES

Reactionaries are those who standby and wait for the next email, text message or phone call to determine what they're going to do with their lives.

It seems they are always playing defense, jumping from one crisis to another. They wake up and wonder what's going to happen to them today.

Visionaries are those who set goals, write them down, and devise a plan to achieve them.

These are people who play offense, they go to bed knowing what they'll do tomorrow.

We know that unexpected things happen to all of us, but it's much easier to make adjustments to your plans than to have no plan at all.

God himself says this: For I know the plans I have for you," declares the LORD, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future.

Be encouraged in this new year to be a VISIONARY!

Adorable Adoptables

FRIENDLY FELINES AND CANINES are available for adoption this week at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. They include a young female gray/white feline, described as being "very vocal and loving"; a young female gray tortoiseshell, a mid-age neutered yellow Lab, and a mid-age black Lab mix that is probably spayed. The cats were brought in with many other homeless strays, and the Labs were left at the shelter after hours. "Many other cats are available – solid black, longhaired white, calico, tortoiseshell, tabbies, and orange – and other dogs are available as well," said a Humane Society spokesperson. "Even though last week HART took out a dozen canines and dozens of felines to rescue groups, more dogs and cats have come in. Please visit the shelter and see what is available for adoption." For more information, persons may call 301-334-3553. Located along Oakland Sang Run Road, the facility is open Monday through Friday.

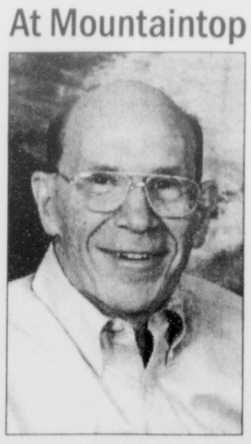
Author Bridges To Be Featured At Mountaintop



Living for Christ Conferences has announced that Jerry Bridges will be the featured speaker for the 24th annual getaway conference, Mountaintop 2010. This non-profit event will be held at Wilson Lodge, Oglebay, in Wheeling, March 5-7, according to former Garrett County resident Anne Robinson, co-founder of the annual conference.

This will be Bridges' third time as a featured speaker for the weekend event.

"Jerry is not only a best-selling author, but one of the most highly respected Christian speakers in the world," said Robinson. "He teaches with great humility, sharing sound Biblical truth and offering clear, practical help and hope to his listeners. His aim is to teach others how they can know and understand God in a deep and meaningful way, and how that knowledge can literally transform their lives."

Bridges' presentation is titled "The Beatitudes: Humility in Action," broken into five main sessions that focus on Jesus' Sermon on the Mount.

A resident of Colorado Springs, Bridges has been on the staff of the Navigators since 1955 and currently serves as a resource person to the Navigators University Students Ministry in the United States. He also serves as a guest lecturer at seminaries across the nation, and holds an honorary doctor of divinity degree from Westminster Theological Seminary.

His books include The Pursuit of Holiness, Trusting God, The Practice of Godliness, and his most recent book, Respectable Sins: Confronting the Sins We Tolerate. His books have sold over 2.5 million copies, and one or more of them has been translated and published in 16 different languages.

Also featured in the event will be two musical worship leaders. Dove-nominated recording artist Michael Neale will appear in concert and lead musical worship Friday and Saturday. Neale also serves as worship arts pastor for the People's Church in Franklin, Tenn.

Leading musical worship on Sunday morning will be Richard Allen Farmer, award-winning pianist and vocalist from Dallas.

"Mountaintop is one of only a handful of similar conferences in the country in that it is not affiliated with a particular denomination and is for both men and women of all ages," Robinson said. "Our goal is to provide an atmosphere away from the rush and strain of life, where folks can be challenged to grow spiritually.

"It's been said that when you spend time at Mountaintop, you see life from a different perspective," she continued. "Sometimes it takes getting away from the ordinary to allow that to happen."

Over 3,000 men and women have attended this event throughout its history.

Registration fees, which cover all programs, two nights' lodging, and four meals, begin at $299 per person (four to a room). Brochures and information are available by telephone at 304-455-5322, and online at www.mountaintopconference.org. WTRF-TV co-sponsors the event.

Tri-State Pasture Conference Set At Garrett College

The 2010 Tri-State Hay and Pasture Conference will be held at Garrett College on Thursday, Jan. 21, beginning at 8:30 a.m. This year's conference will feature two presentations by Dr. Jim Green of Green Consulting Services. He is a retired North Carolina State University extension specialist.

Dr. Green will discuss inexpensive methods of extending the grazing season and forage management practices as they relate to plant growth. His extension efforts have focused on training programs related to grassland management, especially grazing practices which impacted utilization, animal performance, waste utilization and natural resource protection on livestock farms. He conducted pasture demonstrations and training programs for managers and advisors who work with horses, sheep, goats, and swine.

He also worked with North Caroline NRCS (USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service) to provide training and support to staff in the area of grassland management.

A hands-on activity in identifying common grasses, legumes, and weeds will be conducted by Dr. Richard Taylor, extension agronomist from the University of Delaware, and R. Jay Ugiansky, resource conservationist with NRCS National Plant Materials Center in Beltsville.

Plant material will be available, and the conference participants will be divided into two groups to work with the presenters on how to identify the plants.

Dr. Les Vough, forage crops extension specialist emeritus with the University of Maryland, will lead an interactive session on "Matching Your Hay to the Market."

Vough has many years of experience in evaluating hay, and has worked with hay markets across the East Coast. Participants are asked to bring a hay sample to the conference to be evaluated. Vough will evaluate the hay samples before his session and then use them in the discussion with the group.

Other sessions at the conference will include a presentation by Jeff Semler, extension educator in Washington County, on "Grass Variety Trials Using Simulated Grazing." Semler and Stan Fultz, extension educator from Frederick County, have been doing a three-year study at the Western Maryland Research and Education Center with various grasses looking at yields and persistency under simulated grazing management.

Willie Lantz, extension educator in Garrett County, will give a presentation on "Weed Management in Hay and Pasture Systems."

A panel question and answer session will also be held at the end of the day. Participants will be able to write down questions on note cards throughout the day and have them answered by the speaker panel. The conference will also feature a trade show with various vendors related to pasture management and hay production.

A special optional session at the end of the program will be conducted from 4 to 4:30 p.m. for anyone wishing to get pesticide recertification credits for participating in the Hay and Pasture Conference. Nutrient Applicator Voucher credits and Nutrient Consultant Recertification credits will also be awarded for attending the conference.

Questions about the pesticide or nutrient management credits being offered may be directed to the Garrett County Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

The cost for the conference will be $10 in advance (for those who call and sign up before Wednesday, Jan. 20) or $12 at the door.

Participants will be given a lunch voucher good at the Laker Café at the college. A portion of the conference expenses is being sponsored by the USDA Farm Service Agency. Complete brochures are available at the office.

IT'S OPEN SEASON FOR FARM REVENUE INSURANCE IN WEST VIRGINIA

Adjusted Gross Revenue Lite (AGR-Lite) insurance for farmers and ranchers is again being offered in all West Virginia counties for 2010, according to the Raleigh regional office of the USDA Risk Management Agency. The application deadline is March 15, 2010.

Current AGR-Lite policyholders also have until February 1 to make any changes to existing contracts. Unlike traditional crop insurance guarantees based on yields, AGR-Lite provides a guarantee against a significant decline in overall farm income from the average of the most recent five years (2004 – 2008). As a result of substantial premium subsidies provided by the USDA, AGR-Lite can be a very affordable way to guarantee an income flow from farm operations.

AGR-Lite, which covers livestock, has a limitation of $1,000,000 in coverage. AGR-Lite offers certain features not available under the regular AGR program. For example, farmers and ranchers who derive more than 35 percent of their income from animals or animal products may be eligible for coverage under AGR-Lite. In addition, farmers and ranchers will not be required to purchase individual crop insurance policies in addition to AGR-Lite; however, they may obtain such additional protection if they so desire.

Farmers and ranchers are strongly urged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for more information and premium quotes for the product. For a list of crop insurance agents, farmers and ranchers may contact the Preston County USDA Farm Service Agency office, located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza or log on to the following Risk Management Agency web site: http://www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents/.

Female Truckers Among GC Mountaintop Institute Grads

by Melissa Parker

Who said truck driving is strictly a man's job? Not Garrett College, and not the many women who have successfully completed Garrett's Mountaintop Truck Driving Institute (MTDI).

In fact, 18 women have been trained in truck driving at Garrett, and the college hopes to see this number rise.

Women in trucking seems to be a growing trend. According to U.S. Census Bureau information, the number of female truck drivers has stayed pretty consistent, at around 5 percent over the last several years; however, there's no question that women are making advances in this largely male profession.

The reason for this?

"Historically, trucking has been a man's domain because of the physical requirements needed to operate a rig," said Ellen Voie, president and CEO of the Women In Trucking Association. "That changed with power steering, power brakes, and drop-and-hook operations. Another factor was having more home time becoming the goal of carriers and drivers. No longer is the trucking industry restricted to big, brawny men who are required to wrestle with 32,000 lbs. of 'finger printed' freight each day."

There are many good reasons why a woman might choose truck driving as a career path.

"Whether it is due to flexible schedules, job availability, competitive salaries and benefits, or another one of the trucking industry's many advantages, more and more woman are choosing to get behind the wheel," said Terry Beachy, director of Garrett's MTDI. "Women have proven that they not only have the ability to handle the big rigs, but they also have earned their place on the road with men."

Many of the women who have completed Garrett's truck driving institute are currently working in the field, including Lesa Cole, who finished the program in the spring of last year. For as long as she can remember, Cole has had two loves in her life: cooking and trucks.

Since she was a little girl, Cole has enjoyed cooking and had always dreamed of opening a restaurant. As an adult, she made that dream come true. She owned a catering business, which she operated out of her house. Unfortunately, partly because of a poor economy, things didn't work out for her catering business.

So she decided to try her hand at her second love. She enrolled in Garrett's Mountaintop Truck Driving Institute so that she could learn to drive trucks.

"I always told my husband that I would eventually drive trucks after my children were gone," said Cole. "Now I'm getting that chance and living out that dream."

After graduating from the program, Cole landed a position with Savage Services in Oakland. She delivers coal, with shifts that last up to 12 hours per day. Although the hours are long, she says she enjoys her job.

"I thank God for putting me with this company," she said. "Obviously, the majority of the people who work here are men, and you may think they wouldn't be very kind to a woman truck driver, but they're actually very helpful. They go out of their way to help me out. They're very caring and they look out for me, for which I thank God."

Another plus of working for Savage Services is that her husband also works there.

Cole believes that anything is possible through prayer and will, including women driving trucks.

"You can accomplish anything you put your mind to, male or female, young or old," she said. "As long as you have the perseverance and the urge to do it, you can do it."

Mary Shumaker also decided to go into trucking because it seemed like the natural next step in her life. All of her working life, Shumaker had been driving to make her living: She drove school buses, drove taxi cabs, and delivered newspapers.

"I had always wanted to try truck driving," she said. "I thought, why not try it? So I enrolled in the college's truck driving program."

Shumaker completed her training in the summer of 2008. She rated her experience with the truck driving institute as "very successful."

"I learned so much while I was in school," she said. "I learned things that I didn't think I would, things that helped me out when I was out there driving."

When she first graduated from the program, Shumaker worked in truck driving. However, she left her job as a driver to become the full-time caregiver to her good friend who was diagnosed with cancer.

Shumaker said she thoroughly enjoyed truck driving, and as soon as things settle down in her life, she plans to go back out and apply for truck driving positions.

She also believes truck driving is a good career path for others.

"I most definitely recommend truck driving to other women," she said. "When I hear of someone looking for a career change, I always tell them about truck driving."

Shumaker currently resides in Somerset, Pa., where she's back to delivering newspapers and working at Seven Springs Mountain Resort.

Cole and Shumaker both dismissed the notion that truck driving is only a man's job. The college dismissed this idea as well.

"The next time you pass an 18-wheeler, take a look at who is driving," said Beachy. "It may not be who you were expecting. Many of us assume that the driver will be a man, but more and more women are driving trucks today."

For additional information on truck driving training at Garrett College, persons may telephone Beachy at 301-895-4700 or go online to terry.beachy@garrettcollege.edu.

Financial Literacy, Responsibility To Be Addressed At GC Campus

by Melissa Parker

With today's economy still shaky, gaining financial literacy may be the key to surviving these tough economic times. Garrett College is currently engaged in a number of activities aimed at promoting greater financial literacy and financial responsibility among its students and the community at large. The college is also preparing to implement several other activities in the future.

"Maryland Governor O'Malley and the Higher Education Commission have made financial literacy a statewide educational priority, especially in today's economy," said Dr. Jeanne Neff, president of Garrett College. "We are pleased to be offering opportunities for its students and Garrett County residents to improve their financial understanding and skills."

The college offers a three-credit elective course titled "Personal and Consumer Finance," which examines technology and its impact on real-world decision making. The course provides students with a strong foundation for current and future personal financial management activities involving budgeting, credit, savings, investments, insurance, etc.

This course, currently on the schedule for the spring 2010 semester, is open to any student who meets basic prerequisites, including individuals in the community who wish to take classes for personal interest.

An abbreviated one-credit-hour version of this course, titled "Personal Finance," was initiated several years ago at the college. Although it has not been offered for some time, the class may be reintroduced into the schedule in the near future.

These courses can help students gain a better understanding of financial management, which makes it a valuable opportunity for individuals who have been adversely affected by the economy.

Another step the college is taking to ensure financial literacy among its students is including it as an education topic at the college's residence halls. During the fall semester, the residence halls hosted "Economic Night," an event designed to raise awareness about financial responsibility. Students participated in games such as Monopoly, Life, and Cash Flow. Similar activities are being planned for the spring semester.

"It's important for our students to understand financial matters," said Kailee Craig, assistant coordinator of residence life. "Many of our residential students are on financial aid, so it's important for us to reinforce financial understanding and responsibility."

The college's financial aid office also follows several steps to promote greater financial responsibility among financial aid recipients. Incoming students are required to visit the money management component of the "Mapping Your Future" web site, www.mappingyourfuture.org. At the end of a student's time at the college, in-person exit interviews are conducted, during which financial management topics are again addressed.

The financial aid director also conducts a brief session on money management during new student orientation. The director plans to give a more in-depth presentation on financial literacy at future orientations.

The financial aid office has also planned several financial literacy workshops that will be held during the first part of the spring 2010 semester. These workshops will be conducted by representatives from a local bank, a national lending and servicing institution, and several loan guarantors, who will all provide expert advice from their various financial backgrounds. Financial aid recipients will be required to attend the workshops, but they will also be open to all students and the general public.

In addition, the college is looking into including financial literacy information on its web site, including links to sites devoted to financial literacy, such as www.360financialliteracy.org and www.mymoney.gov.

For additional information on gaining financial literacy information at the college or to register for one of the classes, persons may contact the Admissions Office at 301-387-3044 or admissions@garrettcollege.edu.

The Arts

Our Town Theatre Presenting Letters To The Editor

Our Town Theatre will present a redux of its 2000 production of Letters to the Editor, an updated compilation of letters written to The Republican newspaper over the last 132+ years. The show, which will be a readers' theatre production, will be given at the theatre on Jan. 28-30 at 8 p.m. and on Jan. 31 at 2 p.m.

A special presentation for high school students is scheduled for Jan. 27 at 8. Students at that performance will not be charged the $5 ticket price, and they may earn one hour of Service Learning for watching the production. Tickets for the other shows, and for adults accompanying the youth on Jan. 27, will be $5. Reservations are encouraged, and may be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640, ext. 1.

Avery and seven volunteers worked on the project 10 years ago, going through old issues of the paper and culling letters of interest. Avery then arranged them by subject, adding extra dialogue and connecting scenes. Over the past few months, she has updated the program with segments of letters written over the past 10 years.

Three staff members of the Sincell Publishing Company that produces the newspaper are in the cast, including the editor, Don Sincell. Mary Sincell McEwen, writer, and Richard Hill, graphic artist, are also in the line-up. The other cast members are Erin Peacock, John Wilson, Elizabeth Rees Gilbert, and Matt Eary. Avery is the director, and Ben Sincell will head up the set and lighting designs.

Avery said the chosen letters touch on a wide variety of topics, both funny and serious. She said they echo problems that have remained over the years, and also celebrate the uniqueness of Garrett County and its citizens. (See her own letter to the editor in this week's issue.)

Avery said the program is designed for teenagers through adults. Our Town Theatre is located at 121 Center Street in Oakland.

FSU Sponsoring Competition In Writing One-Acts

The Frostburg State University Center for Creative Writing announces its first one-act playwriting competition to showcase new works.

Writers are encouraged to submit their one-act plays (with a running time of 40 minutes or less) to the center by April 1. Entries will be judged on plot, character development, dialogue, and overall quality.

The first prize winner will receive $750 and production of his or her play at the Frostburg One-Act Playwriting Festival, scheduled for September on the FSU campus. Second- and third-place winners will receive $250 and $100, respectively, and staged readings of their works.

For submission guidelines, persons are advised to visit the Center for Creative Writing's web site at www.frostburg.edu/cwcenter.

Winter Percussion, Guard Workshops Slated At Southern

Joshua Elmlinger, band director at Southern High School, has announced that the band will host winter guard and winter percussion workshops over the next six weeks. All area students in 6th through 12th grades are invited to attend.

The workshops will be held on Saturdays at the Southern High School band room, with the percussion meeting from 10 a.m. until noon, and the color guard meeting from noon until 2 p.m. Elmlinger will lead the sessions, assisted by senior marching band members. The first session will be held on Jan. 23.

"You do not need to have any experience in either guard or percussion to come to our workshops," Elmlinger said. "We hope to see middle school students who wish to be in the band when they get to Southern, and we would also love to see current Southern High students come give it a try."

Percussionists are asked to bring practice pads, if they have them. There will be no fee for the workshops.

Frostburg State Slates Workshop On Playwriting

The Frostburg State University Center for Creative Writing will host a 10-week playwriting workshop with local award-winning playwright Ty DeMartino. Sessions will begin on Thursday, Feb. 11, and will be held at 7 p.m. on Thursday nights at the center at 22 E. Main Street in Frostburg.

The workshop is open to novice and established playwrights who want to learn more about the craft and the art of writing for the stage. Participants will go over such topics as how to tell strong stories in a theatrical setting, create memorable characters, and write natural-sounding dialogue. Over the 10 weeks, participants will develop their own play ideas, and receive feedback and guidance from DeMartino and their fellow workshop participants.

A resident of Frostburg, DeMartino's plays have appeared on stages from Hollywood to off-Broadway in New York City and the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. In 2007, he was named Best Playwright of the Year by the Baltimore City Paper for his political piece, The Blessed Mothers of War, and in 2008 his family drama Finding Fossils was honored as Best Production of the Baltimore Playwrights Festival.

Over the past decade, DeMartino has been recognized by the Maryland State Arts Council with three individual artist awards. Currently, he is working on two dramas for the stage – Cluttered, a play about hoarding disorders, and The Darling Siblings, a story about children dealing with the murder of a family member. Both plays are being workshopped for possible productions in 2010.

In addition, DeMartino serves as the head writer for Reel Movie Kids, an initiative to train and showcase young actor-comedians.

For more information and/or to register, persons may telephone the center at 301-687-4024 or go online to www.frostburg.edu/cwcenter.

ELVIS: MY BEST MAN
by George Klein with Chuck Crisafulli
C. 2010, Crown Books, $25; 307 pages
Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

The organ starts to play and you're nervous.

You shouldn't be, though. You're in love and this quickly assembled Las Vegas wedding proves it. You have the minister who barely knows you and you're standing in a chapel you've never seen before.

If that's not love, what is? You even have Elvis holding the wedding ring.

No, not someone who looks like Elvis. The real Elvis, and he paid for the wedding, just as he paid for your nose. His generosity didn't surprise you, though. It's something a guy gets used to, as you'll see in the new book Elvis: My Best Man by George Klein with Chuck Crisafulli.

When George Klein was young, he was fascinated with music and the radio DJs who played it. Moreover, he was fascinated by an emerging "fad" called rock and roll. Klein knew he wanted to be part of that, and it set the course of his life. Though he'd gone to school with Elvis Presley, it was through radio that he got to know Presley well.

And when Klein lost that coveted radio job, Elvis spontaneously stepped in and hired him as a "traveling companion."

Elvis' mother didn't want her son in an airplane, so Elvis and Klein traveled by car and train to concerts (the rest of the entourage often caught flights). Because they shared rooms as well as time, the two became close. Klein supported the singer, counseled him, and brought girls to hotel parties held with chaste kisses and no alcohol.

But the support went both ways. Whenever Klein felt the pull of radio, Elvis always urged him to return to that career, but with an open-door invitation: Klein could return to the fold at any time.

And he did. Who could give up the life of a King?

Elvis Presley, says Klein, was the kind of guy who gave people cars and posed for nervous fans' cameras. He was a gentlemanly ladies' man who respected his date's privacy. But Elvis was easily angered, quickly jealous, and his mood could go dark in a blink. He was a star, and demanded treatment as such, but Klein stuck by him, as friends do.

Then, in a quirk-of-fate, circle-of-life way, Klein learned from a radio DJ that his friend was dead.

I find it amazing that, 30-plus years after Presley's death, people are still writing books about him. In the case of Elvis: My Best Man, I'm glad.

Not just another my-friend-Elvis memoir, this book is really only half dedicated to Presley. In addition to anecdotes and little-known insider tidbits about Elvis, authors Klein and Crisafulli also tell the story of rock and roll and the birth of a kind of radio we can't imagine living without. What makes this story wonderful is that it's lively, gently told, and not one bit pandering.

If "Long Live the King" is your mantra and you can't help falling in love with books about him, you'll definitely want this one. Missing this, Elvis: My Best Man, might make you all shook up.

Garrett College To Offer Several Sewing Courses

The Continuing Education and Workforce Development division of Garrett College will be holding several sewing classes through the spring 2010 semester. Instruction begins with "Sewing Machine Basics: Successful Sewing with Your Home Machine" on Saturday, Jan. 23, from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. This is a hands-on class for only $12.

This class is recommended for those who have never used a sewing machine or need of a refresher course. Students will learn how to use a machine, including how to thread the machine, change needles, and sew seams. Adjusting the machine for perfect stitches will also be demonstrated and discussed. The many different stitches and their purposes, as well as techniques, will also be covered.

Students must provide their own sewing machine and foot pedal. A small number of loaner machines will be available, but must be reserved in advance. Interested persons should call for details.

A second offering, "Project Pajama: Learn to Sew Your Own Pajama Pants," will begin Saturday, Jan. 30, and continue the following Saturday, Feb. 6, from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on both days. For $40, this hands-on class teaches the skills necessary to construct a pair of pajama pants with a pattern and a home sewing machine. Demonstrations will be provided, as well as assisted hands-on sewing. Topics to be covered are: machine sewing basics, fabric selection, pattern sizing, and complete start-to-finish construction. All supplies are covered in the cost of the class.

Three more sessions are scheduled throughout February, April, and May: "Learn to Sew Your Own Kimono-Style Robe"; "Do Your Part: Sewing Your Own Re-Usable Market Bags (A Pre-Earth Day Event)"; and "Learn to Sew Quilted Handbags."

For additional information, persons may contact Maney Gale at 301-387-3086 or at maney.gale@garrettcollege.edu. To register for any of these courses, persons may call 301-387-3069.

Huskies Record Victories While Fratz Reaches 1,000 Point Career Mark

Kaitlyn Fratz reached her 1,000-point career mark in an Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference game on Tuesday evening, becoming the fourth in school history to achieve such a feat. She scored 33 points in the 77-46 crushing defeat of Frankfort, well surpassing the 20 points she needed for the record. Fratz also scored 31 points, over half of the Huskies' points, in the 60-50 defeat of Musselman last Saturday in Inwood, W.Va.

Fratz became the fourth player in the school's history to reach 1,000 points for her career. She currently has 1,013 as a junior. Northern's other 1,000-point scorers are Megan Wiley, Amanda Frantz, and Kristen Edwards, with Edwards holding the record at 1,250.

In the weeks first victory over Musselman on Saturday, the Huskies barely kept the lead through the first half. The first quarter ended with Northern ahead by one point, 10-9, and then in front by three at halftime for a 25-22 score. The Huskies managed to pull away in the third quarter to lead 41-34.

Fratz netted 10 field goals, and hit 10-for-16 from the foul line to attain 31 points. Adria Graham and Terra McKenzie combined for 24 points, each collecting 12, and McKenzie aided on the glass with six rebounds.

Musselman was led by Stambaugh's 16 points and W. Lewis' 15.

Graham Repeats As Offensive Player Of The Year; Proves Making History Is Attainable

Making history is becoming more and more of a reality for athletes at Northern High School. Adria Graham proved just that as she was named the Cumberland Times-News Offensive Player of the Year for the third year in a row, completing her high school soccer career as the most prolific scorer in area history.

Graham, a four-year starter, led the area with a 6.00 scoring average, which broke her own record of 5.37 set during her junior year, with 36 goals, 24 assists, and 96 points.

"Adria is a first-class athlete who has given all she has to this game and her team over the last four years," said Northern head coach Jeff Graham. "This year we asked even more of her as she was our playmaker in the center of the field. We needed the ball at her feet and she accepted the challenge with enthusiasm.

"Her true strength lies in her ability to find the feet of teammates off the ball. She sees the field well and creates a lot of scoring opportunities for the team, as evidenced by the number of assists she put up each year."

Graham's record-setting career came during the most successful four-year span in Northern girls' soccer history.

The Huskies rolled up a 52-11-2 overall record and a 26-4-2 mark in league play during Graham's four seasons. They won one area title and also a region championship in 2007, when they became the first girls' team from Allegany or Garrett county to play in a state soccer tournament.

The four-time All-Area and all-conference star won this year's AMAC crown by scoring 23 goals and assisting on 17 others in just eight games for 63 points and a whopping 7.87 average.

She is No. 1 in career goals (112), career assists (68), career points (292), and career scoring average (4.49). Graham set the single-season records for assists (24), points (96), and average (6.00) this year. She scored on five free kicks, had one header goal, a header assist, and two corner kick assists. Eight of her goals came on shots from

SHS Hoopsters Crushed By Allegany; Come Back With Upset Of Mtn. Ridge

After many cancellations and postponements, the varsity girls' basketball team of Southern High School was finally able to get a game in last Thursday. Unfortunately, the Rams opened the new year with a 52-22 Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference domination by Allegany in Cumberland, but came back with a 45-40 upset of third-ranked Mtn. Ridge last night in Frostburg.

Southern stayed within reach of Allegany during the first quarter of last Thursday night's game. The Rams trailed by four points to end the first quarter, and remained behind, 19-10, by halftime. The Campers stormed to a 40-16 lead in the third quarter, outscoring Southern 21-6.

Heidi Welch recorded eight points for the Rams, two of which were 3-pointers.

Leading all players as well as Allegany was Kelsey Knippenberg with 13 points. Teammate Brooke Wharton had 11 points and eight assists, and Kelly Baker added 19 points and five assists.

The Rams' junior varsity team opened with a 36-27 victory over the Camper jayvees. Hanna Horne scored nine points to lead Southern, and Courtney Landis had 11 for Allegany.

In last night's face-off with Mtn. Ridge, Emillee Bosley and Alli Shaffer combined to score all of Southern's 17 points in the first quarter, and the Rams allowed just 10 from the Miners. Mtn. Ridge closed the gap, however, in the second quarter, outscoring Southern 10-9. The Rams broke open in the third quarter, allowing just five points from Mtn. Ridge for a 40-25 third quarter score. The roles switched in the fourth quarter as the Rams were allowed five points to the Miners' 15.

Bosley led all players with her 20 points, hitting four 3-pointers in the process. Shaffer finished with a double-double by grabbing 10 rebounds and scoring a total of 14 points.

Madi Nightengale and Stephanie Fazenbaker tied for the Miners' lead with 12 points each. Fazenbaker added seven assists, and Heather Shipe provided eight points.

Scoring 10 points for the Southern jayvees was Hanna Horne as she led the Rams to a 32-20 victory over the Miners' junior varsity. Courtney Nightengale had six points for Mtn. Ridge.

Southern, now 5-4 overall and 3-1 in the AMAC, is scheduled to travel to Hampshire on Saturday.

Lakers Whip Dundalk, Drop A Pair, Then Stop Germantown

It was a .500 week for the Garrett College men's basketball team, as the Lakers won two and lost two Maryland – JUCO games. Coach Dennis Gibson's squad is now 3-3 in conference games and 10-7 overall.

The Lakers cruised to a 72-53 victory over host Dundalk last Thursday, were nipped by visiting Hagerstown on Saturday, 88-87, dominated by host Essex on Monday, 96-76, and got back into the win column last night by whipping Montgomery-Germantown in a high-scoring affair, 100-88, also on the road.

The results left the Lakers with a 9-7 overall record, and a 4-3 mark in conference standings.

Leading the Lakers' scoring effort in the win over Dundalk were Jordan Gipson and Doma Ibrahim, who each netted 13 points, while Kory Gibson and Joe Dubuche were close behind with 11 and 10 points, respectively. Gipson also grabbed six rebounds and had two steals.

Howard Ferguson and Jeff Stem just missed reaching double figures in scoring, contributing nine points apiece, with Stem hitting two big buckets, including a three-pointer, to ignite a rally from a 15-4 deficit in the opening minutes.

The Lakers took the lead midway through the first period and never looked back, holding a 35-23 advantage at intermission.

The top scorer for the game was Dundalk's Stephon Bryant with 18 points, followed by Raquis Morris with 16.

"For our first night back in action, we really played a good all-around game," said Laker coach Dennis Gibson.

The Lakers played well Saturday evening against Hagerstown, but a late rally fell just a couple points short.

The Hawks held a 42-34 lead at intermission, having capitalized on foul trouble for the Lakers. They were up 69-62 with eight minutes to play, but the Lakers scored the next seven points to knot the score at 69-69. With about three minutes to play, Garrett was on top by five, 83-78.

However, the Laker offense faltered on its next several possessions, and the Hawks came back to take an 88-87 lead.

The Lakers had a chance to win in the final moments, as Kory Gibson came up with a steal. He passed the ball to Gipson for a lay-up, but the ball bounced back out of the rim. A follow-up rebound and last-second shot by Stem also rolled off the rim.

Gibson finished with a game-high 26 points, going 9-for-10 at the foul line. Joe Dubuche connected for 17 points, and Stem netted 14. Vladimir Vukovic grabbed a team-high seven rebounds and chipped in with six points.

Pacing the Hawks offensively were DaiQuane Peterson with 22 points, K'yan Andrews with 17, Najee White with 15, and Demetrius Richardson with 10.

The Lakers trailed in baskets by a lopsided 35-24 margin, but made good on 30 of 37 shots at the foul line to nearly pull out the win. The Hawks (8-7) converted only 10 of 24 free throws.

After holding several early leads of five points against Essex in Monday's game, the bottom dropped out late in that half for the Lakers, who found themselves down by eight, 44-36, at intermission. A three-pointer by Gibson seconds into the second half of action cut the Knights' lead to five points, but four straight turnovers by the Lakers allowed the Knights to pull away for the 20-point win.

Rebounding was the major key to the Knights' win, as they not only out-outside the penalty area.

"Not only was Adria able to frequently beat opponents off the dribble, she also ripped off several hard goals from long distance," said Coach Graham. "Leading the area in scoring often creates the disadvantage of constantly being marked by opponents, but Adria was always able to step up her play to meet the challenges."

The only record not broken by Graham, who did not miss a minute of a game in four years because of injury, was single-season goals. That is held by Bishop Walsh's Lauren Zapf, who scored 40 during a 21-game season in 1998. Graham's 36 goals this year places her second on that list.

"Adria could have probably broken that record this year as well, but we pulled her back and took her off the field in several games when she had already scored several goals," said Coach Graham. "She really wasn't concerned about the single-season records and knew they would naturally happen with quality play."

Graham is also an excellent student and a member of the National Honor Society with a 4.0 academic standing. She has made a verbal commitment to continue her career at Frostburg State.

Southern Bowling Teams Gain Wins, Losses To Fort Hill

In just its second year as a team, the Southern High School boys' and girls' bowling teams have proven that bowling can be a competitive and fun sport, giving athletes another option during the winter months.

The boys finished with a 22-14 Adjusted win, and the girls recorded a 22-14 Adjusted as well. The Ram boys' Actual score was 22-14 to the Sentinels, and the girls' was a 32-4 loss.

McClintock Places Third In Nation In Extreme Dirt Track ATV Race

by Brenda Ruggiero

At an age when most girls are looking forward to learning to drive, 15-year-old Mercedes McClintock has already clocked many hours maneuvering four wheels. Of course, the wheels she has mastered are on a much smaller scale.

Mercedes, who is the daughter of Steve and Jodi McClintock of Accident, has been racing "quads" (or four-wheeled all-terrain vehicles) for the last four years. The races are held on half a stock car oval. On the in-field of the track, racers perform hairpin turns, "S" turns, and a few jumps.

Last fall, Mercedes won an award for her efforts at the 2009 American Motorcyclist Association/All-Terrain Vehicle Association (AMA/ATVA) Extreme Dirt Track ATV Nationals. Mercedes was the only girl in her class, which was the supermini 13-15 division. She placed third overall in the nation.

In her first year, Mercedes explained that she raced in District 5 Motocross with both a dirt bike and a quad.

"I didn't like the dirt bike as well, because I felt as though I was unbalanced," she said. "So I took to racing strictly quads."

In 2007, which was her first year of racing in the Extreme Dirt Track Nationals, she placed seventh in the 90 mod class. In 2008, she placed third in the nation for supermini and fourth in the nation for 90 mod.

Besides racing in the supermini class, Mercedes got her start this fall in the schoolboy class, where she placed first. Besides the Extreme Dirt Track Nationals, she also races in the Southern ATV Series.

"When I was little, I always had battery-operated jeeps and go carts, so I always had wheels underneath me," Mercedes said. "Then for Christmas in 2006, I got my first dirt bike, and shortly after, my first quad."

Her interest in racing came partly because of her dad's background. Steve formerly raced professionally for Mickey Dunlap Four Stroke Tech. He was involved in both Extreme Dirt Track National Racing and Motocross, and raced from 1985 to 1991.

"He is gearing toward starting back up this year with me in the pro open class," Mercedes said.

She noted that her biggest support is her family, including her parents, grandparents, and uncle. However, their support does not come without a certain price.

"My mom worries a lot," Mercedes said. "She tries to go to all my races and she prays before I ride. Sometimes, she will get so nervous that she videotapes the clouds and other people instead of me! But this past season, she only went to three of my races, which I think made her way more nervous being that I was only with my dad. She called every five minutes asking if I was okay."

Mercedes' grandmother Sandy McClintock is also inclined to worry, mainly because she went through it all before with Steve.

"My grandma Sandy is a nervous wreck," Mercedes said. "She says I'm too fast and I'm just like my daddy."

Her grandfather Jake McClintock enjoys attending the races that are near enough.

"He goes to nationals in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Tennessee, and he has a blast," Mercedes said. "He helps get my bike ready to go and wears his pink crew shirt with mighty pride."

She noted that her other set of grandparents, Diona and Roy Broadwater of Lonaconing, are supportive of her racing as well.

Despite the worries, Mercedes has not been hurt since she started quad racing. However, when she raced her dirt bike, she went through quite a few injuries, including a 12-inch long third-degree burn on her inner thigh from the exhaust. Besides numerous bumps and bruises, she also injured her shoulder and nearly dislocated elbows at times.

Currently, Mercedes competes in Missouri, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Tennessee, and North Carolina.

She explained that there are usually 400 to 800 people involved in her races. In all classes, the gate can hold 20 quads at a time, so she usually races with anywhere from five to 20 kids. She is the only girl in both the supermini class and the schoolboy class.

"When I race with the boys, it gives me more competition," she said. "The boys obviously don't want to get beaten by a girl, which makes me ride even more aggressive and commit to the struggle. When we are off the track, the boys in my classes are my best friends, but when we are on the track, then we are worst enemies. Some of the boys I race with cannot stand getting beaten by a girl, so they actually have quit racing altogether. But most of my friends think it is awesome to be a girl who races."

Mercedes noted that her motor work is done by Jimmy Bernard of McHenry.

"With his help, I look forward to being the 2010 Extreme Dirt Track ATVA National Champion in the supermini, women, and Open A classes."

Mercedes has support sponsorships through Morgantown Honda and Deep Creek Extreme Powersports. Over the next few months, she hopes to pick up a few more sponsors. In order to obtain sponsors, Mercedes explained that she must submit a resume including season finishes and highlights, awards won, and academics to companies in the racing industry.

In addition to racing, Mercedes keeps up with her school work and occasionally helps out on the family dairy farm in the Cove. She is also steadily working toward her goals. Currently, she is home-schooled through Pleasant Valley Christian Academy in Oakland, and will graduate with the class of 2010.

At the same time, she attends Garrett College for business. Once she finishes there, she plans to go to Motorcycle Mechanic Institute (MMI) to become a mechanic/engine builder.

"Then I hope to open my own shop and build motors, as well as have an all-girls race team for motocross, cross country and extreme dirt track," she said. "I'd love to open my shop in Garrett County. That would give our town some fame and draw attention to the East Coast for extreme dirt track riders, because most of them are from the West."

A VERY SPECIAL VISITOR was welcomed at Friendsville Elementary School on Tuesday, especially by kindergartner Taylor Uphold. Her father, Sgt. Phillip Uphold, has been stationed in Iraq with the U.S. Army for the last six months. He came home for a short visit, which Taylor did not know until he appeared at her classroom door. (See photos on page A-1.) He then visited with her class and answered their questions. Shown above, in the front row from left, are Colton Savage, Jesse Spear, and Paige Smith. In the second row are Alexis Meyers, Taylor and Sgt. Uphold, Katelyn Wick, Tabitha Carr, Sierra Moats, Austin Hinebaugh, and Alexis Savage. In the back row are Victor Slaubaugh, Cheyanne Sines, Tori Lytle, and Anthony Snyder.

while a barrage of hate-filled attacks hit him non-stop, but he is able, and I must take my hat off to him.

Some claim that if he addresses the problem of joblessness, that means he is not worried about terrorist attacks. Perhaps. But right now the most important thing is the well-being of the middle and working classes. They are hurting very badly, because very few jobs are available. So he did address it. He proposed a major offense to develop our green economy, like tax credits for any firm that creates jobs to manufacture green technology such as wind turbines and solar panels.

Right now these jobs are in Japan, which is leading green energy technology production. That must change as soon as possible. Some claim our energy costs will rise if we go green. That is ridiculous.

Anyone who lives in Bittinger knows we have endless wind power, and we don't have to enrich mid-east nations. And in the Southwest, they have so much sunshine. They have to run their air conditioners 24/7, and that just uses more oil to generate the power.

I am sorry that coal is still used so heavily to address our energy needs. But it is such a major industry in West Virginia, a state that did provide some fine senators, including poor old Byrd, and now Rockefeller.

Can you believe John Edwards tried to convince Obama to choose him as his vice presidential candidate? Now there is nothing admirable about him. He knew very well the shape his personal life was in. I can't think he would be chosen as a candidate for vice president, especially for a president who has a target on his back for the far Right.

I guess prayers do work. I know many people who pray constantly to God to please keep his servant and our president safe. So far, it looks like God wants Obama to succeed for peace on Earth, and for a chance for decent lives in America and across the globe. Our president did deserve the Peace Prize just for changing America's posture in the community of nations. He is dedicated to promoting peace wherever and however he can achieve it.

It is very sad that it looks like the big insurance companies and some Congressmen were swayed by intensive lobbying at a price of a couple billion dollars. They fought almost irrelevant issues, like including abortion in the debate, and protesting about what is the best way to pay for the desperately needed health care reform.

I am sick to death to see the ads for that tax relief firm where someone brags that they only paid $600 for a tax bill of $100,000. "But hurry, because the law may change." I sure hope so, and soon. They had no interest in helping me when I got a tax bill for $400 for my income, with three college-age daughters.

Speaking of my girls, they left this morning to visit Lloyd's parents, on probably icy roads. My girls have no health insurance. They can't afford it, and I sure as hell can't get it for them, much as a I wish I could. The national insurance exchange for some reason killed that measure, the one hope to ensure an affordable premium.

Well, probably a public option. But, oh no, that would be some kind of socialism. But the bottom line is my girls' lives are threatened every day if they get some bad disease or are involved in some kind of bad accident.

We are not illegal immigrants, nor did we do anything but the right things to get ahead. So it is as bad as ever about health care access. I am sick to death of the obstruction technique of just doing nothing to change America.

It's hard to believe that the KKK was alive and well in my lifetime! And they were followed willingly by the John Birch Society. Race hatred must be the most cherished value by too many Americans, especially those in most of the states south of the Mason-Dixon line, except there are far fewer in Maryland.

Ninety-three percent of Americans believe that we are safer under Obama than before. Maybe America will at least come up to the top of the list of "Most Respected Nations" if we can return to living by good example, and not hateful threats. Perhaps better days for our children will come via the transformation actions of President Obama. Maybe it was true when he said in his Inauguration Day speech, "Change is here." I know my daughters believe in that hope.

A WAKE-UP CALL
The World Health Organization (WHO) recently issued a statement concerning nighttime noise in European countries that the rest of the world may want to note. According to WHO, 20 percent of Europeans are exposed to excessive noise overnight that has the potential of damaging their health. The recommended limit of nighttime noise is an average 40 decibels, which corresponds to a quiet street in a residential neighborhood. The statement indicated that experiencing slightly higher noise levels may prompt some tossing and turning in bed, causing bouts of insomnia and other mild side effects. Levels above 55 decibels (the noise of a busy street) may cause sleepers to experience more serious side effects, such as high blood pressure and heart attacks.
Our primary mission at AUDIBEL is to help as many people as possible improve their hearing and thus their lives. We hope to help the hearing impaired better enjoy the world through advanced technology, education, and friendly, compassionate service. For a knowledgeable understanding of the body's hearing mechanisms and a deep commitment to knowing what's available today to help each individual's hearing loss, call us or stop by to arrange a hearing test– the first step to better hearing.
P.S. The same ear protection (ear plugs) that people use during the day to protect themselves from excessive and prolonged daytime noise may prove to be equally worthwhile when worn at night.

Many of us define our role in life at an early age. Some of us scramble to be leaders...the rest are content to follow or to watch from the sidelines. We do not know all of the reasons why this is so, but a teacher can usually predict who will be the first with hands flying toward the ceiling, and who will sit quietly and wait.

Leaders take us where we need to go, but we need followers to complete the scene...supporting players...even in the spiritual sense. Followers show God's goodness in their lives by example. In this way they, too, become leaders of their peers. We read in Luke 22:26, "...the greatest among you should be like the youngest, and the one who rules like the one who serves." Though the minister, priest, or rabbi leads us in worship, there would be no service without a body of followers. Join the crowd at your house of worship this and every week!

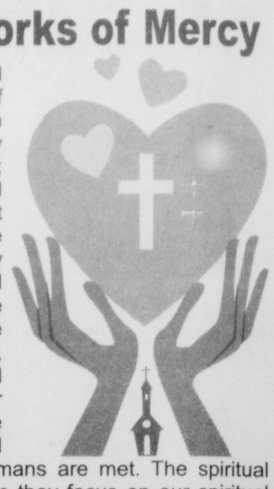
Spiritual Works of Mercy



Practicing the corporal and spiritual works of mercy should be an essential part of our daily practice of Christianity; we cannot be good Christians if we do not act as Christians ought. The corporal works of mercy are well-known: to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, shelter the homeless, visit the sick, ransom the captive, and bury the dead. Their practice insures that the temporary, physical needs of our fellow humans are met. The spiritual works of mercy, because they focus on our spiritual needs, are arguably more important, since they concern the well-being of our immortal souls. There are seven spiritual works of mercy: to warn the sinner; instruct the ignorant; counsel the doubtful; comfort the sorrowful; bear wrongs patiently; forgive all injuries; and pray for the living and the dead. Some of these works may require considerable tact and discretion in how, or even whether, they are carried out. One may not always have the means or the station in society to admonish sinners or instruct the ignorant, and our attempts to comfort the sorrowful may not be wanted. But, others are what are sometimes called "perfect" duties and must always be carried out. We must always bear wrongs patiently, and we are instructed to forgive all injuries. We should reflect on the spiritual works of mercy and how we can more fully implement them in our life.

But if any one has the world's goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God's love abide in him? Little children, let us not love in word or speech but in deed and in truth.

Prevention & Treatment of Type 2 Diabetes

Type 2 diabetes is a chronic health problem characterized by the abnormal metabolism of sugar, or glucose. Insulin is an important hormone that is responsible for moving glucose into body cells. Persons affected by type 2 diabetes do not respond properly to body insulin, or do not produce enough insulin. Common symptoms of the condition include increased thirst, increased hunger, and unexplained weight loss. Fatigue and blurred vision also may occur. Those who are overweight or are inactive are at a higher risk of developing type 2 diabetes.

Weight loss and increase in physical activity are recommended for the prevention of type 2 diabetes. A low carbohydrate or low-fat calorie-restricted diet may be recommended. Metformin is commonly prescribed for persons with this type of diabetes. This medication decreases the production of glucose by the liver. Sulfonylurea medications, such as glipizide, increase the production of insulin. Dipeptidyl-peptidase 4 (DPP-4) inhibitor medications, such as sitagliptan, also increase the production of insulin. It is recommended that persons with type 2 diabetes should also receive the pneumococcal vaccine and the influenza vaccine each year.

TV Pipeline

The anchor has been lifted on 'Three Rivers'

Alex O' Loughlin

Q: I really like "Three Rivers." Is it just on hiatus, or has it been canceled? –Shirley Rotolo, Leesburg, Fla.

A: "On hiatus" is the phrase CBS has been using for the Alex O'Loughlin-starring medical drama, but since there are no plans for any more episodes beyond the 13 originally ordered, "canceled" can be substituted. At this writing, there was no word on when (or if) the network intended to air the remaining stories.

Q: I'm a big fan of Gordon Ramsay. Will we see more of him? –Carol Jimerson, Gowanda, N.Y.

A: Not only will you see more of him, you'll see more of his "Kitchen Nightmares" as he tries to rescue restaurants destined to close otherwise. The Fox series is scheduled to begin a new season Jan. 29. Ramsay also is developing another show with Fox, "MasterChef," a contest designed to turn one of several casual cooks into - you guessed it - a MasterChef.

Q: About 20 years ago, there was a series starring Kate Jackson and Bruce Boxleitner called "Scarecrow and Mrs. King." I wonder if it is available today in any form. -Margaret Humleker, Fond du Lac, Wis.

A: It'll be available on DVD very soon, since Warner Home Video is slated to release the complete first season of the former CBS comedy-adventure show March 9. In the meantime, you can watch full episodes for free on the Internet at www.fancast.com; "Scarecrow" is part of the site's area labeled "Classic WB TV" (with the "WB" standing for Warner Bros., the studio that made the series).

Q: My husband insists that Mark Harmon was "Grasshopper" in the "Kung Fu" series many years ago. Can that be true? –Brigitte Pitkin, Seattle

A: No, it can't be. If the reference is to the younger version of central character Caine – who was played as an adult by David Carradine in the 1972-75 ABC show – that role was filled by Radames Pera.

Q: I am an avid fan of the show "Criminal Minds." Often during the program, the FBI agents will refer to the individual on whom they are forming a profile as the "unsub." Is that a term actually used by the FBI, and what does it stand for? – Claudine Holman, Oklahoma City

A: It's an actual term, and it stands for "unidentified subject." In fact, there was a similar series that was titled "Unsub," which NBC aired in 1989; David Soul ("Starsky & Hutch") played the sleuths' leader.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It was American humorist Evan Esar who came up the following definition: "Statistics: The only science that enables different experts using the same figures to draw different conclusions."

• The Emperor Charlemagne, who conquered much of Western and Central Europe during the first century, had an unusual relationship with his daughters. He refused to allow them to get married, but he evidently had no objections to their forming, shall we say, less formal relationships. He doted on his illegitimate grandchildren and even gave money and gifts to their fathers.

• If you look at a list of the names of the 50 states, you'll find every letter of the alphabet except Q.

• For reasons unknown, a law in New Jersey forbids the sale of cabbage on Sunday.

• You won't be surprised to learn that the most dangerous device that is common in the modern world is the automobile. You might be surprised to learn, though, that the second most dangerous is the stair step.

• You've probably never heard of Countess Rosa Branicka, but she accomplished an amazing feat. In the mid-19th century, at the age of 63, the wealthy Polish noblewoman became ill. The diagnosis given by experts in Germany was breast cancer, and immediate surgery was recommended. For reasons unknown, the countess declined the treatment, then set about purchasing her own surgical instruments. Once all the tools were assembled, Branicka checked into a hotel in Paris and removed the tumor herself. Reports indicate that she healed well and quickly, and lived to the ripe old age of 82.

• The only chemical element that is not a solid at a temperature of absolute zero is helium; it remains a liquid.

Q. I have a century-old Elgin pocket watch, and I understand that only about 2,000 of them were made at that time. What is the value of this watch? — Katelyn, Menomonie, Mich.

A. First, let's review a little history. The Elgin Watch Company was founded in 1864, and one of its first products was the 18 sized B.W. Raymond railroad grade watch. From about 1867 through the next 100 years, more than 60 million watches were produced by Elgin. This company might not have made the best watches in the marketplace, but it did provide consumers with watches that were durable and affordable. Elgin made its first wrist watch in about 1910. Students will receive an overview of Web 2.0 and learn the basics of search engine registration, analytics, online advertising, social networking, search engine optimization, etc.

The sessions are being facilitated by marketing consultant Jeff Scott. His goal is to show how to effectively promote a business online to attract more visitors and ultimately more customers and clients.

On Dean's List At Seton Hill

Laura Butner, Accident, has been named to the Seton Hill University dean's list for the fall 2009, according to provost and dean of faculty Dr. Mary Ann Gawelek.

In order to qualify for the list, a full-time undergraduate student must earn a semester grade point average of 3.7 or above of a possible 4.0.

Friendsville Man Sentenced To 90 Days For Theft

In recent Garrett County District Court proceedings, Christopher Blake Paugh, 20, Friendsville, was found guilty by Judge Leonard J. Eiswert of theft valued at less than $100, and was sentenced to 90 days and suspended fines.

It was reported that in October 2009, Maryland State Police were dispatched to a Friendsville residence for a reported overdose. Upon arrival, troopers were contacted by Paugh, who allegedly stated that he needed to go to jail because he had stolen a Fentynal patch out of his mother's car. He further stated that he then consumed the patch by chewing and swallowing it. The patch was estimated to have a value of $20.

Northern Garrett Rescue Squad responded to the scene and transported Paugh to Sacred Heart Hospital. He was not prosecuted on a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) possession not marijuana charge.

In an unrelated hearing, Brian Eugene Deem, 42, Oakland, was found guilty of failure to register as a Maryland sex offender, and was sentenced to 43 days, with 43 days' credit for time served, and $307.50 in fines.

Deem was already registered as a Md. sex offender, but was told that he needed to reregister with an officer every six months for life, with his next registration date being in October 2009. He allegedly did not show up to register, and officers made attempts to contact him from October to November 2009.

Deem was not prosecuted on eight charges of violation of a protective order, and one charge each of telephone misuse by repeated calls, harassment as a course of conduct, second-degree assault, false imprisonment, fourth-degree burglary, and trespassing on private property. These charges stemmed from a November 2009 incident involving other adults.

In another court proceeding, John Carl Quinn, 43, Oakland, was charged by Garrett County sheriff's officers in September 2009 of concealment of a dangerous weapon and having a handgun on his person. His charges were placed on stet with conditions to obey all laws and to forfeit his handgun to GCSO.

Ben Edward Nicol, 31, Accident, was charged in October 2009 for three counts of second-degree assault, stemming from a domestic dispute. His charges were placed on stet, and conditions were not given.

DUI/DWI HEARINGS

The following driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI) cases were heard in Garrett County District Court, with Judge Eiswert presiding.

Robert Franklin Myers, 44, W.Va., was found guilty for a DUI charge from October 2009, and was sentenced to one year with 355 days suspended, two years of supervised probation, and $157.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on charges of DUI per se and DWI.

Ryan Nicholas Conners, 23, W.Va., was found guilty of an August 2009 DWI charge, and was sentenced to 60 days with 54 days suspended, two years of supervised probation, and $307.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on a DUI charge.

Thurman David Timms Jr., 48, Md., was found guilty for a DWI charge from June 2009, and was sentenced to 60 days with 58 days suspended, 18 months of supervised probation, and $307.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on a DUI charge.

Robert Anthony Peretti, 53, Pa., was not prosecuted on September 2009 charges of DUI and DWI.

HART Fur Ball Attendees Help Ring In 2010

The second annual Fur Ball Gala, held at the Elks BPO Lodge in Oakland on Dec. 31, was a festive way for local residents and visitors to welcome the new year. Organized by HART for Animals to promote its mission of helping homeless animals, the Fur Ball was attended by 150 guests, in spite of the frigid weather.

Nina Tate-Elliott, HART's Fur Ball chairperson, described the evening as "unforgettable" and thanked the members of the decorating committee, under the direction of Candy DeGiovanni, for the "outstanding job" in converting the Elks Lodge into an "evening in Paris."

The ceiling was turned into a starry night sky by a combination of gossamer fabric and lights, and tables sported tall red centerpieces created for the occasion by a local florist shop.

The evening offered many activities – from dinner and dancing to a silent auction, a wine tasting, and a casino room. Music was provided by the 2nd Street Band, and couples danced after dinner until midnight.

The sit-down dinner was professionally catered. The company created delicacies in the shapes of animals and used animal names, such as "Chow Chow Dinner Menu" and "Yorkshire Salad," to create a whimsical menu.

The Silent Auction displayed items donated by area businesses and individuals. Local celebrity Darvin Moon, the second place finisher at the 2009 World Series of Poker, shared his experience and expertise with guests at the Casino, chaired by Eric Robison.

To underscore the reason for the Fur Ball, at the beginning of the evening, HART president Michael Pellet introduced a short video titled Life is a Gift. The video, produced by Michael Productions LLC of Miami, Fla., portrayed the bond between animals and humans and ended with HART's motto, "Saving Homeless Animals One Life at a Time."

"Many of the guests were visibly moved by the video presentation," said HART's development director, Mercedes Pellet.

HART for Animals Inc. is a 501(c) (3) non-profit organization. For additional information on its programs and Spay/Neuter Clinic, persons may visit hartforanimals.org or call 301-387-SPAY (7729).

GALA BENEFITS HOMELESS ANIMALS – The Oakland Elks Lodge was transformed into "An Evening in Paris" for HART's second annual Fur Ball on New Year's Eve. Gala attendees rang in the new year with dancing, dining, and other activities. Proceeds benefited HART's mission to help homeless animals. See story.

SOLD

Sandi,
There just aren't the right adjectives to express our appreciation for all you did to not only sell our townhouse, but in helping us to purchase a new home.
Our expectations were consistently exceeded. Negotiating some pretty outrageous last minute finagling. Keeping the 'deal' together when it seemed destined to fall apart. Not only acting in our best interest, but helping out the buyer of our townhouse.
You kept us informed every step of the way, never pressured, always clearly laying out the options. We are just thrilled with our new home and there is no doubt, it was because or your efforts. Nobody else could have done what you did, adding humor and a smile in everything you did.
I can't wait to recommend you to anyone that is thinking of buying in the Deep Creek area.
Take care,
The Cogan's

"Cervical Cancer Is Preventable," GC Health Department Stresses

January is Cervical Health Month, and Garrett County Health Department staff members are asking others to join them this month and pass the word: Cervical cancer is preventable.

"Of all cancers that affect women, cervical cancer is one of the most preventable," said a spokeswoman. "Yet, an estimated 70 women in Maryland will die because of the disease this year."

Cervical cancer is the cancer that affects the cervix, which is found at the lowest part of a woman's uterus. Cancer of the cervix usually forms slowly, as abnormal cells begin to change into a precancerous state.

If undetected and untreated, these abnormal cells can become cancer. Ninety-nine percent of cervical cancer cases are caused by the human papilloma virus (HPV), a group of viruses that can cause changes in the cells of the cervix.

When precancerous cells are found with a Pap test, they are treatable and cervical cancer can be prevented, stresses the Health Department. During the Pap test, a small sample of cells is taken from the cervix and checked under a microscope for abnormal cells.

"This test should be done regularly for women who are (or have been) sexually active and for all women who are older than 21 years of age," said the spokeswoman. "Remember, regular Pap tests can find cancer before it starts."

Additionally, two HPV vaccines have been approved for use in the United States for females 10 to 25 years of age.

"These vaccines have been shown to prevent the types of HPV infection that lead to cervical cancer," the spokesperson said. "With regular Pap test screenings for women and the HPV vaccine, we can save lives in Maryland. Take the month of January to pass the word."

The Garrett County Breast and Cervical Cancer Program offers Pap test screenings for eligible women who may not be able to afford them. For more information, women may call Sharon Rounds, RN, at 301-334-7692 or 301-895-3111.

GCCAC Head Start Program Currently Taking Applications

The Garrett County Community Action Committee (GCCAC) Head Start program is now taking applications for the current school year. Families with a child/children between the ages of 3 and 5 are encouraged to apply. Targeted areas for the recruitment of children are Kitzmiller, Friendsville, and the Pre-School Family Support Program, which serves families in the public school pre-k program. Applications are also being taken for children in other areas of Garrett County to maintain waiting lists for all centers.

Head Start is designed to provide low income children, age 3 to 5, with comprehensive services to meet their emotional, social, health, nutritional, and psychological needs. Children with disabilities are eligible, and at least 10% of the total enrollment is set aside for those with special needs. Families who have children with disabilities are encouraged to apply for this program. All families within the income guidelines established by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services are eligible.

The following information will be needed in order to have a complete application: proof of family income (pay stubs, tax forms, employer statement, etc.), eligible child's birth certificate, immunization (shot) record, and medical/insurance card. The child's latest reports of a physical exam and latest dental exam (within the last six months) should also be brought to the appointment.

GCCAC Head Start has centers that provide 9-month services or 12-month services to eligible children in Garrett County.

DOLLARS VS. DAYS

After you've taken step one to decide to sell your home, step two is choosing the REALTOR® that will best service your marketing leads.

Your chosen representative will perform a Competitive Market Analysis (CMA) to produce an estimate of your home's "fair market value," or that price that educated buyers will pay based on listings and sales of homes similar to yours. The agent will not establish the price, but only provide the information you need to make that decision yourself.

In a hot market, you have the advantage, but would still want to avoid overpricing, which is always unproductive. However, in a neutral or buyers market, you'll have to be particularly cautious in your approach to setting a price.

In soft markets, price reductions become more common, as well as fewer offers and longer listing periods. You have to first establish your priority: is it more important for you to sell quickly or to get the most money possible? Like it or not, one option simply must be more critical than the other.

Have your agent help you see your home as a commodity, with positive and negative selling points. Price your home objectively and competitively, be prepared to negotiate to reach an agreement with buyers, and exercise patience as you prepare your move.

If you are thinking of buying or selling a home but feel "out of touch" with real estate, give me a call at the office or on my cell at 301-501-DALE

FOP #99 MAKES DONATION – Fraternal Order of Police Lodge #99 recently made a donation to Cherry Hill Assisted Living and Goodwill Mennonite Home patients who may not have received Christmas presents because of their having no family members or limited income for family members. The FOP financed the project and was assisted by Garrett County Sheriff's Office deputy Terry Fischer, plus Brenda Reckner, Tina Tichnell, and Gloria Burns, with shopping, baking, and gift wrapping. Personnel from the each facility assisted with a wish list for the residents, who received personal gifts as well as candy and homemade cookies. FOP Lodge #99 donates approximately $10,000 to local youth teams, scholarships, etc., annually. Patty Knopsnyder, activities director for Goodwill Mennonite Home, is pictured above left receiving the donation from Dep. Fischer, also a member of FOP #99.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

HAND WARMERS
by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. When you're outdoors in the wintertime, those hand/foot warmers are really helpful. But there must be some special way that they heat up. How do they work?

A. On one level, the process going on inside a typical hand/foot warmer is nothing more than metal rusting. However, the trick is to have the chemical reaction take place at just the optimum rate to provide you with warmth over several hours.

The process of rusting is simply oxygen from air attaching to iron, to make iron oxide.

$Fe + O2 \rightarrow Fe2O3$ and/or FeO

The familiar brown powder that results is "rust." That totally natural reaction of oxidation releases heat as it proceeds forward – but you'd never notice the heat given off by an iron pipe rusting over many years. What is clever about hand warmers is that a mixture of other additional chemicals makes the reaction take place at a much faster rate, so that the heat is released fast enough to do you some good. But to be effective for wintertime, the reaction must not go forward too fast. Ideally, it will last several hours.

Inside the hand-warmer packet is a mixture of chemicals that include water, activated carbon, salt, vermiculite, cellulose, and iron. The reaction starts when air is allowed to come in contact with the iron in this mixture. Very small pieces of iron have a lot of surface area, allowing oxidation to take place quickly. If you've spent time near the ocean, you'll know that iron rusts faster in a mixture of salt water and air – a really tiny piece of iron could rust within an hour. In these little packets, the salt acts as a catalyst to speed up the oxidation process. That reaction is where the heat comes from.

The other chemicals are included to regulate the reaction rate in just the right way: The cellulose (polypro-pylene) slows down the mixing process; activated carbon moves heat around faster; and an insulator (vermiculite) slows down the exit of heat. The net result is a process that takes place over several hours, keeping your fingers or toes warm all that time.

Upon opening the external wrapper, to get the oxidation process started, you must shake the packet to mix the chemicals together. After a while, if the hand warmer seems to have lost effectiveness, you can shake it again, thus further mixing the chemicals, and it will generate more heat. But sooner or later, when all the iron is converted to iron oxide, there is no more oxidation chemistry, no more heat-release, and the hand-warmer stops working. Of course, if several hours have gone by while you've been skiing, your hands or feet have stayed comfortable. After that, you just throw the packet in the trash; there's no hazardous chemicals requiring special disposal.

The various manufacturers of these packets compete in the marketplace with different chemical combinations that act quicker or slower, but they're all intended to achieve the same purpose. A brand that seem too hot or not hot enough, or doesn't last long enough, won't get bought by a customer more than once.

For a hand warmer to have a long shelf life, the outer packaging has to be perfect. Should there be a slight air leak into the packet, the chemical process might have been going on ahead of time, and when you open the package and expect it to start warming your hands, not much will happen.

There are also hand warmers that act on a different principle having nothing to do with iron: When a substance changes from a liquid to a solid, it releases heat as it does so. This is called recrystallization. Water changing to ice is one obvious example. Certain chemicals make the liquid-to-solid transition at much warmer temperatures, and the heat given off can warm your hands in the same way as does the iron-oxide process. But generally these last for less time, maybe ½ hour. Hand warmers of this type can be recycled: Later on, put them in boiling water until the crystals melt back into the liquid state, and they're ready to go again.

Other types of handwarmers are for sale, too. Heat can be generated by drawing a current from an electrical battery, and if a rechargeable battery is used, that too is a reusable device. But it would rapidly become too expensive if you were to use non-rechargeable batteries.

Dr. Sheahen is a physicist who was educated at MIT. He lives at Deep Creek Lake and has taught physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

County Landfill, Airport Usage Down For 2009

Garrett County landfill usage was down last year, General Services director Gary Mullich told the county commissioners during a departmental update report on Tuesday afternoon. The director also reported on airport usage and a possible location for the roads department office.

Mullich said the amount of construction waste being brought to the landfill was down 21 percent in 2009, compared to the previous year.

"Municipal waste, which includes not only the towns but also the collection sites that we operate for the rural areas, is down 3 percent," the director said.

He added that commercial waste from businesses is also down 3 percent. Mullich pointed to the economy as the most likely reason for less waste, especially construction.

"But, oddly enough, there was one area of waste going into the landfill that increased in percentage, and that was land clearing debris," the director said.

Recycling has also increased. In 2008, 932 tons of recycling materials was collected at the county landfill and collection sites, compared to 946 tons last year, according to Mullich. Those amounts include electronics.

"It's not a moneymaker yet; it's still costing us money," Mullich noted about collecting materials and hauling them to recycling centers. He added the market for recyclables currently is "terrible."

To get a clearer picture, the director will review the cost of collecting/hauling each type of recyclable and compare that to what it would cost the county to just put it in the landfill.

Mullich and the commissioners noted that, in the long run, it would probably be cheaper to haul the recyclables away than dumping them in the landfill, given the high price of treating the materials and/or constructing a new landfill.

Mullich noted that the county has collected so many electronic recyclables that it has run out of its Environmental Protection Agency grant funds that cover disposal costs. Contrary to rumors, however, the county is still taking

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, OVER THE YEARS – Our Town Theatre will present Letters to the Editor next week, a readers' theatre event composed of a compilation of letters written to The Republican newspaper over the last 132+ years. The show, which was presented 10 years ago but has been updated with letter excerpts from the last decade, will be given at the theatre Jan. 28-30 at 8 p.m. and on Jan. 31 at 2 p.m. Jane Avery, director, and seven volunteers worked on the project in 1999, going through old issues of the paper and culling letters of interest. Avery then arranged them by subject, adding extra dialogue and connecting scenes. Some of the letter-writers mentioned in the show are as follows: Hub Swartzentruber, Liz Sharps, Hubert Friend, Tina Harvey, Ben Yoder, Walter T. Ashby, Richard Good, Joni J. Miller, Oscar Holling, Andrew Mance, and Jan Finkel, among others. A special presentation for high school students is scheduled for Jan. 27 at 8. Students at that performance will not be charged the $5 ticket price, and they may earn one hour of Service Learning for watching the production. Tickets for the other shows, and for adults accompanying the youth on Jan. 27, will be $5. Reservations are encouraged, and may be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640, ext. 1. The cast is pictured. Shown in the front row, left to right, are John Wilson, Mary McEwen, Matt Eary, and Liz Rees Gilbert. In the back, same order, are Richard Hill, Erin Peacock, and Don Sincell, editor of The Republican. The show is suitable for teens and adults, Avery said. Our Town Theatre is located at 121 Center Street in Oakland.

BPW Approves Preservation Of Forests Along Youghiogheny River Corridor

Gov. Martin O'Malley recently announced the Board of Public Works (BPW) approval of the acquisition of a 41-acre parcel in Youghiogheny Corridor in Garrett County. This property will provide a connecting point between the Youghiogheny Scenic and Wild River Corridor and the state-owned property of Deep Creek Lake at the dam.

"We are pleased to provide visitors much needed additional public access to the Youghiogheny Scenic and Wild River Corridor, a very popular location for fishing, whitewater kayaking, and hiking for Maryland families and visitors," said Governor O'Malley. "The shortage of access points along the river corridor presents challenges for public entry and recreation, complicates important maintenance tasks, and impedes progress of rescue teams and emergency vehicles."

The sale is made possible through a negotiated discount between the owners and the state. Funds in the amount of $609,000 were approved by the BPW and are provided through Program Open Space. The parcel is located within the Target Ecological Area (TEA), and has received a high ecological ranking of 108 under the Program Open Space Targeting System.

Governor O'Malley and the BPW have preserved more than 26,055 acres of natural areas for public recreation, and watershed and wildlife protection across Maryland since 2007. Program Open Space has provided funding for acquisition of 346,784 acres for open space and recreation areas since 1969. Most Maryland residents live within 15 minutes of an open space or recreational area funded by Program Open Space.

O'Malley Proposes Spending Cuts, Bond Sales To Close Budget Gap

by Brady Holt
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Gov. Martin O'Malley said Tuesday that the state should continue furloughs, lay off several dozen employees, raise college tuition, and transfer nearly a billion dollars from sources that include its capital fund in order to close a projected $2 billion budget shortfall.

O'Malley described his proposed fiscal year 2011 budget, which also includes a variety of other spending cuts, as a continuation of the "fiscal responsibility" he said has defined his administration.

"If you're not fiscally responsible, everything comes collapsing down like a house of cards," O'Malley said at a Tuesday afternoon press conference.

The state government has shrunk under his administration, O'Malley said, with $5.6 billion in total spending reductions over his term and the elimination of 3,500 positions – 202 this year alone – "in a state that's already pretty lean."

O'Malley proposes slashing $375 million from funding for state agencies and $330 million from assistance to local governments.

This year's proposed "reorganization/down-sizing" of state employees – including the elimination of 44 occupied and 158 vacant positions – would save $25 million, O'Malley said. Furloughs of remaining employees would trim $78 million.

The effects of the recession cut the state's projected revenue for the next fiscal year – which begins July 1 – to $12.7 billion in December. The next estimate will come out in March.

O'Malley largely spared education, proposing that half the budget be dedicated toward the state's public schools and universities as "an investment in the most important asset we have: the next generation of Maryland." An exception was a 3 percent increase in university tuition, ending O'Malley's four-year freeze.

The $5.7 billion O'Malley requested for education,

770 Acres In GC Protected By MET Easements

Maryland landowners protected 5,747 acres of farmland, woodland, and scenic open space in 2009 by agreeing to permanent conservation easements with the Maryland Environmental Trust (MET). The 24 properties are located in 11 counties across Maryland. The easements are intended to protect habitat, wetlands, forests, and farms, and help to restore the Chesapeake Bay. The 24 easements, many jointly held with MET's local land trust partners, include 770 acres in Garrett County.

"This accomplishment demonstrates that Marylanders care deeply about the preservation of open space and that the state has one of the strongest statewide land trusts in the nation," said Gov. Martin O'Malley.

A statewide land trust governed by a citizen board of trustees and affiliated with the Department of Natural Resources, the Maryland Environmental Trust was established in 1967 by the Maryland General Assembly. MET is one of the oldest and most successful land trusts in the country. It holds over 1,000 conservation easements and has protected over 122,000 acres across the state. MET promotes the protection of open land through its Land Conservation Program, Monitoring and Stewardship Program and Local Land Trust Assistance Program. MET also provides grants to environmental education projects through the Keep Maryland Beautiful Program.

For more information, persons should visit the web site www.dnr.maryland.gov/met.

Md. Cutting County Disparity Grants; Garrett To Fare Better Than Others

With the fiscal year 2011 budget draft process under way, Garrett County Financial Services director Wendy Yoder is keeping an even closer eye on state reductions. She reviewed the most recent cut for the county commissioners during a departmental update report on Tuesday.

Just last week, Yoder received notification that state disparity grants will be reduced "across the board" in FY 2011. Grants are given to counties that do not meet at least 75 percent of the statewide average of local income tax revenues. Grant funding, however, is partly based on the state's capital gains and investments income.

In FY 2010, revenue is down almost $200 million from the previous year. As a result, the eight counties that traditionally receive disparity grants will have their allocations reduced. Garrett County is among them.

But Yoder said Garrett is lucky compared to most counties, especially Prince George's, which is facing an 84 percent decrease. That county will receive $3.4 million in FY 2011, compared to $22 million the previous year.

"Our cut represented a 4 percent decrease over this current year, and it amounted to about $75,000," Yoder said about Garrett.

The cuts are most likely permanent. Last year, the General Assembly capped funding at the counties' FY 2010 levels.

"Which means that anytime in the future we cannot receive more than $2,131,271, which is what we're receiving this year," Yoder said.

The director also reported on the status of the Maryland Teachers Pension Fund, which has traditionally been covered 100 percent by the state. Given current economic conditions, however, Maryland officials plan to turn over all or part of the fund's financial responsibility to counties in FY 2011. That idea has been deferred.

"But look out in [FY]2012," Yoder told the commissioners.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg indicated that politics may be behind the delay.

"If it's untouchable in an election year, why would it not be untouchable in another year?" he rhetorically asked.

Commissioner Fred Holliday indicated counties need to "work especially hard" with their legislative representatives to keep pension funding responsibility from being passed down to them.

Yoder also reported she was working on revising the county's supplemental tax credit, which the commissioners launched last year. Homeowners age 65 or over who have lived in the county for at least 10 years, meet certain gross income/tax liability levels, and also qualify for the state credit are eligible for the local tax break.

Last year, however, several local seniors did not meet state income/tax liability levels. As a result, they did not qualify for the county's current program. The commissioners, therefore, asked Yoder to revise the plan.

"There were some people that you felt were on the low end of the gross income spectrum, that you would like to help out in some way," Yoder reminded commissioners.

As a result, the director created three possible scenarios that would enable some seniors to receive the local credit, even though they may not qualify for the state one. Yoder will present her ideas to state assessment officials. After receiving feedback from them, she and the commissioners will come up with the revised local program.

Commissioner Denny Glotfelty indicated the whole idea of the tax credit is to help the poorest senior citizens. He used the example of a widow who practically has to resort to eating dog food.

"They'll pay their taxes before they'll eat," he said about proud, civic-minded seniors. "That's who we're trying to help."

About 30 more seniors may qualify for the local credit under the revised program.

Commissioners Award Bid For Thayerville Proj.

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners awarded a bid on Tuesday for engineering services pertaining to the Thayerville Water Distribution System Project. By a vote of two to one, the board approved the $225,495 bid submitted by RK&K Engineers of Keyser, W.Va.

Buyer Charlie Junkins, Garrett County Purchasing Department, said bids were due on Dec. 8, 2009. Ten bids were submitted to his office.

Junkins said a county selection committee interviewed the top four firms – Century Engineering,

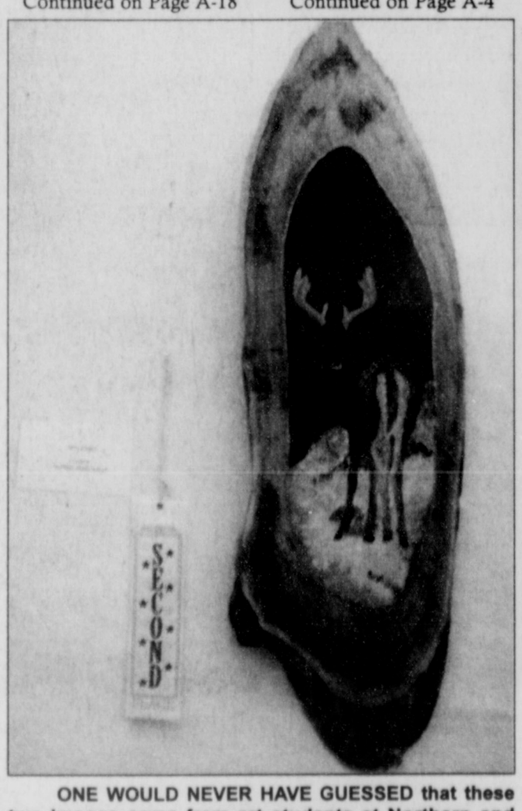
GCMH AND LOCAL SURGEON DONATE TO HAITI – Garrett County Memorial Hospital and Dr. Dona Alvarez joined forces with a donation of medical supplies to help with the rescue efforts in Haiti. Hospital officials expressed their concern and compassion for the many people who need immediate medical care as a result of the recent earthquake. Alvarez, a local surgeon, has traveled extensively to Third World countries to provide medical services and to transport donated medical supplies and equipment to those less fortunate. From left, preparing the supplies for transport, are Sandy Kulak, GCMH director of materials management; Alvarez; and Elaine Geroski, RN, GCMH director of surgical services.



ONE WOULD NEVER HAVE GUESSED that these two images came from art students at Northern and Southern Middle schools, who entered their work into the annual GFWC Civic Club and Garrett County Arts Council's Youth Art Exhibit, now being shown at the The Gallery Shop on Alder Street. Aerra Wright, an 8th grader at NMS, entered her woodwork, above left, into the contest and received a second place. Leah Ringer's "pop art" piece, above, earned a first place ribbon. She is a 7th grader at SMS. The contest features work from Northern Middle, Southern Middle, and Southern High school students, and was open to all Garrett County middle and high school students. Contest winners will advance to the district competition, and from there, the top pieces will be entered into the state competition. The exhibit opened on Jan. 15, and will be up until Feb. 6, with viewing times of Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Photos by Angie Sincell.

SHS Raising Funds To Help Haiti's Earthquake Victims

The contemporary problems class at Southern High School is conducting a campaign to help provide relief for victims of the deadly earthquake that struck Haiti last Tuesday.

The students have named their campaign Southern High Helping Haiti. Their goal is to collect $1,500 by the end of this week by asking each person who enters Southern High School for any reason to donate at least $1 by tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 22. These students have produced a video to educate and motivate students to understand the needs for those struggling to rebuild their lives in Haiti.

These same students will be helping teachers collect money during school and have also volunteered to help collect money at the girls' and boys' Northern vs. Southern basketball games and the wrestling tournament this week at Southern High School. The proceeds from this effort will be added to the totals raised by the other 1,600 schools in Maryland as part of the Maryland State Department of Education's Maryland Kids Care Campaign: Operation Haiti.

Anyone in the general public wishing to make a contribution may stop by the main office at Southern High School, and the school secretary will add the contribution to the collection. Dave Bender may also be contacted at 301-334-9447.

Md. Attorney General Offers Advice On Donating To Haitian Earthquake Victims

Attorney General Douglas F. Gansler is advising Marylanders to be cautious about the relief organizations that they choose to give donations to for the victims of the recent Haitian earthquake.

"Unfortunately, there are unscrupulous folks that will view this time as a way to capitalize on the generosity and compassion intended for Haitians affected during this disaster," said Gansler. "Be on the lookout for possible scams to verify that a relief organization is legitimate before donating."

Consumers wishing to make donations to victims of the Haitian earthquake should confirm before making their donations that the charity allows donations to be earmarked for this disaster.

The attorney general offers the following suggestions to consumers who wish to make donations to victims of the Haitian earthquake:

• Make donations to established charities.

• Do not make cash donations – use credit cards or checks.

• Check if the charity (and paid fundraiser, if one is used) is registered with the Maryland secretary of state.

• Ask how much of the donation goes toward the charitable work and how much goes toward administrative costs or the fundraising company contacting the consumer.

Consumers should be skeptical of unsolicited e-mail requesting donations from organizations that they do not recognize or that have been organized solely in response to the Haitian earthquake.

Donors should be wary in general of solicitations that require personal information. Bogus charities often use names and logos that closely resemble those of other more well-known organizations; donors should make sure that they are giving their donations to the correct organization.

Be wary of in-person solicitors who demand an immediate payment or solicitors who offer to send a courier to pick up checks before a consumer can change his/her mind.

Donors have the right to ask as many questions as necessary to make an informed decision about whether or not to donate. If the charity resists answering questions, Marylanders should not donate money.

The attorney general asks that consumers consider visiting relief web sites set up by well-known and legitimate charities such as the American Red Cross (redcross.org/en/). In addition, the Center for International Disaster Information (http://www.cidi.org/-incident/haiti-10a/) or InterAction (http:www.-interaction.org/crisis-list/-earthquake-haiti) offer links to other recognized charities that are providing relief for the Haitian victims.

For more information regarding charitable giving, consumers can visit the attorney general's web site at www.oag.state.md.us/-consumer/tip42.htm.

If consumers have any questions concerning a charity, they are asked to call the Charitable Organizations Division of the Maryland secretary of state's office at 1-800-825-4510 or visit www.-sos.state.md.us/charity/-charityhome.aspx.

Local Charged With Driving While Impaired

An Oakland man was arrested following a traffic stop conducted by Garrett County sheriff's deputies last evening. The stop was made on 8th Street in Oakland for several traffic violations.

The driver was identified as Richard Allen DeBerry, 28, and investigation revealed him to be driving while impaired by a controlled dangerous substance. He was taken to the Garrett County Detention Center.

Dewberry is charged with DWI by drugs, DWI by CDS, and negligent driving. He was taken to a judicial officer at the District Court commissioner's office, where he was released on personal recognizance.

Man Charged With DUI After Overturning Car

An Oakland man was arrested by Maryland State Police following a single-vehicle mishap on Rt. 50 early Saturday morning.

Joshua Aaron Donoghue, 25, was identified as the driver of the 2007 Pontiac Grand Prix involved in the accident. Donoghue lost control of the vehicle, which impacted the bridge at the Rt. 560 intersection and then overturned. He was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries. Gorman Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the 1:30 a.m. scene.

He is charged with driving under the influence, driving while impaired, failure to reduce speed in dangerous highway conditions, negligent driving, and failure to be restrained by a seatbelt.

Trucker Charged With Possession Of Marijuana

A South Carolina truck driver was arrested by Maryland State Police after his tractor trailer was detected to be overweight at the Finzel Weight and Inspection Station.

Driver Damorris Rice, 30, was ordered to the rear of the parking lot of the scale house for further inspection. When contact was made with Rice, MSP Tfc. Stakem detected an odor of marijuana coming from the cab area. A small amount of suspected marijuana was eventually located.

Rice is charged with possession of marijuana, as well as the initial overweight charge and a driver's logbook violation. He was taken to the McHenry Barrack for processing before being taken to the District Court commissioner's office.

Failure To Yield Causes Two-Vehicle Accident

Two passengers were injured in a two-vehicle accident this past Monday. They were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad. Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to the 10:30 a.m. scene.

Investigation revealed the Edward Gera had been stopped on Swanton Road, at the Maryland Highway intersection. He conducted a left turn and entered the path of an oncoming vehicle. His passengers, Kathleen Gera and a female juvenile, were reported to be injured. Gera was cited for failure to yield to oncoming traffic on left turn.

Leatherman Web Site Clarification

Clarification is needed on the story about Daniel Leatherman's request for "charity: water" donations to provide clean, safe water a community in a developing nation. The web site address for donation was inadvertently printed with hyphens. The correct address is http://mycharitywater.org/oaklandmd, without any hyphens.

QUILTERS MAKE NUMEROUS DONATIONS – The Grantville Quilters, who meet every Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at the Grantsville Senior Center, have made numerous donations to the center, as well as the Meals on Wheels Program. The women meet for 3 to 6 hours each work day, and they complete quilts for people in the community for a fee. The proceeds fund projects, programs, and activities to benefit the senior population in Grantsville. To complete these 29 quilts, the quilters used 7,550 yards of thread. Most proceeds are donated to the Grantsville Senior Center. They purchased a birthday cake for the monthly participant birthday celebrations last year, which amounted to $270 for cakes. They also contributed $480 to the Grantsville Activity Fund, which paid for pizza parties, prizes, and party platters for picnics and other celebrations. A $755 check was also given by the quitters to Meals on Wheels. The group recently celebrated their accomplishments, where they donated checks, handed out prizes, provided goodies and birthday cake, and paid for all of the lunches of those who attended. From left, beginning with the front row, are Minnie Bittinger and Anna Maust. Back row: Patsy Bailey, Elda Beitzel, Pat Adams, and Stella Swauger. Below is Bittinger, coordinator of the group, presenting a donation to Suzanne Carley, senior center operations director.

Michael Wayne Wilburn, 49, was identified as the driver of the vehicle, which was stopped along the 5000 block of National Pike, Grantsville. It was known by police that Wilburn's license was revoked/suspended.

He is charged with driving on a suspended and revoked license. He was taken into custody to await an appearance before the District Court commissioner.

Man Arrested On DUI, DWI, And Related Charges

Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested an Oakland man after he was discovered to be driving under the influence of alcohol.

Deputies stopped a vehicle on Garrett Highway near Nest Lick Acres for a speeding violation and failure to drive right of center. The driver was identified as David John Kutchman, 56. Further investigation revealed probable cause to charge him with DUI.

He was taken to the Garrett County Detention Center. He is charged with DUI, DUI per se, driving while impaired, and failure to drive right of center. Kutchman was presented to a judicial officer at the District Court commissioner's office for an initial appearance. He was released on personal recognizance.

School Districts Request Money For Construction

by Daniel Leaderman
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – School systems from all over the state asked the Board of Public Works for more money Wednesday, hoping to get some, or all, of $62.5 million in unallocated funds for school construction.

Education leaders from 18 counties took part in the annual event, now called the "hope-a-thon" but formerly known as the "beg-a-thon."

The unallocated construction funds are part of a total $250 million for school construction in the state budget. Gov. Martin O'Malley's proposed fiscal year 2011 budget, released Wednesday, included a record $5.7 billion for K-12 education.

Even so, there just wasn't enough money at the hope-a-thon for each district to walk away happy. Some requests far exceeded the total amount to be given out.

Baltimore County, for example, requested $118 million for construction and renovation projects specifically targeted at reducing overcrowding in Towson-area schools, while Prince George's asked for $55 million, part of which would fund new schools in Hyattsville and Fairwood.

Baltimore schools asked for $70 million in additional funds.

"Our original (request) was $89 million, so we're asking for the whole thing," said Andres Alonso, CEO of Baltimore City Public Schools. "I think we've been granted $19 million so far."

Alonso said he knows that Baltimore won't get the full $89 million, but explained that even if it did, the money would support only a fraction of the city's school renovation needs.

"A boiler costs about a million and a half dollars," Alonso said. "So if you're talking about renovating a whole new school that's about $30 million. So $89 million gets you two schools renovated or it might get you a boiler and window projects in 20 schools."

Alonso said Baltimore was in particular need of school construction funds.

"We have the oldest infrastructure in the state and many decades of deferred maintenance. We're always balancing the need to make sure that the kids are getting heat with the need to bring something new to a community," he said.

State Comptroller Peter Franchot likened the outsized requests for funds to "way too many pounds of potatoes trying to be put in a very small sack" and tried to brace the districts for potentially tighter budgets in the future.

"They're focused on new schools today, but I think it's getting through that we're not going to have a huge amount of money down the road," Franchot said.

The comptroller emphasized that school districts should focus on upkeep of existing buildings rather than building new ones.

"There are a lot of facilities out there that are not going to get funded," Franchot said. "Making sure that what you've got is preserved for as long as it can be is important."

"I'm saying to the districts that we're in an age of austerity," Franchot said. "At some point it's going to be reflected in even lower amounts than we're seeing now for school construction. We're going to have to live within our means and extend the life of some of these buildings."

Garrett, Caroline, Kent, Talbot, Somerset and Worcester counties did not request any of the additional funds.

A Fascinating Ride...

A truly unique program will open on the Our Town Theatre stage in Oakland next week, a presentation that will take audiences on a fascinating ride through the remarkable history of Garrett County. This will be accomplished by resurrecting the thoughts and opinions expressed by local people through their letters to the editor of this publication over the past 133 years.

As with many communities throughout the nation, there is no better record of their history – certainly a no more detailed record – than the pages of the local newspaper. And the older the paper, obviously the more history is captured in print. The Republican is nearing its 133rd anniversary, and having never missed a single week of publication, a printed account of Garrett County's week-to-week events and issues of the past 6,900 weeks is in existence.

While only a tiny percentage of the literally thousands of letters to the editor of The Republican will be shared, program writer/compiler/director Jane Avery has done a masterful job in selecting those that cover a wide variety of issues, controversies, and events of the past. Audience members will find that while the issues are different, depending upon the particular year or decade that the letter was written, we human beings really have not changed much over the past one and a third centuries. The presentation will evoke a host of emotions in viewers, ranging from laughter to, yes, maybe even a tear or two.

Those who are middle aged and older, and who remember not only many of the issues of the past, but also some of the letter writers, should enjoy the presentation for that reason. In this time of such rapidly changing communication technology, it is hoped that the iPod/cell phone-toting younger members of the community will find the program to be both enjoyable and a real learning experience. Newcomers to the area, who really do not know our past, will also leave the theatre enlightened.

Further, it is important to pay tribute to folks who take the time to sit down and compose a letter to the editor, for it takes not only time and thought, but it also requires great courage. Some 30,000 people read this newspaper every week, people of all different walks of life. Writing one's personal opinion – "exposing oneself" in this way – in front of an audience of that magnitude, and thus possibly setting oneself up for public ridicule and criticism, is pretty daunting. But doing so not only makes one literally a part of our history, but more importantly, can actually help shape that history and, it is hoped, forever enhance the quality of life in the community.

Hope to see you at the show.

Letters to the Editor

Writers of letters to the editor are reminded that letters will not be published if they exceed 400 words, do not include contact information, and/or are deemed to be libelous.

To the Editor:

This letter concerns the reporting of employee accidents at the Wisp Ski Resort.

My son Kevan Monn was a victim of the first accident on Dec. 16. He was run over by a snow groomer. Not only was it not reported at all at the time, but when reported this past week it was presented as almost a minor incident. The article said that the injuries were not life-threatening. Actually, Kevan was airlifted to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown with multiple broken and crushed bones, bruised internal organs, and lacerations requiring blood, plasma, and saline replacement. His condition was not stable enough to undergo surgery until the next day. Even then he needed resuscitation twice on the operating table. His life was definitely threatened.

In spite of the seriousness of his injuries, he retained consciousness and directed fellow employees in finding the jack, placing it, and lifting the machine off him. He also directed placing tourniquets on his legs to control bleeding. His knowledge of rescue operations went a long way to saving his life.

We are grateful to the Northern Rescue Squad, the Life Flight crew from Pittsburgh, and others for their quick response and professionalism in getting him urgent medical care with all possible speed. Also to the staffs of Garrett County Memorial and Ruby Memorial hospitals for great medical expertise and care.

Kevan is currently at home with many handicap assists, undergoing therapy, and facing a very extensive recovery.

Thank you,
Jean Durst

Dear Mrs. Durst,

Just to clarify, what appeared in the story about these accidents is precisely the information that was reported to our newsroom by a spokesperson for the Wisp. Unfortunately, in this new day and age of litigation and new confidentiality laws, emergency care respondents and hospitals are no longer legally allowed to provide specific injury information to the media.

We thank you for your sharing of this information about your son's injuries.

To the Editor:

The Department of Public Utilities has requested that this summary be published relative to commentary on the Deep Creek Lake Sewer System.

The Deep Creek Lake Sewer System has in excess of 30 miles of sewer lines, and is primarily a pressure type system with a few areas of conventional gravity collection lines. Wastewater flows by gravity from dwellings/structures to a vault containing a grinder pump. Once the level in the vault reaches a certain level, the waste is pumped into the main sewer line. Because of the terrain, 17 main line pump stations are required to relay the waste to the wastewater treatment plant.

Odors are created when oxygen levels are depleted in the wastewater because of naturally occurring bacteriological action, and hydrosulfide is converted from a liquid form to hydrogen sulfide gas. A variety of factors contribute to increased sulfides, including longer retention times in the collection system. Because of the expansive area that the collection system covers, the time it takes wastewater to travel from the source to the wastewater treatment allows for creation of the hydrogen sulfide gas, and the lower the flows, the longer the detention time. In 2009 the system experienced approximately a 35% decrease in wastewater flows, most likely attributable to the economy and decreased tourism. Also, installation of newer low-flow plumbing fixtures adds to the decreased discharge.

The Department of Public Utilities does not intentionally vent the odorous gases into the atmosphere. To the contrary, we have addressed the odor problem since the start-up of the sewer system and are continually looking for and testing new methods for odor control.

We installed iron filling-wood chip trenches at the main-line pump stations in order to filter gases, we add caustic soda at various points on the collection system to increase the pH which inhibits the naturally occurring growth of sulfide producing bacteria, and we also utilize a ventilation and odor control system that neutralizes odors utilizing a blend of natural biodegradable essential plant oils.

We are also currently evaluating a new chemical to replace the caustic soda which is more cost-effective and reportedly a safer non-hazardous product. Unfortunately, the system is not completely airtight, and it is extremely difficult to capture and treat all gases emitted from the system. However, we are very conscious of the issue and are constantly striving to improve treatment methods in order to control odors.

Sincerely,
Monty Pagenhardt
Garrett Co. Administrator

To the Editor:

As we all feel so helpless, I decided to run some numbers, which are totally incredible. Once you see them you too will be exasperated and hopefully write your Congressman and Senators and even local commissioners.

Our country is wasting 2 billion dollars a week engaging in wars where we should not be. If we would stop them, and begin a humanitarian operation we could:

In one week, provide every family in Haiti with a $50 water filter, which will provide 10 gallons daily for each family. Total cost for all of Haiti – $900,000,000. Stop the wars for one week and you have provided life-saving water. These filters are easily maintained and last for years! In Guatemala and Honduras we have been providing these filters for years, and they are saving lives by the thousands.

Next easy project: In Central America we can build a concrete house which houses an average family of 5 for $1,500! We help the people build their own houses and they have a wonderful incentive. A basic house (not like ours now).

Now, if our country will stop the wars for two weeks, we can build a house for every – that is every – Haitian family within two weeks. With 1,800,000 families at $1,500 each, we have $2,700,000,000, or 2.7 billion dollars. In less than two weeks we could provide funds for a house for each family in Haiti!

What a tragedy the way we waste money and our kids' lives, when we invade every country we do not like, with the pretense that we have to kill them before they kill us. Aren't lives worth more? Aren't our labors better directed in helping others?

While you are digesting the above, listen to this: If we stop the wars for nine weeks, we could provide free health insurance for every family in America who has no insurance today! Every year!

Finally, in Garrett County, if we skip one $5 million building project, which the commissioners think we need (projects which will require maintenance forever), we could immediately provide 100,000 families in Haiti with water filters! That means we would be providing 500,000 people with clean drinking water, and what would we, here in Garrett County, be going without? Nothing, if we don't build another 5 million dollar building we will not miss it.

Let's begin to look at what we can do for others!

The director said the firm in Morgantown, W.Va., that the county has been dealing with has agreed to take items free of charge for another two months.

"So that gives us until April to come up with another plan," Mullich said.

Garrett County Airport usage is also down.

"That doesn't surprise us, because of the economy," the director said.

Mullich reported that in 2009, the average daily number of flights was 7.85, compared to 9.6 in '08, and 6.6 in '07.

"Although we're down, we're better [off] than before we did the expansion projects," he said.

Airport sales revenue, which includes hangar rental and jet fuel sales, is also down. In 2007, gross revenue was $107,000. In 2008 it was $228,000, but revenue decreased last year to $183,000, according to Mullich.

A J-Student's Perspective

By Stephanie Weaver

"Journalists are modern-day historians," Kevin Blackistone, award-winning columnist, panelist for ESPN, and the Shirley Povich chair of the Philip Merrill College of Journalism, said to a roomful of students in my journalism orientation class at the University of Maryland this past fall. He went on to explain how we are witnessing history every day, and the job of a journalist is to record this history.

I never considered myself a journalist until Blackistone's visit to my class. I was in school to learn to be a journalist; how could I possibly be making or have already made history? I was overlooking the contributions I made as a student journalist.

While attending Southern Garrett High School, I wrote for The Acorn, a student publication that has been a major influence at SHS for 82 years. During my first year as a staff writer, The Acorn changed from a cut-and-paste layout system to Adobe InDesign, a layout system for the computer. This completely changed how the newspaper was produced. Gone were the days of scissors and glue, replaced with computer monitors and keyboards.

During my senior year of high school, The Acorn celebrated its 80th anniversary. The staff created a special anniversary edition, complete with several articles from the different decades The Acorn had been published.

I wrote for the Lakeside Edition during my freshmen year of college at Garrett College. The Lakeside Edition was only published during the spring semester, but the few issues produced helped to record history. We wrote articles about Obama's inauguration and issues affecting the college at the time, such as a change in administration. The Lakeside Edition also included students' literary contributions in the form of stories, poems, and essays.

Past and future students can look back to the past editions of The Acorn and the Lakeside Edition. There is no doubt that both of these publications have aided their institutions as a major student voice.

When I think of Blackistone's statement, I immediately think of The Republican. The newspaper dates back to the 1870s and has been one of the main sources for Garrett County news ever since. The weekly publication is essential for state and local news. It provides day-to-day information, including important dates affecting education, health, and recreation. It also serves as a forum for public opinion. Many residents, and even non-residents, write letters to the editor to voice their opinions and raise issues in the community.

With newspapers disappearing left and right, the future of print journalism is up in the air. The way people obtain news is changing since news can be accessed from laptops, Blackberries, and I-phones. Technology is playing a major role in the evolution of journalism.

To those skeptics who believe the death of journalism is upon us, I say journalism will survive. From drawings on cave walls to the invention of the first printing press, journalism has been evolving. It continues to evolve through the ever-changing technology.

The inked pen may not survive, but the power it contains will continue to make an impact.

Editor's note: Stephanie Weaver is a journalism major at the University of Maryland. A 2008 graduate of Southern High School, she is now in her sophomore year. Stephanie assisted at The Republican newspaper office over the past two weeks, gaining "hands-on" experience. We appreciate her help, as well as her perspective on the industry, and we wish her well in all her pursuits.

Usage Down

He noted that the decline, in part, was because of three hangar vacancies and cheaper jet fuel prices.

Mullich also reported on his search for a temporary administration office for the Roads Department. The county plans to construct a public works administration building at its Public Works Complex near Mtn. Lake Park. The building is to include offices for the county's Public Utilities Department, Permits and Inspections Division, and Roads Department. Priced at more than $3 million, the project has been deferred by the county until economic conditions improve.

But until then, the Roads Department needs a new administrative office, as its current one in Oakland will be demolished to make room for a road that will give access to a Dairy Queen and a new Clear Mountain bank.

One possible location is the state's former animal health lab, located next door to the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Mullich said it will take about $15,000 to renovate the lab, which includes moving a wall, painting, and deodorizing.

"That's a lot less than I would have guessed," Commissioner Ernie Gregg said.

The county has also looked at another more costly option, constructing an entirely new Roads Department office building. The cost of that project is $240,000. Mullich said he has pretty much ruled that option out, given the others that are available.

Commissioner Denny Glotfelty asked Mullich if the lab could be made air tight to prevent noise from the shelter going into the office and distracting workers there.

"That's the only problem I have with it – noise pollution," Glotfelty said about renovating the facility.

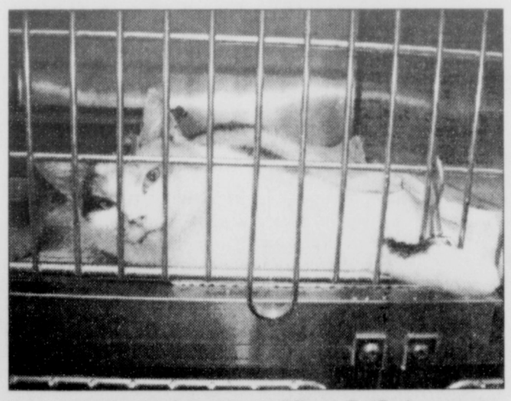
Mullich said that was on his list of concerns about the lab, and he would look into the issue.

He indicated there was time to look at various office options, as Roads Department employees will not have to vacate their current space until late summer. Building demolition and road construction is expected to start in August or September.

Mullich added that grant funding is available for the construction and demolition.

The commissioners' next public meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 26, beginning at 9 a.m.

Adorable Adoptables



"YOWL! GET ME OUT OF HERE, PLEASE!" This nice orange and white tabby (above left) is being very vocal about his current homeless situation. He and many other pets are available for adoption at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. They include a very laid back female calico that was rescued from inside a ceiling of a business; an energetic male husky that was picked up as a stray without a collar and tags last week; and a female hound-beagle mix that has been at the shelter for weeks ever since her puppies were adopted. "These and many others are available for adoption both locally and at surrounding area shelters," said the spokesperson. "Go to Petfinder.com to find the 'purr-fect' pet for you. This has been a busy winter for the shelter, with many intakes and few adoptions and reclaims. HART will be taking out a few dogs and cats to rescue this weekend since the shelter is pretty full with no room to spare. The animal shelter staff need blankets and rugs for the dogs to lie on. If you have any you need to get rid of, please drop them off at the shelter." For more information, persons may call the facility at 301-334-3553. Located along Oakland Sang Run Road. The shelter is open Monday through Friday.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Army Spec. Michael G. Nicely has returned to the 84th Engineer Battalion (Combat Heavy), Fort Richardson, Anchorage, Alaska, after being deployed overseas at a forward operating base to serve in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Operation Iraqi Freedom is the official name given to military operations involving members of the U.S. armed forces and coalition forces participating in efforts to free and secure Iraq. Mission objectives focus on force protection, peacekeeping, stabilization, security, and counter-insurgency operations as the Iraqi transitional governing bodies assume full sovereign powers to govern Iraq.

Members from all branches of the U.S. military and multinational forces are also assisting in rebuilding Iraq's economic and governmental infrastructure, and training and preparing Iraqi military and security forces to assume full authority and responsibility in defending and preserving Iraq's sovereignty and independence as a democracy.

Nicely, a masonry specialist, received an Army Commendation Medal for his service in Iraq. He has three years of military service.

The soldier is the son of Vicky A. Nicely and Gary Lee Shapperd of Mount Savage. His wife Shannon is the daughter of Carylion Elliot, Oakland.

DONATION MADE TO MEALS ON WHEELS – A donation of $62 was recently presented to Adina Brode, director of the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging, for the Meals on Wheels Program. The funds were raised by members of the Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center through a simple project set up by member Pat McNalley. "I thought it would be fun for each of us to bring in Christmas decorations that we no longer use and display them with a container for donations. We did this for a couple of weeks before Christmas," said McNalley. "Everyone found something they could use from candles to tree ornaments." The members have decided to keep this mini-flea market going year-round to be able to keep giving small donations. Pictured is Brode, left, receiving the donation from McNalley on behalf of the members. For more information on the Home Delivered Meal Program, persons may call 301-334-9431, ext. 140.

A REAL EAR FOR HEARING MUSIC

Is it true that some people are born with a better ear for hearing music? After all, research shows that serious musicians display superior ability at perceiving and remembering sounds. However, more recent research shows that musicians do not have better ears, but they train their brains to perform certain listening tasks. Specifically, musicians can pick out the sound of their own instrument from the sound of an entire orchestra. Tests indicate that certain sounds stimulate musicians' brains to produce stronger electrical signals, which enable them to more accurately assess pitch, timing, and tone quality (three factors that enable the average person to pick out a voice in a noisy room). This finding may lead to improved hearing instrument technology.

At AUDIBEL, one of our most important jobs is to keep up-to-date on the latest technological advances in hearing instruments. If it has been determined that a hearing aid will be of benefit to you, let us help in the selection of the one that is right for your hearing loss and your lifestyle. We carry a full range of hearing aids to ensure the most appropriate match between hearing aid and wearer.

P.S. While ears gather sound and funnel signals through the nervous system, the brain interprets these signals and makes sense of them.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

I think that the January thaw is really here. It was almost warm ... certainly above the freezing mark. I could hardly believe it when I opened my front door to let Boo out, and saw that all the snow on the deck had melted away. And we even saw some sunshine. It is a big relief, even if it only lasts a week or so.

Imagine if you are without any shelter in 90-degree heat, surrounded by a mass of dead bodies blocking the road, and the stench of death everywhere, as conditions are right now in Haiti. No one can even guess the number of dead, but thousands upon thousands. After being buried for a week, it is almost hopeless that they will be rescued. But there is little water or food, and there are serious injuries. Even today, they are finding people still alive, buried in the rubble. But many thousands have severe injuries that are untreated. If they don't get some essential medical care, the death toll will sharply rise.

There is a remarkable number of doctors from dozens of nations there who want to help, but they still lack essential supplies. They are still in limbo at the airport. But there are virtually no usable roads or bridges.

It is almost unbelievable what Rush Limbaugh said about the American response to the earthquake. He claimed that the aid and heartfelt response by President Obama was because he just wanted a boost for African-Americans. What a piece of nonsense.

The only hospital in Port-au-Prince was destroyed. Any person who has any compassion or human feeling would want to do anything to help. Obama is a good, compassionate man who is able to feel others' pain and suffering. I imagine that this is the first time he is happy about his job as president because he is able to make a major difference. He can call on all resources of our federal government, including the military, to save many lives.

When I heard about the terror in Haiti, I asked myself, "What can I do to help?" I hate to do nothing when people are digging in cement and dirt to save the life of a loved one, or just anyone alive under that pile. I would be worthless on the ground trying to rescue. But I have some money, and the money is important for organizations that need money just to keep up with their important works. Luckily, I had Claire here with me, so she could use the Internet to send my money fast.

A long line of airplanes circled around the small island of Haiti unable to land, loaded with badly needed food, water, and medicines. But the airport was never very large, and it suffered minor damage in the quake. As millions of people lay among the rubble of their city, I know they were desperately praying for someone to help, and the answer to their prayers was circling above.

The building housing the UNICEF was completely destroyed, so that affected many good-hearted persons who choose to aid worse places in the world. But hundreds of bleeding-heart liberals from across the globe, including China, Russia, Iceland, Canada, Britain, and even Cuba, have responded.

Some university students on a mission trip were missing until today, when they found several alive and well. And thousands of RNs from across the USA volunteered to go. They can not reach where they are so badly needed, but in a few days they will be able to.

My favorite charity, Doctors Without Borders, involves many MDs who abandon their profitable practices to go wherever human calamity occurs. These brave persons risk everything to help the lowest of their fellow mankind. They are every bit as much heroes as members of the military. But they get little national praise or pride. Memorial Day is only for soldiers who died in service to their country. But my brother Dr. Scott Glotfelty also gave his life in service.

Today, I saw a big bipartisan move. The president called former presidents Bill Clinton and George Bush to work together to raise money to aid Haiti. That's good, but I wish he would have included another former president, Jimmy Carter, who is better qualified to provide immediate shelter for the thousands of homeless people.

After the immediate crisis, Haiti will need more long-term assistance to be a functioning nation. They made much progress in the last few decades to achieve that goal. Then the earthquake destroyed everything they had achieved so far.

I doubt that many Americans want to see thousands of refugees from Haiti. We have a much better chance to engage in "nation bashing" in Haiti than in Afghanistan or Yemen. Haiti is in our hemisphere, and there is no one there who wants to kill Americans. But it would be a very big job.

Maybe we could put some unemployed Americans on that task. But it would also be a costly endeavor, and that will not be a popular proposal, with our own economy still in the ditch. It clearly would be a worldwide effort to turn a weak, failed state into a functioning one.

I believe it is an appropriate thing to consider today, Martin Luther King Day. He was able to lead America out from being a nation dependent on slave labor to empower the economy.

It is hard to believe that human slavery still exists in the modern world, mainly of children and women who are caught in the clutches of sex slavery. That was what Caitlin found most shocking in her visit to Vietnam. A father is sometimes driven by extreme poverty to sell his daughter into sex slavery. It is not just Vietnam that has that problem; it is almost all of Southeast Asia, and especially Thailand.

During the 1980s, I became friends with a young African-American girl who lived in the Metzlers' house across the road from my house. She was the adopted daughter of Joe and Ruth Ruggiero, a couple who worked as missionaries across the world with quite a few children. I really only knew Kim. She was among thousands of biracial children in an orphanage in Vietnam. During the Vietnam War, many American GIs fathered children with Vietnamese girls, and they live somewhat outside the national culture.

Now she is married and has a beautiful little girl in Florida.

Another biracial baby is now our president. Barack Obama was able to take advantage of the opportunities fought for by Martin Luther King, but it was a long, hard struggle to accomplish real improvement in the lives of people of color.

I was born into a widely segregated world, when people of color had no rights at all. They were not allowed to get meals in a diner or get a drink from a water fountain with a sign that said "whites only."

And the first wave of mega-talented and determined athletes to break the color barrier in professional athletics like Jackie Robinson and Roberto Clemente couldn't stay with their teammates in hotels.

Thousands of new schools were white-only until the first major breakthrough of the Supreme Court's decision in Brown vs. the Board of Education, which integrated the schools. Many states refused to obey the law, and a half-hearted compromise was the "separate, but equal" idea. Of course, the African-American schools were not equal in terms of staff, resources, and funding.

Of course, community-based schools were naturally segregated because it was almost impossible for an African-American family to move into a nice neighborhood, where schools were good because their communities were able to provide good funding. The inner-city schools were located in African-American neighborhoods because that was the only place they could find housing. And those areas didn't have good jobs, so the funding of those schools fell behind compared to white schools.

The chance of an African-American getting hired was about as good as a snowball's chance in hell. Then, the children got so poor an education in their poor school that not many African-American adults could qualify for good jobs.

A few lucky boys with great athletic talent were sometimes recruited by high-class private schools wanting to have winning teams more than they wanted to preserve their white-only tradition. A few others were able to carve a career in the performing arts. During the 1950s and '60s we had the Supremes, Temptations, Gladys Knight and the Pips, Aretha Franklin, and Stevie Wonder.

All the way, the fight for the rights of all our African-Americans was led by an unusually fine and wise leader, Reverend Martin Luther King, who preached non-violent resistance as the only way to win the battle. His primary goal was expressed in his great speech, "I Have a Dream," delivered at the Lincoln Monument during the big 1963 march on Washington.

What was his dream? "I have a dream of a time when my children will be judged not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character."

A lot of Americans thought that his dream came true in 2008 when Barack Obama was elected president by a large majority. They hoped we were in a post-racist society. But the truth is, it is far from being a reality.

The Pledge of Allegiance was written to say, "One nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." It seems to me that "justice for all" might include access to health care.

I believe a central message of Christ is about social justice and equality in the eyes of God. But it seems to me that the biggest reason for the hard opposition to health care reform is the fear that those people with good health coverage might lose some of it. And the big insurance companies fear less profit if they fulfill their obligation to their patients.

I guess I need to take a lesson from Martin Luther King. He was able to work for decades to bring justice to his people. And each little victory was followed by more vicious violence. Every day when he awoke he wondered if it was his last day on Earth. But he never turned away from his belief that non-violent resistance was the only hope to fulfilling his dream. Finally, one petty criminal ended his life.

We Americans need to have an honest discussion about prejudice, hate, and war, and the underlying greed and selfishness. In fact, most people are afraid to look into their own hearts.

Knitting Class Slated To Benefit Warm Up America

Carolyn Collen-DuBose will be teaching a knitting class at the Grantsville Senior Center on Thursday, Feb. 25, from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

Any persons over 60 who are interested in learning to knit or refreshing their skills are encouraged to attend. Pre-registration is required, but there is no fee for the class. Participants will need to bring #7 or #8 knitting needles and worsted weight acrylic yarn. They will work on a 7" by 9" square that will be donated to the Warm Up America program.

Warm Up America was established in 1991, and it began with neighbors knitting and crocheting afghans for neighbors in need. The founder, Evie Rosen, came up with the idea of having volunteers knit or crochet small sections and then others join them together. Today, the program distributes warm afghans, caps, and other items to tens of thousands of people around the United States.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

PEER REVIEW
by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. There is a big scientific scandal going on called ClimateGate, which is supposedly about corruption of the peer review process. In the first place, what is peer review?

A. The process of peer review is a cornerstone of scientific integrity, the guarantee of quality in a scientific research paper. Catch-phrases like "holy grail" come to mind. When a researcher accomplishes something, the concluding step is to publish the results in the scientific literature. En route to publication, the paper must undergo peer review.

The author(s) of the scientific paper decides to send it to a particular journal for consideration, and then the peer review process begins. The editor sends the paper to other scientists who are the peers (equally capable scientists) of the author, and active in the same research area. Upon reading the paper, each such reader sends back to the editor a review with comments and suggestions for improvement of the paper. The reviewers remain anonymous relative to the author, to prevent softening of criticism that might be due.

Based on that input, the editor either accepts the paper for publication, sends it back to the author for revision, or rejects it outright.

Most of us professional scientists have experienced all three outcomes at various times. By far the most common is to be asked to clarify some technical points, or to pay attention to some overlooked paper in the literature that has bearing on the topic. After revising the text to conform to the criticism of the reviewers, the paper customarily goes forward for publication.

Because of that process, another scientist reading the journal can be confident that the papers published in it are reliable, and subsequently use that information to influence the direction of his or her own research. The peer review process is the best way known to scientists to advance their professional disciplines. Without the checks and balances of such a process, the scientific literature would deteriorate into just another news outlet, a cluster of press releases and advertisements.

Most academics are evaluated on the basis of their published papers, and often a major criterion of being promoted on a faculty is a count of the number of peer-reviewed papers an author has. That translates into both prestige and salary, and hence there is built-in pressure upon a junior faculty member to generate learned papers. The slogan "publish or perish" is well known in academia. This practice holds across all academic disciplines, not just in sciences like chemistry, biology, or physics.

Some journals are more prestigious than others, and there is strong competition to have a paper published there, instead of in a lesser journal. For example, for a paper in physics, the hardest journal to get into is Physical Review Letters, and a professor who gets even one paper published there during his or her whole career is very proud of it. Biology and medicine, geology, history, chemistry, and so on, each have a hierarchy of prestige among their journals.

The public is oblivious to all this, and only hears about peer review as the certification of validity among scientists. The perception is ironclad that a community of scientists is self-disciplining, and truth will surely emerge from the process over time. Courts of law across various governments share this perception.

For the peer review system to work effectively, everybody in the loop has to be scrupulously honest. The authors must have reached their conclusions honestly, based on valid data, and be striving to present new information accurately to readers. The editor must select unbiased reviewers to conduct the peer review. The reviewers must be objective, guarding against letting their own biases creep into their evaluations. When all this happens, a paper eventually gets published that adds an incremental advance to the field.

However, human beings are imperfect, and hence the peer review process doesn't always work as we would wish. The very essential elements of integrity and trust can easily be lost at several stages. Authors are sometimes blind to their own mistakes, and peers can be variously misinformed, hostile, or motivated by hidden agendas. Editors might have their own narrow views about what they want in their journal, and can select certain reviewers to achieve negative or positive evaluations.

In the late 18th century, about when oxygen was discovered, Priestley in England and Lavoisier in France each controlled a major journal, and were bitter opponents who suppressed disfavored papers. In the early 20th century, papers promoting eugenics were welcome in journals of the life sciences. And the theory of plate tectonics was ridiculed and dismissed from 1930 to 1960. The history of peer review is not unblemished.

Paraphrasing Winston Churchill: Peer review is the worst system for assuring scientific quality, except for every other system that has ever been tried.

WINTER PERCUSSION, GUARD WORKSHOPS SET AT SHS – Students in the 6th through 12th grade interested in learning the basics of color guard and/or percussion are welcome to attend a series of free workshops hosted by the Southern Garrett Marching Band, beginning this Saturday, Jan. 23, at the school's band room. Joshua Elmlinger, band director, said the sessions will be under his guidance, and he will be assisted by student leaders as well. The percussion workshop will be from 10 a.m. until noon, and the color guard session from noon until 2 p.m. "You do not need to have any experience in either guard or percussion to come to our workshops," Elmlinger said. "We hope to see middle school students who wish to be in the band when they get to Southern, and we would also love to see current Southern High students come give it a try." Percussionists are asked to bring practice pads, if they have them, as well as small notebooks. This past season's guard members are pictured above. Shown from left are Michele Welch, Cristy Gank, Kala Ashby, and Destiny Hoye. Gank and Ashby will be the student leaders for the guard. Shown below is part of the 2009 drum line. I Died Today by Mercedes Pellet

I died today
On a frozen field of snow…
Why I died, I do not know.

The one who called himself my owner
Knew not about my cold and hunger.

He forgot I was a living being,
And left me upon a hill alone…
Where I became a dying thing.

On a frigid night of winter
I raised my head to heaven in a prayer.

That frozen field of snow,
Became my final bed upon this earth,
Blanketed by the gentle falling snow.

I died today.
Today at last, I will be free!

I will return to the only ONE
Who owns both you…and me.

Mercedes Pellet, development director for HART for Animals, was inspired to write this poem last Thursday after learning that horses had died of hunger and hypothermia during the recent extreme cold.

ARC Releases Schedule For Feb. Classes

The Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross has scheduled several health and safety services courses for next month.

An adult, child, and infant cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) class will be held from 6 until 10 p.m. on Tuesdays, Feb. 2 and 23, at the Cumberland chapter house.

This four-hour course includes caring for and recognizing breathing and cardiac emergencies, including choking, in adults, children, and infants. Automated external defibrillator (AED) instruction for adults and children is included with CPR.

The cost is $30 for new certification and $25 for recertification, and includes a text, CPR kit and one-year certification.

A professional rescuer CPR/AED course will be held on Thursday, Feb. 18, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Cumberland chapter house.

This is an eight-hour class developed for volunteers and career professionals who routinely respond to emergencies. It emphasizes how to recognize and respond to respiratory and cardiac emergencies in adults, children, and infants. Two-rescuer CPR and AED training are included.

This course meets the standard requirements for nursing, allied health professions, and emergency medical services.

The cost is $35 for new certification and $30 for recertification, and includes a text, pocket mask, and one-year certification.

NHS Girls' Basketball Team Squeaks Out Wins Over Fort Hill, No. 1 Allegany

The lead went back and forth during last Thursday's home game, but the Northern High School varsity girls' basketball team managed to squeak out a 48-45 win over Fort Hill. The Huskies boosted their record to 7-2 overall and 4-1 in the Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference with a surprising 65-64 victory over No. 1 Allegany on Monday in Accident.

The Huskies were down by one point after the first half, but gained control in the second after outscoring the Sentinels 15-8 to go into halftime 24-18. Fort Hill battled to a 33-33 tie with Northern in the third quarter.

The game remained tied 38-38 with three minutes left in the game when Kaitlynn Fratz hit three key jumpers in the lane to put the Huskies on top. She finished with a game-high 27 points, with nine coming in the final period. Adria Graham finished with eight points, and Terra McKenzie added seven points and eight rebounds for the Huskies. Freshman Allison Yommer stood out defensively with several blocked shots in the second half.

Leading the Sentinels was Andrea Armstrong with her 15 points, and teammate Mollie Mandell went 7-for-10 from the foul line to finish with 13 points.

The Northern jayvees fell 43-24 to the Fort Hill junior varsity. Ashley O'Neal had a 20-point game to lead the Sentinels, and Northern's Sydney McFarland finished with seven points and eight steals.

Northern's McKenzie sank 16 points, and was credited with the win in Monday night's stunner of a game against Allegany. The Huskies trailed through the first half, outscored the Campers in the third quarter for the lead, and then tied the game in the fourth to go into overtime, where McKenzie sank the winning shot.

Northern was down, 13-9, in the first quarter and went into halftime at 26-17. The Huskies rallied in the third quarter, outscoring Allegany 23-9. The Campers closed the gap to tie the game, 53-53.

Excitement hit the court as the game went into overtime. Fratz, who finished with a game-high 30 points, was the focus of Allegany's attention, when Northern inbounded the ball for the final shot. Down by two points, Fratz passed the ball to Morgan Brosnihan, who swung it around to McKenzie for the winning shot as time expired. Graham led the Huskies with her nine rebounds, and also provided eight points in the win.

Brooke Wharton scored 18 points for the Campers, and was followed by Kelly Baker, who added 16. Kelsey Knippenberg finished with 14 points and netted two 3-pointers, and Bailey Ellsworth ended with 11 points in the loss.

The junior varsity game was won, 30-20, by Allegany. Erica Paugh led the Southern jayvees with her nine points, and Courtney Landis recorded 10 points for the Campers.

The Huskies are scheduled to travel to Garrett County rival Southern tonight, with the junior varsity game at 6 p.m. and tipoff for the varsity at 7:30 p.m. Northern travels to Hampshire on Saturday, and will then host Mtn. Ridge on Monday and Salisbury on Wednesday.

Rams Hand Hampshire 55-49 Loss; Dominate Frankfort With 50-34 Win

Southern High School's varsity girls' basketball team came back strong this past week as it battled back in the fourth quarter to hand host Hampshire a 55-49 loss on Saturday, and then dominated Frankfort with a 50-34 win on Monday at home.

The game against Hampshire began on the downside as the Rams trailed, 12-9, after the first quarter, but then went into halftime tied, 22-22, with the Trojans. Southern was outscored, 14-4, in the third quarter, to begin the fourth 36-26.

Heidi Welch scored 20 of her 30 points in the fourth quarter for the Rams to push past Hampshire. She made 10 field goals, four of which were 3-pointers, and she was 6-for-10 from the foul line. Teammate Emillee Bosley sank three 3-pointers to aid in the fourth quarter come-back.

Leading Hampshire was Hannah Carl, sank two 3-pointers and three field goals for 12 points. Teammate Lyndsay Whetzel finished with 12 rebounds and six points, and Lindsey Miller ended with three 3-pointers for a total of nine points.

Southern's junior varsity team had its work cut out as the Rams went into overtime and squeaked out a 28-24 win over the Hampshire jayvees. Twelve points came from Southern's Mandy Sweitzer, and Jenna Westfall was one of six Trojan players to score four points.

The Rams added another win to their record on Monday night against Frankfort. Southern led by at least 10 points at the end of each period, 14-4 and 21-11 in the first half, and 36-25 after three quarters.

Alicia Horner sank 12 points to lead Southern, and teammates Welch and Bosley each hit three 3-pointers. Welch finished with 11 points and Bosley ended with 10 in the win. Allie Shaffer aids the Rams on the glass with her seven rebounds.

Saydi Whiteman recorded nine points for Frankfort, and Savannah Hose finished with seven in the loss.

The Rams' junior varsity picked up another close win, 27-24, over the Falcon jayvees. Sweitzer scored eight points and teammate Hanna Horne pulled down 10 rebounds. Emily Blankenship and Katie Bush each finished with six points for Frankfort.

Southern, now 7-4 overall and 5-1 in the AMAC, is scheduled to host Garrett County rival Northern tonight, with the junior varsity game at 6 p.m. and tip-off for the varsity at 7:30 p.m. The Rams will then host Allegany on Monday and Mtn. Ridge on Wednesday.

IT'S MY BALL! NO, IT'S MINE! are probably the words going through these players' minds as they battle for the ball during the Southern High School varsity girls' basketball game against Hampshire on Saturday. Southern's Gina Stuck, middle, tries to hold onto the ball as Hampshire's Autumn Chaney, right, gets her hands on it and teammate Hollie Riggs, left, remains out of the way. The Rams defeated the Trojans, 55-49, after Heidi Welch sank 20 of her 30 points in the third quarter to give Southern the lead. See story for more details. This photo was submitted by Jim King, Hampshire Review. Engaged in his own battle is Ethan Brady (#33), below, of the Southern High School varsity boys' basketball team as he goes for a shot while under heavy Keyser pressure during last Friday's home game. SHS Boys' Basketball Team Wraps Up Week With Two Wins, One Loss

The varsity boys' basketball team of Southern High School claimed an AMAC victory over Keyser last Friday in Oakland, handing the Tornadoes a 47-36 defeat, but then fell, 77-54, to Allegany on Monday in Cumberland. The Rams made up for the loss as it beat Hampshire, 57-54, in overtime last night at home.

Southern held a two-point lead after the first quarter to go into the second, 10-8, and then outscored the Tornadoes, 14-5, to break away by halftime. The Rams remained in the lead by the fourth quarter with a score of 37-29.

Joe Kisselovich scored 11 points and had nine rebounds to lead Southern. Calvin Hilliard finished with 10 points and pulled down seven rebounds in the win. D.J. Ritchie recorded a single 3-pointer and ended with 10 points in the win.

Keyser was led by Peyton Hartman with 11 points.

The Rams' junior varsity fell, 55-32, to the Tornado jayvees. Drew Miller scored eight points for Southern, while Brandon Clay had 17 for Keyser.

By the close of the first quarter in the game against Allegany on Monday, Southern trailed by 11 points, 21-10, but then nearly matched the Campers point for point to go 44-31 into halftime. The Rams were allowed just 10 points in the third quarter to Allegany's 19.

Ritchie scored a team-high 14 points for Southern, collecting three 3-pointers and going 5-for-6 at the foul line. Hilliard followed with 11 points, hitting 7 of 8 free throws, and Kisselovich ended the night with 10 points.

Scoring 22 points, pulling down nine rebounds, and collecting three steals was Allegany's Jordan Grady as he led the Campers to victory. Casey Roberts wasn't far behind with his 21 points, four assists, four rebounds, and two steals. Dustin Wharton finished with 10 points and nine assists in the win.

The Rams' junior varsity were crushed, 65-30, in the first game by the Camper jayvees. Kevin Colaw led the Rams with six points. Allegany had four players to score in double digits. Carter Imes had 18 points, Raheem Weedon 17, Calman McKenzie 13, and Christian Thomas 10 points in the win.

Hilliard's overtime free throw points was what saved the Rams in last night's game against Hampshire. He nabbed four points from the line, and finished with a team-high 15 points overall. Kisselovich scored 13 points and pulled down 12 rebounds to finish with a double-double, and Ritchie finished with 13 points as well.

The Rams found themselves down 16-12 after one quarter, and 28-24 by halftime. Southern was able to take the lead in the third quarter, outscoring the Trojans, 12-7. The Rams saw that lead break as they found themselves down 48-47 with under 30 seconds to play. Ritchie hit a big three-pointer for the lead, but Hampshire's Caleb Hill tied it with seven seconds remaining to force overtime.

Philip Malick scored a game-high 21 points for the Trojans, while Hill had a total of 10.

The Ram jayvees fell in the junior varsity game, but details were not received.

Southern, now 7-5 overall and 6-2 in the AMAC, is scheduled to host Garrett County rival Northern tomorrow (Friday) night, with the junior varsity game at 6 p.m. and tip-off for the varsity at 7:30 p.m. The Rams will then host Frankfort on Tuesday.

Early Marathon Registration To End January 31

About 10 days remain for early-bird registration into the second Mountain Maryland Marathon Festival this April in downtown Cumberland.

There are six events in this year's lineup, including the 26.2-mile marathon, two-person marathon relay, the 5K for United Way, a children's 1.2-mile "marathon," and a 400-meter "tot trot." In addition, the 13.1-mile run has been designated by the Road Runners Club of America as the 2010 Eastern Region Half Marathon Championship.

Entry fees for all six events will increase beginning Feb. 1 and again April 1. All proceeds benefit the United Ways of the Potomac Highlands, which serves Hampshire and Mineral counties in West Virginia, and Garrett and Allegany counties in Maryland.

"The staggered entry fees allow runners, on the front end, to get in at the lowest price possible," said Kevin Spradlin, executive director of the Mountain Maryland Marathon Club. "Runners who register later, even on race day, can certainly participate, but they'll have to pay a little more. The goal is to try to make this event an annual one, and an affordable one."

Last year's inaugural event attracted 512 registered runners from 13 states and Washington D.C. With the RRCA championship designation, up to 700 runners are expected on April 18.

More information on any of the club-sponsored events, can be found online at the following site: Www.mountainMDmarathon.org, or by telephoning 301-697-6035. Questions may also be sent by e-mail to run@mountainMDmarathon.org.

Raeslee Weimer Earns Motocross, Supercross Title

Southern High School freshman Raeslee Weimer tied for overall points as the Olympiad Champion in the Girls' (85cc–105cc) Class at the 38th annual Thor Winter National Olympics in Gainesville, Fla., in November.

The best racers in the world competed at Gatorback Cycle Park to become the champion, the one who displayed the best motocross and supercross finishes during the three-day event.

By earning this title, Raeslee is now recognized as one of the elite amateur girl riders in the United States. Her sponsors include Pirelli Tires, Morgantown Honda, Extreme Powersports, and Decal Works.

An honor student, Raeslee is also on the Southern cross-country and the junior varsity basketball teams. She is the daughter of Mike and Kim Weimer, Oakland.

Become a Better Investor By Understanding Risk

What does it take to be a successful investor? You need a variety of attributes, including patience, discipline and a long-term vision of what you want to achieve. But you also need to understand the role of risk in investing.

When investors think about risk, they typically think of the various risks associated with different types of investments. For example, investments such as stocks carry market risk, which is the risk that you could lose money if you sell shares whose market price has fallen below your purchase price. Other investments — for example, certificates of deposit – offer inflation risk, meaning the fixed return they provide may not keep pace with inflation.

• Risk tolerance — It's useful to know your own risk tolerance. If you are an aggressive investor by nature, you may be willing to take on a higher degree of risk in exchange for potentially higher returns. If you're a conservative investor, you might lean toward sacrificing higher returns for greater stability of principal. By understanding what level of risk you can comfortably tolerate, you'll be in a better position to stick with your investment strategy through up and down markets.

• Risk capacity — While your risk tolerance defines how comfortable you are with risk, your risk capacity refers to how much risk you can handle based on your financial situation, goals and time line. When you are young and have many years to invest, you have more time to overcome losses, and so you have a greater ability to handle volatility — a greater risk capacity — than someone who is retired. Also, the more discretionary income you have, the larger your risk capacity, because you won't be as dependent on your investment portfolio to help provide the income you'll eventually need for your long-term goals, such as retirement.

• Required risk — The higher the return necessary to reach your goals, the more potential risk you'll need to take on — in other words, the greater your "required risk." For example, when it comes to retirement, the return you'll need from your investments depends on several factors: your age, your retirement lifestyle, your available sources of income, your desired legacy and so on. To achieve your goals, you'll need to find the right balance between the returns you need or anticipate and the amount of risk you are comfortable with.

Ultimately, your challenge will be to balance your risk tolerance, risk capacity and required risk as factors in a comprehensive investment strategy. By creating this strategy and sticking with it over time, you'll be able to make investment decisions based on your needs and goals rather than emotionally reacting to the constant changes in market conditions.

Over time, of course, your thoughts about risk may evolve to reflect changes in your life and objectives. As this happens, you will want to review your investment mix with your financial advisor, and make whatever changes are required to help you stay on track toward your long-term goals.

Lakers Win Three JUCO Games, Improve Overall Record To 12-7

Winning three conference games this past week, the Garrett College men's basketball team improved its overall record to 12-7 and its Maryland JUCO mark to 7-3. The Lakers topped visiting Chesapeake on Saturday, 74-59, edged the College of Southern Maryland on Monday, 66-64, also at McHenry, and then handed host Prince George' CC a 62-55 loss last night.

Freshman wing Kory Gibson hit five three-point shots and finished with a game-high 20 points to lead the Laker attack against Chesapeake on Saturday. Freshman forward Chris Hilliard, starting in place of injured Jordan Gipson, helped the Lakers control the boards, as he grabbed nine rebounds. He also scored 11 points, most of which came via offensive rebounds.

Freshman Vladimir Vukovic came off the bench and gave Garrett a boost with inside scoring, adding a season high 12 points. Freshman guard Joe Dubuche also reached double figures with three long-range buckets and a free throw for a total of 10 points.

Up by nine points midway through the second half, Gibson sandwiched two threes around a Dubuche three-pointer in three straight possessions to put the lead at a comfortable distance.

Sam Sanders led Chesapeake in scoring with 19 points, with Justin Maze and Rokhem Harris finishing with 15 and 14, respectively.

"We are a little tired, and you could tell that from our poor free throw shooting and just overall lack of energy," said GC head coach Dennis Gibson. "I know that in our players' minds the win did not seem that big, but we need every league win we can get to help us secure a home JUCO playoff game.

"Our guys are doing a remarkable job when you consider the loss of [Shawn] Greenfield and the fact that Gipson, our second leading scorer, is out with an ankle injury," said Gibson. "Our lineup and how we approach the game in terms of pressing or conserving our guards seems to change with every game."

Greenfield, who was the leading scorer for the Lakers, continues to be sidelined with a knee injury.

Kory Gibson also paced the Lakers in Monday's close victory over the College of Southern Maryland, as he recorded 19 points, six assists, and two steals. Hilliard added 12 points and six rebounds.

Gibson hit four three-pointers, plus connected on one of two free throws with seven seconds remaining to give the Lakers their final two-point margin of victory. The Laker defense forced a contested shot by Southern Maryland's Anthony Gwynn, and Garrett's Doma Ibrahim grabbed the final rebound to secure the win.

The Lakers held what seemed to be a comfortable 32-17 lead at intermission, but were then out-scored in the second half by a 47-32 margin. The Hawks also had a five-point lead late in the contest before the Lakers managed to rally.

Ibrahim and Mario Lloyde each grabbed five rebounds for the Lakers.

Hitting a game-high 25 points for the Hawks was freshman Aaron Gwynn. Also reaching double figures were Devin Posey with 14 points and David Thompson with 10.

This was the second game that the Lakers played without Gipson in the lineup, and starting point guard Jeff Stem was injured in the second half.

Coach Gibson said he was pleased that his team maintained its composure in the final moments to get the win.

"This has been a tough season so far in terms of lineups and injuries, but these guys pulled together and found a way to win," he said. "They could have given up when Southern Maryland went up by five with less than three minutes to go, but they got tough and won under difficult conditions. I am very proud of them."

Last night's contest at Prince George's was knotted 31-31 at intermission, but the Lakers outscored the Owls in the second half by a 31-24 margin to gain the victory.

Gibson again led GC's scoring, finishing with 17 points that included 15 recorded on five three-point buckets. He also grabbed eight rebounds.

Hilliard added 14 points and eight rebounds, while Dubuche also reached double figures with 10 points.

The score remained close throughout most of the contest, but a steal by Gibson and basket by Ibrahim with 1:40 to play gave the Lakers the lead for good.

Gibson's final three-pointer put the Lakers up by five, and they sealed the win in the final seconds with success at the foul line.

Waters led the Owls offensively with 17 points. Gonzalez and Gilkes netted 11 and 10 points, respectively.

The Lakers will be back in action at home this Saturday when they host Catonsville, with the tipoff set for 7 p.m. They will travel to Potomac State College next Monday.

Lady Lakers Put Up The Good Fight; Fall 77-70 To Potomac

The Lakers put up a good fight against Potomac State last Thursday, and Kwaiyera Davis scored a game-high 25 points for the Garrett College women's basketball team, but it wasn't enough to push past Potomac State last Thursday as the Lady Lakers fell 77-70.

Saturday's game against Chesapeake was postponed, and information was not received about Monday's game against College of Southern Maryland and last night's game against Prince George's.

Even though Garrett trailed 42-34 by halftime against Potomac last Thursday night, the Lakers gave the Catamounts a run for their money.

"We led the entire game," said Potomac's head coach Jim Walton. "We led by 14 in the first half, and Garrett fought back. We had a 19 point lead in the second half, but every time we felt comfortable, Garrett would fight back."

The Lakers were led by Davis' six buckets and two 3-pointers. She was also 7-for-11 from the foul line. Teammate Alice Abiya added 13 points, and Marcia Bogan finished with 12.

Brittany Skyles scored a team-high 23 points for the Catamounts, and teammate Chelsea Holcomb added 10. Skyles and Tae Payton each sank three 3-pointers and Holcomb finished with two in the win.

The Lakers are scheduled to travel to Anne Arundel on Friday, and will host the Catholic University JVs on Sunday. Garrett will then travel to Montgomery Rockville on Monday.

Mental Health Advocates Rally For Alcohol Tax

by Rachel Leven
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – More than 300 health providers, policy makers, and citizens concerned or affected by mental illness rallied on Lawyer's Mall Wednesday afternoon protesting any further cuts in the mental health budget and supporting a bill that would tax alcohol to benefit mental health causes.

The Department of Health and Mental Hygiene lost $56 million over the past 13 months, causing more than 100 job losses and affecting services for many people with mental illness, said Herb Cromwell, executive director of the Community Behavioral Health Association of Maryland.

"How many people with heart problems don't get treatment? Not many. How many people with cancer don't get treatment? Not many," said Rich Bayer, CEO of Upper Bay Counseling and Support Services in Elkton. "But in mental health ... 80 percent of children don't get treatment. Most adults don't get treatment."

The governor's proposed 2011 budget, released Wednesday morning, includes an increase of 9.4 percent in the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's funding to approximately $8.9 billion. Mental health services are also funded on a smaller scale from other sources.

The governor proposed cutting 37.6 jobs in his budget.

One in five Americans, more than one million Marylanders, live with a diagnosable disorder, according to the "1-outta-5" campaign run by the organizer of the rally, the Maryland Mental Health Coalition.

The coalition is a conglomerate of various mental health services and advocacy groups, professionals, and individuals supporting more mental health funding.

One way the coalition wants to receive more funding is the "10 cents makes sense" bill. Advocates wore pins with the 10 cents mantra indicating their enthusiasm for the bill that would tax each alcoholic drink an additional 10 cents.

The proceeds of the tax would go towards expanding health care, as well as increasing funding for substance abuse treatment and prevention and developmental disabilities support. Proceeds might also go into the state's general fund.

"(The tax is) absolutely reasonable in the end," said Susan Tate, a volunteer at the Silver Spring Drop Center where people with mental disabilities can gain life-skills, socialize, and receive other kinds of support. "Because if you cut money to community services then people start falling through the net and then they end up in the ER or hospitals or prison, and in the long term that's more expensive."

Montgomery County legislators Sen. Richard Madaleno, Jr. and Del. William Bronrott spoke at the rally along with several colleagues, and emphasized that "10 cents makes sense."

Delegation Goes To D.C. Seeking Snowstorm Funds

by Morgan Gibson
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Maryland's congressional delegation is encouraging President Obama to loosen the purse strings on federal funding to cover the toll December's record-breaking snowstorm took on public resources.

The state's senators and congressmen signed a letter to Obama Wednesday in support of the disaster declaration made Jan. 14 by Gov. Martin O'Malley to the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

O'Malley estimated the total cost of the snowstorm at more than $19 million, a huge blow on a state that is already strapped for cash.

With their letter of support, the senators and congressmen hope to expedite the multi-step FEMA process and get relief to the state quickly so that the state is ready for the next one.

"I strongly support this federal funding to ensure that Maryland has the resources it needs to recover from this storm and prepare for the next one," Rep. C.A. Dutch Ruppersberger said in a press release.

The Maryland Emergency Management Agency began assessing the damage and impact of the storm on the state Dec. 21 as part of the emergency response process, the letter stated.

MEMA concluded that there was an "unprecedented" use of public resources to ensure the safety of the public, along with damage to emergency vehicles and state buildings, and depletion of road treatment chemicals.

The state received 18 to 20 inches of snow in the pre-Christmas storm. In some areas of the state, people were snowbound for several days.

"Maryland did a magnificent job and while people in Minnesota or Maine or Montana might not understand the December 18-20, 2009, storm in Maryland was a 40-year storm that clearly overwhelmed any reasonable expectation of Maryland's capabilities," said Rep. Roscoe Bartlett in a press release.

DEBRIS BURNING DURING THE WINTER MONTHS

Landowners or contractors outside incorporated towns who are interested in burning brush, debris, etc., are advised by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to take advantage of the winter weather now being experienced in Garrett County. According to the Open Air Burning Regulations, Title 8, DNR, Subtitle .07, Maryland Forest Service, "Burning may occur at anytime when the ground is covered with snow, if all other requirements are met."

The open-air burning regulations apply to activities in woodland and within 200 feet of woodland, or a flammable material that could carry fire to the woodland. There should be a firebreak at least 10 feet wide around the fire, and adequate personnel and equipment present to control the fire. The fire should be out cold before all personnel leave the scene.

Local landowners who wish to do some open-air burning while the ground is covered with snow are still required to obtain a burning permit from the Garrett County Health Department. These permits may be obtained by telephoning the health department, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 301-334-7760. Once this permit has been obtained, the landowner should contact the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management at its non-emergency number – 301-334-1929 – prior to burning. This should reduce the chances of one of the local fire companies being called out on a false alarm.

For further information about open-air burning regulations, persons are advised to telephone the Maryland DNR Forest Service Office at Mt. Nebo, 301-334-3296.

New Semester Under Way At GC

by Melissa Parker

Although the cold remains in the air, the winter break has come to an end for Garrett College students, as the college kicked off its spring 2010 semester yesterday, Jan. 20.

From those who are beginning at Garrett for the first time, to those who will soon leave Garrett for the last time, students seem geared up and ready to begin the new semester.

Tim Preston began his third semester at GC on Wednesday. A graduate of Southern High School, he is majoring in natural resources and wildlife technology (NRWT). He says he "couldn't be happier" to be back on campus.

"I'm very excited to get back into the swing of things," Preston said. "I enjoyed the winter break, but after a while, it was getting a little boring."

Another reason Preston's glad to be back is because he's able to see the friends he hasn't seen in a while. He plans to work with the Natural Resources Police upon graduating from Garrett.

Preston's pal Trevor Warnick also began his third semester this week, and is also majoring in NRWT. A Northern High School graduate, Warnick says he, too, is glad to be back at Garrett.

"Christmas break went by pretty slowly," he said, "so it's good to be back."

Preston and Warnick are scheduled to be at Garrett for another year to complete their programs. Warnick hopes to get a job in forestry.

First-time students Breanna McGreevy and Nick Stump came to Garrett for the adventure sports program. They learned about Garrett during a visit to the Adventure Sports Center International (ASCI) atop nearby Marsh Mountain at the Wisp. Both from Winchester, Va., they are enthusiastic about beginning their educational journeys at Garrett.

"I didn't even know you could get a degree in adventure sports," said Stump, who would like to eventually work as a guide. "It's something we've always enjoyed doing for fun. Once we found out you could get a degree in it, I've been excited about it since."

Rebecca Rush, a Southern High School graduate, will complete her first year at Garrett after this semester, and is feeling good about having one semester of study under her belt.

Rush spent the last week of her winter break soaking up the sun in Florida, so she said she wasn't exactly looking forward to the break coming to an end. But she added that beginning a new semester will put her closer to her place of work.

She is employed by Sycamore Services in the Garrett Information Enterprise Center (GIEC) building, which is conveniently connected to the college. All she has to do is walk to an adjacent building, and she's at work.

Rush is majoring in general studies, and plans to transfer to a four-year college after she completes her AA degree work at Garrett. She wants to ultimately major in marketing.

Some students are excited for the beginning of the new semester for yet another simple reason: It means that their last semester at Garrett has finally arrived. Kyara Rogers, a third-year student from Queens, N.Y., enrolled at Garrett to play basketball.

"It's been a long 2½ years," said Rogers. "I'm so excited to get my last classes finished, graduate from Garrett, and transfer somewhere new."

Because Rogers tore her AC ligament in her knee, she has been unable to play basketball this year, but says she is looking forward to the opportunity to play basketball again at the four-year level. She plans to either return to New York to a four-year school or transfer to the University of Maryland.

Although she is a juvenile justice major at Garrett, she plans to move into veterinary science once she transfers.

Because students can register through the end of this week, final enrollment numbers are unknown as of today. However, all indications point to enrollment remaining close in number to that of last spring's semester.

The college did experience something new this semester: For the first time since the latest residence hall was completed 2½ years ago, it was filled to capacity and had a waiting list. There has been a substantial increase in the number of students who come from outside of the area to attend Garrett, which is evident by the number of students living in the residence halls.

Garrett students are in for 15 weeks of learning and fun this semester, according to an admissions spokesperson.

"We all work hard to make sure that students are given a top-quality education, are offered unforgettable extracurricular activities, and have opportunities to build relationships that last a lifetime," the spokesperson said.

For additional information on enrollment at Garrett College, persons may contact the admissions office at 301-387-3044 or go online to admissions@garrettcollege.edu.

Garrett To Hold Information Nights On Financial Aid

Garrett College will hold two financial aid information nights at the McHenry campus, the fist of which is slated for this evening, Jan. 21, and the second on Thursday, Feb. 11, both from 6 to 8 p.m. Students and parents are encouraged by GC officials to attend one of the sessions to learn about financial aid and scholarships.

"This is a great opportunity for students and parents to learn about financial aid options," said Cissy Vansickle, director of financial aid at GC. "The programs are free, so if you're a student who's concerned about the financial aid process, these information nights are the perfect chance for you to get your questions answered."

During the programs, the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) will be discussed at length. Students will have the opportunity to complete the FAFSA following the presentation and submit it electronically. Those who wish to do so are encouraged to bring tax returns or W2 forms for 2009.

Garrett College financial aid staff will be available to answer questions about state aid and various scholarships, including the Garrett County Scholarship and the Garrett College Foundation scholarships.

The programs will be held in Room 205/207 in the college's Continuing Education building. For more information, persons may telephone the Garrett College Office of Admissions at 301-387-3044, or toll-free at 866-554-2773, ext. 3044.

Award Bid

Thrasher Engineering, Wallace Montgomery & Associates, and RK&K.

The committee then evaluated the firms, awarding points for qualifications, understanding of the complete project, current workload, past experience, and timely completion of past projects. As RK&K was the lowest bidder and received the highest evaluation, the committee recommended that the commissioners accept its bid.

Commissioners Ernie Gregg and Denny Glotfelty voted for RK&K. Commissioner Fred Holliday opposed.

"RK&K anticipates that it will take 224 calendar days from the preliminary design and study phase through the bidding phase for the project," Junkins said.

The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities estimates the Thayerville Water Distribution System will cost $10.5 million. The Maryland Department of the Environment will provided funding for the project.

Edward Utterback of the Aurora area was elected by farmers in LAA 3 to represent them on the county committee and will serve a three-year term. He received 48 votes. Gregory Ridenour Sr. of the Tunnelton area was elected as first alternate. He received 25 votes. Both individuals took office on January 1.

At a county committee organizational meeting held Jan. 13, the following positions were determined: chairperson, Edward Utterback; vice-chairperson, Rebecca Montgomery; and regular member, William Whetsell.

The county committee has the responsibility of administering the USDA-FSA programs for the coming year. LEWIS NAMED W.VA. FARM SERVICE AGENCY DIRECTOR

The Obama administration has announced that Alfred J. Lewis will serve as West Virginia state executive director for the Farm Service Agency at the USDA.

"Alfred J. Lewis has a solid understanding of the challenges and opportunities facing our rural communities and will help build on the Obama administration's efforts to rebuild and revitalize rural America," said Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack.

Lewis, a resident of Beverly, brings decades of leadership experience to the position. He served as executive director of the Randolph/High Country FSA Office for over 20 years. During his directorship, he oversaw the day-to-day farm support programs in the service area. Lewis has also been a supervisory agricultural district director for the FSA, beginning in 1998, to 2003. He advised West Virginia's state executive director and FSA Committee about statewide programs and policies to meet the need of local agricultural producers. Lewis also served as executive director of the Jackson County FSA from 1976 to 1983. He holds a B.S. degree in agriculture from West Virginia University.

The Farm Services Agency works to increase economic opportunity and improve the quality of life for rural Americans. Some of the agency's efforts include providing direct operating loans for farm equipment, seed, and fertilizer, as well as rural housing loans to help rural people buy, build, or rent housing. FSA also procures various commodities to benefit low-income families through domestic food assistance programs. At the same time, the agency creates jobs by funding the growth and creation of rural businesses and cooperatives.

The USDA provides leadership on food, agriculture, and natural resources. Reflecting President Obama's commitment to expanding economic opportunities in rural America, Agriculture Secretary Vilsack said that he and the USDA are working to enhance availability of broadband, promote the development of renewable energy to conserve, maintain, and improve our natural resources and environment, and promote a sustainable, safe, sufficient, and nutritious food supply.

Literacy Volunteers Receive Grants To Fund Program

Monongalia County Literacy Volunteers, a member of United Way, recently received grant funding from the John Mathew Gay Brown Family Foundation and the George B. Hott Foundation. Funds from these grants support two services of Literacy Volunteers: training supplies for volunteers who want to become tutors and supplies needed to support the adult learner, such as GED manuals and other related materials geared toward building success.

Literacy Volunteers of Mon and Preston counties are non-profit organizations that provide innovative, confidential, and free programs that increase literacy skills for adults. For more information on how to make a referral to Literacy Volunteers or to become a tutor, persons should call 304-296-3400 or e-mail MCLV1@comcast.net.

Proposes Cuts

which includes $450 million in federal stimulus funding, would be a record amount if it were approved by the General Assembly.

Republican leaders railed against the proposed budget, saying it delays rather than solves problems.

"The governor relies much too heavily on one-time fund transfers," said House Minority Leader Anthony O'Donnell, R-Calvert. "That $900 million of revenue that we're trying to replace (with those fund transfers) will re-emerge in the following year. They're not ongoing structural reductions.

"We're supposed to balance our operating budget," O'Donnell continued. "We're not supposed to be borrowing money and paying it back over a 15- or 30-year period."

The proposed budget incorporates $913 million in transfers – largely from the capital budget and a local income tax reserve – into the general fund, which O'Malley said would help the state emerge from the recession. The budget also relies on $389 million in federal Medicaid funding.

The transfer of $442 million from the state's capital funds would not stop the state's construction projects – which O'Malley said would create 20,000 jobs – as the money would be replenished by borrowing through bond sales.

When asked at the press conference whether this spending would put the state in financial risk if the economic downturn did not reverse, O'Malley said that was a moot point.

"We could make an assumption that this would be a recession that lasts forever ... I don't think it would be a reasonable assumption to make," he said. "We are acting prudently and in a fiscally responsible way to move our state out of this recession as quickly as we possibly can while doing as little damage as possible."

In keeping with his theme for this legislative session of "jobs, jobs, jobs," O'Malley's proposed budget also includes $20 million for a tax credit to businesses that hire an unemployed resident. He also proposed dedicating $20 million to the Chesapeake Bay restoration and preservation trust fund.

Many legislators declined to comment on the budget before they received access to the full documents Wednesday morning, but Sen. David Brinkley, R-Frederick, said he was concerned that an increase in education spending would likely come at the expense of funding for public safety.

The General Assembly will have the opportunity to make its own cuts to O'Malley's proposed budget, but cannot add any spending.

"I look forward to seeing what [the legislators'] alternatives are and having them put it out there on the table for debate," O'Malley said.

O'Donnell raised such complaints as the use of furloughs instead of layoffs and the use of federal funds.

If the legislature does not pass its own version of a balanced budget by the end of the session in mid-April, it must extend its session into May.

SHA Launches New Online Customer Assistance System

In attempting to keep with its motto, "Customer Driven, Now More than Ever," adopted during its centennial celebration, the Maryland Department of Transportation's State Highway Administration (SHA) recently deployed a new Customer Care Management System (CCMS). The new system allows customers to submit service requests and comments through an online form, as well as monitor the progress of inquiries.

SHA maintains more than 17,000 lane miles of road and 2,500 bridges throughout the state. SHA's responsibility includes the interstates and the numbered, non-toll routes in Maryland's 23 counties. Nearly 70 percent of the 56 billion miles driven every year are on the state system, which is only 17 percent of the total road mileage in Maryland.

"SHA is committed to keeping drivers, transit users, pedestrians, and cyclists safe as they travel through Maryland on the state highway system," said State Highway administrator Neil J. Pedersen. "Customers are our eyes on the road, and they can often alert us to an issue before it becomes a problem or safety concern. Having a convenient tool for feedback and two-way communication is invaluable."

Some of SHA's on-road activities include snow and ice removal, mowing and trimming, drainage and storm water management, line-striping, signal maintenance, pothole repair, resurfacing, management of highway construction projects, inspecting bridges, and traffic management during emergencies and incidents. SHA also provides emergency traffic patrols to assist motorists when vehicles become disabled, which is coordinated through the 24-hour-a-day Statewide Operations Center.

SHA staff and engineers also plan and design highway improvements, environmental projects, and support systems such as signals and signs; evaluate and implement safety enhancements; issue truck hauling and private access permits; execute contracts that support private industry jobs; and evaluate materials and new technologies to improve quality and efficiency. SHA's Highway Safety Office also administers federal money for educational programs and grants.

Whether a question about Adopt-A-Highway or reporting a pothole, a request for maps, or graffiti removal, Pedersen said that the enhanced system guides customers through an easy process of submitting inquiries.

For example, to report a pothole, a customer enters the county and the system provides a list of only the state roads in that jurisdiction.

Customers do not need to know the proper office for their specific concern, CCMS automatically routes the request.

To enter a service request or concern, persons can visit SHA's web page at www.roads.maryland.gov, click on the "Contact us" link in the left navigational bar, and follow directions. The system will generate a tracking number and send automated e-mails when a service request is created and closed.

SHA's online customer service system is monitored during business hours, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday (excluding holidays and service reduction days).

Looking Behind?
Harvard University did a study in which they found that only 3% of their graduates had written goals.
It's sad to say, but most people don't have any goals for their lives.
Oh, they might make an empty resolution every New Year's Eve, but they don't have clearly defined, written goals, and detailed plans to achieve them.
Some people don't have a vision for their future because, they can't get over their past.
They go through life looking through the rear view mirror and yesterday seems much more important than tomorrow.
If you are struggling to move ahead in life, maybe you need a fresh start.
Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; old things have passed away; behold, all things have become new.

Funds Available To Protect, Restore Wetland Properties

Jon Hall, state conservationist for the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Maryland, has announced that the NRCS is now accepting applications for financial assistance through the Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP). The first application period to receive consideration for WRP funds runs until February 5, 2010.

"WRP is an important conservation program because it restores and protects wetland and wildlife habitat that was lost because of agricultural production," said Hall. "Forested wetlands, tidal marshes, and former wetlands on agricultural lands are all eligible for the program."

Participants in WRP may receive financial and technical assistance to restore and protect wetlands. Compensation for removing wet and difficult areas from production may also be offered. Restoring and protecting wetlands may increase fish and wildlife habitat, improve water quality, reduce flooding, and protect groundwater and biological diversity, according to Hall.

"Maryland has enjoyed tremendous success during our previous enrollment periods by assisting landowners in installing wetland conservation practices," said Mark Rose, assistant state conservationist for programs in Maryland. "In last year's enrollment, we provided $5,400,000 in financial assistance to farmers that allowed us to secure conservation easements on over 1,900 wetland acres in Maryland."

Farmers and landowners interested in restoring and protecting wetlands and wildlife habitat on their property should contact their local USDA field office. Applications will be evaluated and ranked according to levels of environmental benefits pending available funds. NRCS offers a continuous application period for WRP, and applications received by each deadline will be evaluated for funding.

Completed applications must be received by 4:30 p.m. EDT on the following dates in 2010: February 5, March 5, and April 3. Any application not funded will be considered under the next round unless the applicant withdraws his or her proposal.

The program offers three enrollment options:

1. Permanent easement is a conservation easement in perpetuity. USDA pays 100 percent of the easement value and up to 100 percent of the restoration costs.

2. 30-year easement is an easement that expires after 30 years. USDA pays up to 75 percent of the easement value and up to 75 percent of the restoration costs.

3. 10-year restoration cost-share agreement is an agreement to restore or enhance the wetland functions and values without placing an easement on the enrolled acres. USDA pays up to 75 percent of the restoration costs.

Easement values are determined by market analyses and divided into geographic areas. Eligible landowners on Maryland's lower eastern shore may be eligible to receive anywhere from $2,750 to $3,209 per acre, while southern Maryland rates range from $6,325 to $8,434 per acre. Northern/Baltimore and western Maryland also have uniquely established rates.

For both permanent and 30-year easements, USDA pays all costs associated with recording the easement in the local land records office, including recording fees, charges for abstracts, survey and appraisal fees, and title insurance. No easement shall be created on land that has changed ownership during the preceding seven years without a written waiver from the chief of NRCS. Eligible acres are limited to private and tribal lands.

"NRCS and its partners continue to provide assistance to landowners after completion of restoration activities," said Rose. "This assistance may be in the form of reviewing restoration measures, clarifying technical and administrative aspects of the easement and project management needs, and providing basic biological and engineering advice on how to achieve optimum results for wetland dependent species."

NRCS is USDA's lead conservation agency and has worked with farmers and landowners for 74 years to conserve natural resources on private lands. Maryland landowners can learn more about conserving natural resources by contacting their local USDA field office or by visiting the NRCS Maryland homepage at www.md.nrcs.usda.gov.

Garrett County Non-Profits:

The Work They Do, The People They Serve

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland convened a joint venture task force last spring made up of representatives from other non-profit organizations that share common goals and interests. The idea was to brainstorm and exchange ideas for immediate and long-term projects that make a difference in Garrett County. Representatives from the following organizations took part in the task force discussion: American Association for University Women, Business and Professional Women, the Black Diamond Council of the Girl Scouts, and the Garrett County Commission for Women.

The task force found that one immediate need is for more publicized information about local non-profit organizations, both in terms of services the organizations provide and in ways in which persons may volunteer for these groups. As a result, articles such as the following will be published in The Republican on a semi-regular basis, helping to inform the public of the various volunteer efforts. Hospice of Garrett County is the first topic of the series.

Organization: Hospice of Garrett County
Executive Director: Brenda Butscher,
Address: PO Box 271, Oakland, MD 21550
Telephone: 301-334-5151 or 800-521-5252

What is Hospice?

Centuries ago, hospice meant a place of refuge for the wary traveler to seek rest and care. Over the years, hospice has developed into the concept of providing care in the home, nursing home, assistant living homes, group homes, and the hospital for the terminally ill.

Hospice's services include pain control and physical, emotional, social, and spiritual support for the patient and the patient's family during the illness and through the grief and bereavement process.

Hospice of Garrett County Inc., a non-profit organization, began caring for the terminally ill in 1983. The organization operates under the direction of a 17-member board of directors. The Hospice team consists of a medical director, executive director, registered nurses, certified nursing assistants, social worker, chaplain, patient care volunteers, bereavement support, office staff, and auxiliary volunteers.

Who Needs Hospice?

Patients who have been diagnosed with a terminal illness with a prognosis of six months or less to live if the disease pursues its normal course can benefit from Hospice. When the disease doesn't take the normal course, the patient may remain on Hospice as long as he or she continues to decline. Many people assume that Hospice only admits cancer patients, but this is not the case. Any illness that is reason for the 6-month prognosis qualifies a patient for admission.

Patients in Hospice may have ALS, heart disease, respiratory failure, renal failure, dementia, general decline, end stage Alzheimer's disease, and other terminal illnesses.

Hospice care is available to persons of all ages. The youngest patient in Garrett County's Hospice was 6 months old. The oldest was 104.

Referrals & Admissions

A family member, patient, friend, physician, or a health care professional may make a referral for a Hospice patient. The patient must be aware of the referral and the patient's physician must order the Hospice care.

The patient will be eligible for services if he or she has been diagnosed with a terminal illness and desires palliative (symptom control) rather than curative treatments. Patients must also reside in Garrett County.

Non-Discrimination

Hospice services and employment/volunteer opportunities are available without discrimination on the grounds of age, race, color, national origin, sex, creed, handicap, or disability.

Volunteers

Hospice is always in need of more volunteers. On Dean's List At Potomac St.

Four local residents have been named to the Potomac State College of West Virginia University dean's list for the fall 2009 semester.

They are Clarissa Blamble, Reece Duncan, and Bethany Stevens, all of Oakland, and Devan Yoder of Friendsville.

To be eligible for the dean's list, students must earn a 3.0 to 3.699 grade point average and be enrolled full time.

College Students Advised To File FAFSA Form

Students seeking state and federal aid for postsecondary education are advised to start filling out their Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) forms as soon as possible in order to be eligible for financial assistance. The deadline to receive Maryland state grants and scholarships is March 1.

Much of the nearly $110 million in grants and scholarships budgeted by Governor Martin O'Malley and allocated by the Maryland Higher Education Commission's Office of Student Financial Assistance (OSFA) goes to those who file their FAFSA forms early.

Most students who are already receiving scholarships from Maryland and are seeking renewals must also file their FAFSA.

Competition for financial aid will be especially strong this year if 2009 was any indication. MHEC received 20,000 more FAFSAs last year than it did in 2008 because of the current economic recession.

"I encourage every student interested in pursuing a degree at a two-year or four-year public or independent college or private career school to make sure they file the FAFSA by the March 1 deadline," Governor O'Malley said. "I've been proud during my administration to budget about $333 million to more than 174,000 students. Many of those students would not have received financial aid from the state if they had not filed the FAFSA."

Students can access the FAFSA form online at www.fafsa.ed.gov.

For information regarding Maryland financial assistance programs, prospective postsecondary students can access www.mhec.state.md.us/financialAid/descriptions.asp. At that link, they will be able to find a description of each program. They may also e-mail OSFA for more information at osfamail@mhec.state.md.us.

The Maryland Higher Education Commission is a 12-member coordinating board responsible for establishing statewide policies for Maryland public and independent colleges and universities and private career schools. It serves as an advocate for more than 350,000 college students in Maryland, for the state and its needs, and for business and industry in Maryland.

FSU to Offer Workshop on Completing FAFSA Form

The Frostburg State University Financial Aid Office will offer a workshop on completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) form. All members of the community are invited to attend the workshop this Sunday, Jan. 24, from 4 to 6 p.m. in Pullen Hall for hands-on assistance.

Participants will need to bring a copy of their 2009 federal tax return (if completed) or 2008 federal tax return (for parents and students), the value of all investments (for parents and students), savings and checking account information (for parents and students), FAFSA PIN number (if a PIN for completing a previous FAFSA has been obtained) and Social Security cards.

Students seeking state and federal aid for postsecondary education are required to complete FAFSA forms to be eligible for financial assistance.

For more information, persons may telephone the FSU Financial Aid Office at 301-687-4301.

DEVILS IN THE DETAILS

When you receive an Offer To Purchase, you are likely to focus on the price. You might be ecstatic over a full price offer, but you should be aware how "contingencies" could affect the likelihood of success. Or it may be a lower price but the terms make it more favorable.

Almost every offer has a mortgage contingency, stating that the buyer will secure financing at a certain rate and for a certain term. Make sure these factors are realistic. A buyer seeking a 30-year loan at 4% with no points may be hedging their bets if your agent advises that these loans are typically written at 7% with 1.5 points. Unrealistic terms can allow the buyer to back out if they get cold feet or find another property they prefer.

Another sticky contingency more common these days is when a buyer states that they must sell their home before they can finalize the purchase of yours. There has to be a realistic time limit, so the buyer doesn't tie up your listing.

It's wise to respond with a "kick-out" clause that allows you to keep your home on the market while the buyers promote theirs, offering them a 72-hour period to fulfill the contract if you should receive another offer in the interim.

Having a professional REALTOR® assist you is the safest way to protect your investment.

Remember me

Remember me when flowers bloom
Early in the spring
Remember me on sunny days
In the fun that summer brings.

Remember me in the fall
As you walk through leaves of gold
And remember me in the winter time
In the stories that are told.

But most of all remember me
Each day, right from the start
I will be forever near
For I live within your heart.

On the Money

Money can't buy love...can't buy happiness. No doubt it's good to have for all the necessities of life. But how much is enough? Too much seems to get us into trouble, too little and we're struggling to stay alive and well.

Money can buy us what we need and what we want, but maybe the best advice is right on the money. Someone made the decision to put it there; it says "In God We Trust".

What if we were to center our lives around God, instead of around money? Try praying to Him concerning your needs; trust in Him to provide. It says in Matthew 6:8, "for your Father knows what you need before you ask Him."

Visit your house of worship this week and learn how to trust in God and the riches only He can provide.

Bear Wrongs Patiently

The fifth spiritual work of mercy is to bear wrongs patiently. Bearing wrongs patiently does not, however, mean being a doormat for others to walk on. It simply means that, regardless of the wrongs which we suffer, we should bear them all patiently. For example, if you have had something stolen from your unlocked car, this virtue requires that you treat this with patience and equanimity, but not that you continue to keep your car unlocked. It is more about the attitude that you have concerning the wrong done to you. We might take a lesson from the ancient stoics, who counseled that every event has two handles, as it were, one by which it can be borne and one by which it is unbearable. Remember that everything here is temporary and that liars, thieves, and even murderers really have no power over our immortal souls. Finally, consider the example of Jesus in his last days. Faced with false charges and inhuman torture and suffering, he prayed for his accusers and tormentors. We should show patience by praying for those who wrong us, realizing that they are the ones who have truly been harmed by their misdeeds.

For one is approved if, mindful of God, he endures pain while suffering unjustly. For what credit is it, if when you do wrong and are beaten for it you take it patiently? But if when you do right and suffer for it you take it patiently, you have God's approval.

Antihistamines for Motion Sickness

Motion sickness can occur when traveling on cruise ships, airplanes, trains, and automobiles. It is thought to occur when there is an imbalance between the cholinergic and adrenergic systems in the central nervous system. The brain senses movement in response to signals received from a person's ears, eyes, and muscles. If the signals do not match, motion sickness may result. For example, if the eyes cannot sense movement because a window is not available during transportation while the inner ear senses motion, a mismatch in signals to the brain about motion may occur. Symptoms of motion sickness include nausea, dizziness, and cold sweats.

Antihistamines available over-the-counter, such as meclizine and dimenhydrinate, are used for the treatment and prevention of motion sickness. They are usually taken 30 to 60 minutes before traveling. These medications may cause dry mouth and drowsiness. Scopolamine is a medication that also may be prescribed for motion sickness. Scopolamine works by inhibiting the cholinergic system. The medication is worn as a patch behind the ear to prevent motion sickness for up to 3 days. Common side effects include dry mouth, blurred vision, and drowsiness.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It was American cartoonist, humorist and journalist Kin Hubbard who made the following sage observation: "There's no secret about success. Did you ever know a successful man who didn't tell you about it?"

• Next time you're in Iowa, you might want to stop by the rural town of Riverside, which touts itself as the future birthplace of Captain James T. Kirk. Yep, the future birthplace. It seems that "Star Trek" creator Gene Roddenberry asserted that the character of James Tiberius Kirk was born in Iowa, but he didn't specify exactly where. In 1985, the Riverside City Council voted to declare their town the future birthplace of the character, later writing to Roddenberry and receiving his approval. In honor of its newfound claim to fame, the city began hosting an annual Trek Fest, complete with a Spockapalooza battle of the bands.

• If you enjoy cooking, you might have heard of some of the following cookbooks: "Kill It and Grill It," "The Joy of Pickling," "Full of Beans," "The Stinking Cookbook" and "I Can't Believe It's Not Meat!" Then again, maybe not.

• The term "bric-a-brac," usually used to refer to a collection of tawdry trinkets, comes from the French, where its original meaning was "at random."

• Most parents of small children know that trampolines can be dangerous, and they are. Every year, nearly 100,000 people receive emergency-room treatment for injuries sustained while using trampolines. Those injuries are hardly ever fatal, though. Pools, on the other hand, are far more deadly; more than 1,000 people in the United States die in swimming pools annually.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 30, 1835, Andrew Jackson becomes the first American president to experience an assassination attempt. Richard Lawrence, an unemployed house painter, shot at Jackson, but his gun misfired. A furious 67-year-old Jackson confronted his attacker, clubbing Lawrence several times with his walking cane. A second shot also misfired.

• On Jan. 27, 1888, the National Geographic Society is founded in Washington, D.C., for "the increase and diffusion of geographical knowledge." Readership of the magazine did not grow, however, until it changed the format to articles of general interest accompanied by photographs.

• On Jan. 25, 1924, the first Winter Olympics takes off in style at Chamonix in the French Alps. Spectators were thrilled by the ski jump and bobsled, as well as 12 other events involving a total of six sports. The United States came in third, winning its only gold medal in the 500-meter speed-skating event.

• On Jan. 26, 1934, producer Samuel Goldwyn buys the film rights to "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz" by L. Frank Baum. Goldwyn had intended for Shirley Temple to play Dorothy in the film, but 17-year-old Judy Garland got the part instead.

• On Jan. 31, 1945, Pvt. Eddie Slovik becomes the first American soldier since the Civil War to be executed for desertion — and the only one who suffered such a fate during World War II. Slovik claimed he was "too scared and too nervous" to be a rifleman, and threatened to run away if forced into combat. He deserted the next day.

• On Jan. 29, 1964, Stanley Kubrick's black comic masterpiece, "Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb," opens in theaters. The movie's popularity was evidence of changing attitudes toward atomic weapons and the concept of nuclear deterrence.

• On Jan. 28, 1978, "Fantasy Island" is created as a follow-up to "The Love Boat" TV series. "Fantasy Island" became a hit and ran for six years. Screen actor Ricardo Montalban played the mysterious host Mr. Roarke, and his diminutive sidekick, Tattoo, was played by dwarf Herve Villechaize.

Collecting by Larry Cox

Q. I have a Kewpie-type doll that was manufactured by the Cleveland Metal Works. There is a small slot in its head so that it can be used as a bank. It is also marked Lennox Furnace Company. Do I have something of value? — Carl, Rixford, Pa.

A. Even though Rose O'Neill was an illustrator, designer, artist, novelist and poet, it was her Kewpie doll that made her famous. One of the better references is Kewpie for Collectors by John Axe (Hobby House Press, $27.95). I could not find your Kewpie bank in the book, but that isn't surprising, since literally thousands of designs by numerous companies were made and distributed throughout the 20th century. I did contact a bank collector who said yours might be worth about $40 in good condition.

A show's Castle may not be a book's author

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q: I recently read a mystery written by Richard Castle and was curious if he is both an actor and a writer. The picture of him on the back of the book looks just like the actor on the show. –Jeanne Winnick, Dublin, Ohio

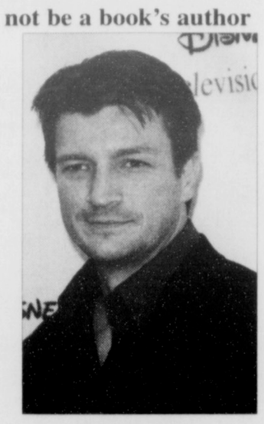
A: You've fallen prey to a promotional trick used by ABC and Hyperion Books. "Heat Wave," the novel written by the character Richard Castle in the show, was published for real in September as if Castle actually existed and wrote it. He's played in the series by actor Nathan Fillion, but an unidentified writer actually is responsible for the book.

Q: What ever happened to "The Tudors"? Are there plans to complete the story? –Phil Belmont, Lamar, Colo.

A: In fact, it will be completed by the fourth and final season of the drama series, which Showtime is scheduled to begin running April 10. The emphasis of the 10 remaining episodes will be on Henry VIII (still played by Jonathan Rhys Meyers) and his last two wives, Catherine Howard (Tamzin Merchant) and Catherine Parr (Joely Richardson).

Q: Someone told me "As the World Turns" is ending in September. If so, who or what company is responsible? I have watched the show since its inception, and ending this series will make me and a host of other people very angry and upset. –Mrs. Tommy L. Jones, Garland, Texas

A: Since the daytime serial will have been on the air for



Nathan Fillion

54 years at the time it's set to leave, you've obviously been watching it a long time. CBS made the decision not to continue airing it, but all hope is not lost – yet, anyway. TeleNext Media, the production company responsible for making the show, is looking for a new home for it, though it must be added that the company didn't have much success in trying to shop the now-defunct "Guiding Light" the same way.

Q: I was a big fan of Gene Barry and "Burke's Law," and I would like to know if the show can be found on DVD. –Terri Spiegel, Lantana, Fla.

A: The mystery series' first season was released in 2008, in two separate volumes, by VCI Entertainment.

The Planning Commission sponsored a public information meeting on the initial draft on October 14, 2009. The Planning Commission has accepted citizen comments submitted at the public meeting and in writing or by e-mail since the public meeting.

Based on the comments received, the Planning Commission has prepared Revised Draft Ordinances that incorporate major changes to the September 29 drafts regarding subdivision policies in the AR (Agricultural Resource) and RR (Rural Resource) land classifications and zoning districts. The Revised Draft Ordinances:

- Allow subdivisions using either a non-cluster option or a cluster option.
- Remove the provisions requiring creation of a resource parcel when subdivision occurs.
- Allow subdivision with a 3-acre minimum lot size.
- Allow subdivision with a one-acre minimum lot size for transfer to children or grandchildren of the lot owner; for subdivision of a parcel less than 20 acres in area; or by waiver, for subdivision of parcels larger than 20 acres if they are primarily surrounded by subdivided lots.
- Provide incentives to promote cluster subdivision as a preferred option.

The Revised Draft of the Deep Creek Watershed Zoning Ordinance also reduces the area of the proposed Scenic Protection Overlay District to include only those areas identified as "Crestline Sub-district" on the initial draft zoning map. Within the Crestline areas, the Revised Draft has eliminated requirements for design, location and screening of buildings. Requirements for preserving and/or planting trees are retained for the sides and rear of structures within the Crestline areas.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the DCW Zoning Ordinance:

1) New Zoning Districts are proposed: Agricultural Resource (AR), Rural Resource (RR) and Lake Residential 2 (LR-2) are new districts intended to preserve rural character and conserve natural resources by limiting residential development to a relatively low average density. Standards for subdivisions in the AR and RR districts are proposed. The Rural Development (RD) district is proposed to be eliminated.
2) A Scenic Protection Overlay District is proposed for those areas identified as Crestlines on the proposed zoning map. This provision is intended to preserve the scenic views of the ridge tops and crest lines surrounding Deep Creek Lake. Requirements for retaining and planting trees on the sides and rear of structures when viewed from the lake and shoreline are proposed.
3) Architectural Standards for non-residential structures in the TC, TR and GC zoning districts for metal buildings are proposed.
4) Provisions, including set-backs, for domestic, agricultural and industrial wind energy devices are proposed.
5) New set-backs for drilling for natural gas are proposed.
6) New provisions for non-conforming structures and grandfathered non-conforming lots are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Subdivision Ordinance:

1) The Agricultural Resource (AR) and Rural Resource (RR) land classifications are proposed to be expanded and new standards for subdivisions in these areas are proposed.
2) A provision that would allow the Planning Commission to require a Traffic Impact Study for major subdivisions is proposed.
3) A provision to retain trees and other vegetative cover for new subdivisions abutting Scenic Byways is proposed.
4) Provisions to delineate the boundaries of any wetlands or Source Water Protection Areas on subdivision plans are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Sensitive Areas Ordinance:

1) Provisions to protect Source Water Protection Areas are proposed.
2) A provision to limit the exemption from the steep slope requirements to lots of record that are less than four acres is proposed.
3) A provision to prevent construction of buildings on man-made slopes exceeding 30% grade is proposed.
4) A provision to use the Maryland Sensitive Species Project Review Areas map as the indicator for referring applicants to DNR is proposed.

The Revised Draft Ordinances are formatted such that readers will be able to easily compare them with the September 29 drafts. All three Revised Draft Ordinances and related maps are available for public review on the County's website at http:/www.garrettcounty.org by clicking on Draft Revisions to Ordinances under News. The revised drafts are also available at the Department of Planning and Land Development office, all branch locations of the Ruth Enlow Libraries and in the main offices of the Crellin, Bloomington, Swan Meadow, Yough Glades and Route 40 public schools.

SKI AND SNOWBOARD CLUB

Members must bring a $28 deposit for the Seven Springs trip by tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 22. Students are asked to please bring exact change. Those with questions should see Mr. Berger.

CLASS OF 2013

The class of 2013 has decided to collect dues to help pay for the expenses of prom, senior trip, and graduation. Class dues are a way to minimize fundraising that the class would have to do to pay for these things. The class officers and advisors have set the class dues at $30. This is a one time payment. As an incentive to pay dues as a freshman, a reduced price of $25 will be given to any student who pays his/her dues in full by Friday, Feb. 5. Class officers and advisors will be collecting dues from Jan. 25 to Feb. 5. Those with questions should contact Jackie Hawkins at Northern High School.

GARRETT COLLEGE/FINANCIAL NIGHTS

Garrett College will host financial nights at the college tonight, Thursday, Jan. 21, and Thursday, Feb. 11, from 6 to 8 p.m. Students and parents are encouraged to attend in order to learn about the filing for financial aid and scholarships. The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) will be discussed at length. Those who wish to complete the FAFSA following the presentation and submit it electronically are encouraged to bring tax returns or W-2 forms for 2009. Garrett College financial aid staff also will answer questions about state aid and various scholarships, including the Garrett County Scholarship and the Garrett College Foundation scholarships. The program will be held in Room 205/207 in the college's Continuing Education building. For more information, persons should contact the Garrett College Office of Admissions at 301-387-3044 or toll-free at 866-554-2773, ext. 3044.

AFTER-PROM MEETING

There will be an organizational meeting for the after-prom on Monday, Jan. 25, at 6 p.m. in Room 200. This meeting is for all teachers, parents, and students who would like to help plan or volunteer with the 2010 after-prom. Input is needed from students and parents to make the after-prom successful. Those with questions should see Mrs. Law in Room 200.

JUNIOR CLASS DUES

Dues for the class of 2011 are still being collected by Mrs. Garlitz and Ms. Harman. These dues go toward cost of prom and senior trip, as well as graduation expenses for the school. Those with questions should contact Mrs. Garlitz or Ms. Harman. The total due amount is $40.

JUNIORS

Applications are now available in the Counseling Center for the Maryland Distinguished Scholar Program. This highly competitive program aims to identify high achieving high school juniors who show exceptional academic promise. To be eligible for this program, applicants must have a 3.7 GPA (approx. 93%) in core academic classes from 9th grade through the first semester of 11th grade. In addition, SAT or PSAT test scores are reviewed. Interested juniors who would like more information and/or an application should stop in the Counseling Center. The deadline to return the completed application to the Counseling Center is Feb. 1.

YEARBOOK DISCOUNT CARDS

NHS yearbook still has a limited number of discount cards for sale. These offer discounts at a variety of local businesses and can be used all year. Cards are $10 each and can be purchased from any yearbook staff member, from Ms. Theriot (Room 216), or in the main office of the school.

FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE

Jan. 22: period 4; Jan. 25: periods 1 and 2; Jan. 26: last day of first semester; Jan. 27: class changes for second semester.

SOFTBALL

Any girl interested in playing on the junior varsity or varsity softball team in the spring is encouraged to attend a softball clinic to be held at Mtn. Ridge High School on Jan. 24 and 31 and Feb. 7 and 14. Registration forms can be picked up in the office.

CHRISTMAS CARD RECYCLING

The Northern Lights Envirothon team is once again collecting used Christmas cards for St. Jude's Ranch for Children. The children at St. Jude's Ranch make new cards by removing the front and attaching a new back. The benefits are two-fold: Customers receive "green" holiday cards for use, and the children receive payment for their work and learn the benefits and importance of "going green." Those interested in participating should bring old cards to Room 224 or give them to any Envirothon member. Participants can remove the backs of cards if desired, but it is not necessary.

BOYS STATE PROGRAM

Applications are now available in the Counseling Center for the American Legion 2010 Boys State Program that will be held at McDaniel College, Westminster, from June 20 to 26. This program aims to expose current high school juniors to the United States constitutional form of government. There is also an opportunity for participants to earn three college credit hours from Clemson University. Boys State is endorsed by the state superintendent of the Maryland State Board of Education. Juniors who may be interested in this opportunity are encouraged to stop in the Counseling Center for additional information and an application.

SERVICE LEARNING

Those who completed service learning hours in the fall or over the holidays are reminded to turn in hours. Students who do not get them turned in within four months will not get credit for them.

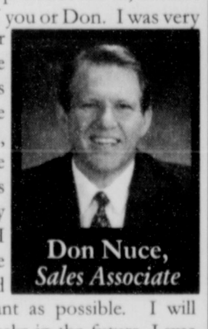
Dear Ms. Seib,
. . . This has not been a very pleasant experience for us, but not because of you or Don. I was very much in the position to lose our home. But I thank God that He connected me with professionals like you and Don. . . . From the very beginning we hit it off well, and he began much more aggressively than our previous realtor. If I were to have any further real estate dealings, I would not hesitate to call him. He did everything he possibly could to make this as easy and pleasant as possible. I will recommend him to anyone who asks in the future. I was acquainted with Bob and Beverly Everett, and they referred me to Don. And to them I am grateful. Please feel free to use anything I have said to promote Don or your business. And if I can be of any further assistance please don't hesitate to call me.



Don Nuce, Sales Associate

SWALLOW FALLS IN A RAGE – Melting snow and days of rain created a dangerous situation in much of Garrett County Sunday and Monday, with flooding taking place in most waterways, some very serious. Swallow Falls, shown above, was nearly unrecognizable as the waters roiled up and over the riverbed on Monday. Muddy Creek, which flows into the Youghiogheny just downstream from the location above, became so swollen that it took out the bridge to the Youghiogheny Mountain Resort (YMR), which is the only entry to the area. For a short time, some residents were stranded there while others could not get home. A temporary bridge was put in place early this week, according to Brad Frantz at the Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Management, and the permanent one is to be installed early next week. The temporary bridge has a weight capacity that will allow any needed emergency vehicles, Frantz noted. He said while some roads were closed for a time because of flooding on Monday, there were no reports of injury or danger outside of the YMR situation. The temperatures went back down Wednesday, to the usual January weather in Garrett County. Snow is falling and will continue to fall for a few days, according to the forecast. Photo by Jim Riley.

Planning Group Slates Hearing On Land Ordinances

The Garrett County Planning Commission will hold a public hearing concerning proposed revisions to three principal land development ordinances on Saturday, Feb. 6, in the Garrett College auditorium at 10 a.m.

The proposed revisions would affect the Deep Creek Watershed Zoning, Garrett County Subdivision, and Garrett County Sensitive Areas ordinances.

Initial preliminary drafts of these three ordinances were released for public review on Sept. 29, 2009, by the Garrett County Department of Planning and Land Development.

The Planning Commission then sponsored a public information meeting on the initial draft on Oct. 14, 2009. Since that time, the Planning Commission has accepted citizen comments submitted at the public meeting and in writing or by e-mail.

Based on the comments received, the commission has prepared Revised Draft Ordinances that incorporate major changes to the Sept. 29 drafts regarding subdivision policies in the Agricultural Resource (AR) and Rural Resource (RR) land classifications and zoning districts.

The Revised Draft Ordinances would do the following:

•Allow subdivisions using either a non-cluster option or a cluster option.

•Remove the provisions requiring creation of a resource parcel when subdivision occurs.

•Allow subdivision with a three-acre minimum lot size.

•Allow subdivision with a one-acre minimum lot size for transfer to children or grandchildren of the lot owner; for subdivision of a parcel less than 20 acres in area; or by waiver, for subdivision of parcels larger than 20 acres if they are primarily surrounded by subdivided lots.

•Provide incentives to promote cluster subdivision as a preferred option.

4-H AWARD RECEIVED – The Garrett County Extension staff of the University of Maryland recently received a $15,000 award from the National 4-H Council. The Family Strengthening Award, sponsored by the Annie E. Casey Foundation, was presented to five programs of distinction across the nation. The award was presented at the National 4-H Conference held recently in Rochester, N.Y. Pictured above with the award check, from left, are Don Floyd, executive director of the National 4-H Council; Ann Sherrard, Garrett County 4-H educator; Willie Lantz, agriculture and natural resources educator; Jeff Howard, Maryland State 4-H Program leader; and Sharon Anderson and Suzanne LeMenestral, both of the National 4-H Council.

Annie E. Casey Award Received By 4-H Program

The Garrett County 4-H program was recently chosen to receive the Annie E. Casey Family Strengthening Award. The program selections are made by the National 4-H Council in Washington, D.C., and Annie E. Casey provides the financial support for awards in the amount of $15,000.

Only five exemplary programs are selected each year from among those submitted across the nation.

The Garrett County award was given in recognition of the youth entrepreneurship project offered through the 4-H program over the past several years. The youth program was coordinated by the University of Maryland Extension staff and Cheryl DeBerry, agriculture marketing specialist, Garrett County Economic Development.

The program began with the development of a youth track at four Rural Enterprise Conferences where participants learned basic small business development skills. The conferences were sponsored by the Rural Development Coalition, which has representatives from both Garrett County and Preston County, W.Va.

Following their conference experience, the youth were provided an opportunity to develop and sell products at a youth market. At the conclusion of the project, 4-H members were encouraged to participate as vendors in the Mountain Fresh farmers' market.

GC Commissioners Hear Staff Reports; Official Stresses Need For H1N1 Shots

The Garrett County commissioners held their quarterly staff meeting Tuesday morning, hearing reports from 13 county department and agency leaders. Among the topics reported were H1N1 vaccinations, Liberty Mews, Garrett College enrollment, development projects, election judges, and Extension office changes.

Health Department

Health officer Rodney Glotfelty reported that Health Department personnel vaccinated 50 residents for the H1N1 influenza virus during a clinic on Saturday. He noted that demand for the vaccination has tapered off since a flu wave went through the county late last year.

Glotfelty stressed the importance of getting a vaccination, as a second wave of H1N1 could sweep through the area. He noted that metropolitan areas of the state had flu waves, and may experience a third.

The health officer also stressed the importance of people checking on their elderly and disabled neighbors during frigid weather. He noted some people turn their home thermostats way down to save fuel. But this creates a potentially dangerous situation for certain people.

Glotfelty also reported that the Health Department recently received a grant to get the word out about the federal Children's Health Insurance Program.

Children whose family income is at or below 200 percent of the federal poverty level are eligible for the program. Benefits include dental care.

The health officer estimates that as many as 600 Garrett County children are eligible for the program. Health Department outreach workers will be collaborating with Community Action, schools, libraries, and event organizers to inform residents about the program and get children enrolled.

For more information, persons may call the Health Department at 301-334-7777.

Community Action

The Liberty Mews housing development is 1½ months ahead of schedule, thanks to great weather in October, Community Action president Duane Yoder reported.

"I think it will be on the market in summer," Yoder said.

Renters will have the opportunity to buy units at the development, located along Liberty Street in Oakland.

Yoder also reported that Community Action's home energy assistance program helped the same number of residents this winter as the previous one, but had fewer dollars to do so.

"This created some problems," he said about people trying to keep their houses warm.

The president noted, however, that his agency was able to expand its weatherization program, which enabled numerous homeowners to save energy this winter.

Community Action exceeded its home weatherization by 800 percent, de-

Sen. Edwards, Del. Beitzel Announce Their Legislative Agenda For 2010

With the 2010 session of the Maryland General Assembly now in full swing, Del. Wendell Beitzel (R-Dist. 1A) and Sen. George Edwards (R-Dist. 1) have released their legislative agenda.

Despite withdraws of requests to file bills regarding the accommodations tax and authorizing collections regarding sewer system bills, Beitzel and Edwards will have their "hands full" dealing with wind turbines, natural gas, and obstetrician issues in Garrett County, according to a spokesperson for the lawmakers.

"This is going to be a very important session for the people of Garrett County," said Beitzel.

He and Edwards will once again pursue legislation that would authorize the Garrett County commissioners to establish ordinances regarding setbacks and the decommissioning of wind turbines after they have served their purpose.

The local lawmakers are also drafting legislation that would give authority to the Public Service Commission to establish regulations on the state level.

"If we are going to have wind turbines in the state of Maryland, then there needs to be simple standards that make sure that they do not leave a footprint for years to come," Edwards said.

He and Beitzel will also refile a measure that would clarify the way title searches will occur in regards to dormant minerals found under property in the state. A similar bill was approved by the House of Delegates during the 2009 legislative session, but failed to receive approval in the Senate.

Additionally, Beitzel and Edwards will also be seeking legislation to resolve a medical crisis in Garrett County. Currently, Garrett is the only county in Maryland that does not have a fulltime obstetrician. There are many family practitio-

Cathell, Crew To Receive HAI Service Award

The Helicopter Association International (HAI) has announced that the crew of CGNR 6033, U.S. Coast Guard, Coast Guard Air Station Clearwater, Fla., which includes Garrett County native Daniel B. Cathell, is the recipient of the 2010 Sikorsky Humanitarian Service Award.

The crew will be presented with the international honor at the annual Heli-Expo 2010's Salute to Excellence Awards banquet, slated in Houston, Texas, on Feb. 22.

The award is being given to the crew to recognize its efforts on Sept. 7, 2008, when the men launched from Providenciales, Turks and Caicos, to respond to a stricken fishing vessel with four people aboard, 50 miles from the eye of Hurricane Ike in its most dangerous quadrant, according to the HAI report.

"Lt. Commander Mark W. Turner and Lt. Jr. Grade Cathell skillfully piloted the aircraft through the dangerous semi-circle of the hurricane, replete with deteriorating weather condi-

Commissioners Retract Hotel Tax Legislation

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners issued a statement late last week on proposed legislation regarding the local hotel rental tax.

The board asked Sen. George Edwards and Del. Wendell Beitzel on Thursday to retract a proposed bill that would have granted it authority to increase the county hotel rental tax to 8 percent.

Local vacation rental company owners voiced their opposition in November when the commissioners announced their plan to introduce the legislation in the 2010 General Assembly session.

"The board unanimously agreed with information presented by the vacation rental business companies that indicated that an increase from the current 5 percent would have a detrimental effect on the tourism industry in Garrett County," the commissioners noted in a statement. "The board seriously considered the realistic increase in revenue that an increase would provide with what could be negative rental income for local transient vacation rental entities."

CATHELL TO BE HONORED ALONG WITH CREW FOR RESCUE – Daniel Cathell, a Garrett County native and son of Carl and Kayla Cathell, Oakland, will be honored next month by the Helicopter Association International (HAI) as he and his helicopter crew will receive one of this year's HAI Humanitarian Service awards. The men are being recognized for their heroic efforts in rescuing four people stranded in the ocean in the midst of Hurricane Ike in 2008. See story. Cathell is pictured at the far left. His crewmates are Lt. Commander Mark Turner, AST3 Jon E. Geskus (rescue swimmer), and AMT3 Jason A. Menezes.

STONER JERSEY RETIRED – During a special pre-game ceremony last Friday night at Southern High School, the high school baseball jersey of SHS 2002 alum Tobi Stoner, now in the major leagues with the New York Mets, was retired. In addition, a framed replica of his Mets jersey was also unveiled. Stoner, who pitched for Garrett College and Davis & Elkins College after concluding his high school career, was selected by the Mets in the 16th round of the 2006 draft. He climbed quickly through the minor leagues, posting strong statistics for Double-A Binghamton and Triple-A Buffalo, before being called up to majors last fall. He is the first Southern graduate to reach the major leagues. Most of his former local coaches were on hand for Friday's jersey retirement event, which was a surprise to Stoner. Pictured from left above are: Dan Holler and Jim Bosley, high school coaches; Stoner; Steve Weaver, high school coach; Ed Wildesen, SHS principal and Stoner's coach at Garrett College; and current Northern High coach Phil Carr, who coached Stoner on Garrett County's American Legion team. Also participating was Matt Wondolowsky, the Mets scout who signed Stoner. After the ceremony Stoner expressed his appreciation to all involved for their support and encouragement.

Watson Running To Retain Register Of Wills Position

Register of Wills Rita Watson this week filed as a Republican candidate for election to the post which she has occupied since being appointed to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of long-time register Joseph DiSimone last June.

DiSimone has volunteered and been appointed treasurer of her campaign. He served as the elected register for Garrett County from the time of his election in 1978 until his retirement.

"Rita has served the people of Garrett County as chief deputy register of wills for more than 30 years and she is highly qualified both by experience and education and by the empathy she feels for those who come to that office having lost a loved one," DiSimone said. "I think she has earned the right to continue to serve in that post."

Watson joined the office in April 1979 and was appointed a chief deputy on Sept. 1 of that year. A graduate of Southern High School, she has studied accounting through Penn Foster Career College. She is a member of the Maryland Register of Wills Association and an associate member of the Maryland Orphans' Court Association. She has completed seminars and classes through the Registers Association, the Maryland State Comptroller's Office, the Office of the Maryland Attorney General, and other organizations and state departments dealing with probate law and procedure.

She said she is well-versed in the estates and trust law of Maryland as well as all other aspects of the business of the office.

DiSimone noted that the Garrett County Register of Wills office has been recognized by the Maryland Comptroller's Office, which oversees the 24 orphans' courts and registers offices, as having one of the best records in the state, having passed every random audit of its operations since his own election in 1978.

"Our office received a congratulatory letter from the Maryland State Comptroller's Office after our last audit stating that state legislative auditors had found no errors or problems, and that such an audit is 'rare,'" DiSimone said. "The work of the register's office can be highly technical, and Rita, having been in charge of the day-to-day operations of the office, deserves a large part of the credit for this unusual honor."

Rev. Don Matthews, pastor of the Pine Grove Church of the Brethren, has volunteered and been appointed as Watson's campaign chairman.

In 2002, Watson organized a series of public classes on probate matters which she conducted throughout the county. She designed a program and a PowerPoint presentation for these classes. In 2005, this program became part of a for-credit course offered by Garrett College, and since that time, Watson has taught the classes at the college.

"During my 30 years, I have seen many changes in the probate law and the business and workload of the register's office," she said. "When I started in 1979, the office had only one telephone, and the workload was much less than it is today. There was no Internet and there were no computers.

"I have worked with Joe and the state as the operations of our office have been brought up-to-date, and today computers are an integral part of our operations. We are scanning our files and our records, and all state procedural and legal updates and directives are on the 'net, facilitating cooperation between our office and other registers' offices, as well as the state agencies working with us. One of my goals is to make appropriate estate records, forms and procedures available to the public on the Internet," she said.

Watson said she believes the most important part of her job as register is serving the public, and describes herself as "an enemy of red tape." She said she invites questions concerning the work of her office.

"I believe that those in government should go the extra mile in helping people who need their assistance with their problems and questions," she said. "And I think this is doubly true of the register's office and the orphans court, where, every day, we are helping people who have suffered the loss of a family member or loved one. The thing they do not need at such a time is for us to make things worse. I want them to be able to focus on the healing process and not be burdened with official indifference and red tape."

A lifelong resident of Garrett County, the candidate lives in the Deer Park area with her husband Robert. She is a member of the Southern Garrett Republican Women's Club and helps with the Rotary Christmas project. She is the mother of four children, William, Colleen, Bobbie and Jackie, and one grandchild, Madelyn.

"I ask for your help and support," she said in a pubic statement, "and pledge that I will continue to provide friendly and efficient service to those who deal with our office."

Pa. Man Loses Control Of Car, Hits Guardrail

Maryland State Police responded to a single-vehicle accident late last night on Access Road near I-68, Finzel.

Investigation revealed that driver Nathan Snyder, 23, Grove City, Pa., had been traveling westbound on Access Road in a 1993 Pontiac Sunbird, when he lost control and left the roadway. The vehicle struck a guardrail off the left shoulder of the road. Snyder was given a preliminary breath test, which showed negative results for alcohol. He stated that he thought he had fallen asleep.

Frostburg Ambulance transported Snyder to Western Maryland Regional Medical Center, Cumberland, for treatment of his injuries. He was not cited for the incident.

Traci Royce To Run For Register Of Wills Post

A local business owner and lifelong resident of Garrett County, Traci Royce, has filed to run for Garrett County register of wills. Her campaign treasurer is Brian R. Boal, CPA.

Born and reared in Oakland, Royce has served in various community service posts for more than 25 years. She is a member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, where she has been involved with the children and youth programs for 14 years. She is a member of the Southern Garrett High School Alumni Association, the Greater Oakland Business Association, and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

Royce served as vice president and secretary for the Yough Glades Elementary Parent/Teacher Group for 12 years, was a parent representative for Southern Middle School's Health Advisory Team, and is a current parent representative for Southern High's School Improvement Team. She is also actively involved in Landon's Library.

Royce has owned and operated Get 'n Go Inc., located in both Terra Alta W.Va., and along Oak Street in Oakland, with her husband Kiley for 16 years. They have two daughters, Stevee and Sunni. Traci said she feels led to serve Garrett County as register of wills.

"I am not a politician with a political agenda," she said. "I am a genuinely caring person who will serve Garrett County with compassion when they need it the most."

Two Arrested On District Court Warrants

Garrett County sheriff's deputies made two arrests this week on the strength of District Court warrants. The following cases are unrelated.

Jimmie Dailey Beatty, was arrested on Sunday. He is charged with violation of probation. He was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

Starlene Sue Hyde, 45, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested on Monday. She is charged by Alleghany County with one count of bad check. She was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

Maryland State Police are investigating the theft and damage of a 2009 Polaris 600 Switchback snowmobile that was reportedly taken from a trailer that was parked in a lot at the intersection of Sand Flat Road and Boy Scout Road.

It is reported that sometime between Jan. 5 and Jan. 21, unknown suspect(s) removed the vehicle and left the location. The snowmobile was recovered a short distance away, abandoned in a field.

Grantsville Lions Provide Relief To Haiti

The Grantsville Lions Club has pledged $500 to help support the relief efforts of Lions Clubs International Foundation (LCIF) in response to the 7.0 earthquake that struck Haiti on Tuesday, Jan. 12.

The club will match donations up to $500 from the community. Donations can be sent to Grantsville Lions Club, P.O. Box 450, Grantsville, MD 21536. Persons should note "Haiti Earthquake Relief" on the check.

Lions in communities around the world are supporting LCIF, which is in contact with Lions in the immediate area, neighboring Latin American countries, and area Lions leadership. All are working to assess the situation and determine how Lions and LCIF can best assist.

"Lions are committed to bringing aid to those impacted by the earthquake in Haiti," said Gerry Beachy, president of the Grantsville Lions Club. "Through support from people in our community, our club, and LCIF, we will be able to help so many more."

Within 24 hours, Lions worldwide had pledged nearly $250,000 to the foundation to help support relief efforts, Beachy said. In addition to Lions donations, LCIF has awarded a $50,000 Major Catastrophe Grant to help provide for immediate needs for victims of the earthquake. Immediate relief efforts will center on providing water, food, medicine, tents, and other essential needs.

The foundation has experience in disaster relief, providing more than $25 million for the South Asia tsunami, Hurricane Katrina, and the China earthquake combined.

Donors can assist Lions on the ground and LCIF in responding to this disaster with a designated donation to the "LCIF Haiti Earthquake Relief" Fund.

To donate online, persons may visit www.lcif.-org/donate and select "disaster." The comments section should include the notation, "LCIF Haiti Earthquake Relief." Persons may also mail a check payable to Lions Club International Foundation (noting "LCIF Haiti Earthquake Relief" in the memo field) to LCIF, 300 W. 22nd St., Oak Brook, IL 60523, USA, Attn: Donor Services.

For more information about the local Lions relief efforts in Grantsville, persons may contact Gerry Beachy at 301-895-5387 or email gbeachy@verizon.-net.

Lions Club International Foundation is the charitable arm of Lions Club International.

Established in 1968, LCIF is committed to providing humanitarian services to those in need, including providing disaster relief, saving sight, supporting youth, and combating disability.

Each year, LCIF typically awards $2 million in emergency grant relief funding. According to a spokesperson, LCIF was ranked by a Financial Times study as the number one non-governmental organization with which to partner. More information is available at www.lcif.org.

Oakland Woman Found Guilty Of Issuing False Documents

An Oakland woman was found guilty on two charges of issuing a false document in Garrett County District Court after being charged with multiple counts of forgery, conspiracy, and theft in July 2009.

Shannon Marie Davis, 21, Oakland, was found guilty for two charges of issuing a false document, and was sentenced in both cases by Judge Leonard J. Eiswert to three years, with two years, 11 months, 12 days suspended, and 19 days' credit for time served. She was also sentenced to two years of supervised probation, $57.50 in fines, and $504 in restitution costs.

Garrett County sheriff's officers received a theft and forgery complaint regarding checks from Fat Boys Country Kitchen that were cashed at Browning's Foodland. An employer of Fat Boys reported that two business checks were missing from a checkbook, and later reported that $50 was also missing. An employee at Browning's confirmed that the checks were cashed, and were made out to Shannon Davis for $400 and the other was for $356.

Leads were developed in the case which led officers to interview Davis and the two other adults. Investigation revealed that one of the adults, an employee at Fat Boys, took the checks and met with Davis and the second adult at an apartment. Davis allegedly filled out the checks, put on a Fat Boys employee T-shirt, and went to Browning's to cash the checks with the two other adults.

Davis was not prosecuted on two charges of forgery of private documents, three charges of theft valued at less than $500, two charges of conspiracy to forge private documents, two charges of conspiracy to issue false documents, and two charges of conspiracy of theft valued at less than $500.

In an unrelated hearing, Christopher Blake Paugh, 20, Friendsville, was found guilty of second-degree assault, and was sentenced to six months with five months suspended, two years of supervised probation, and $157.50 in fines.

Maryland State Police responded to a Friendsville residence in December 2009 for a report of an assault. Upon arrival, troopers met with Paugh, later identified as the suspect of the assault. Investigation revealed that the owner of the Friendsville residence did not allow Paugh inside the house, at which time Paugh began yelling and banging on the doors, eventually breaking the window in one of the bedrooms and entering the residence.

Once inside, it was reported that he assaulted the homeowner. The victim was eventually able to get Paugh out of the house and call the police. Damage was estimated to be approximately $250. He was not prosecuted on charges of first-degree burglary, malicious destruction of property valued at less than $500, and a second charge of second-degree assault.

In another court case, John David Andrews Jr., 29, Kitzmiller, was found guilty of theft valued at less than $500, and was sentenced to 60 days with all being suspended, 18 months of unsupervised probation, and $257.50 in fines.

GC sheriff's officers responded in August 2009 to a burglary complaint of a store in the White Church Steyer Road area. Investigation revealed that the store had been broken into four times in six weeks. Items stolen included a generator, 20 oxycodone pills, three 500 mg Tylenol pills, approximately 25-30 rolls of quarters, three rolls of state quarters, three rolls of dollar coins, a bag of foreign bills, a bag of coins, and five collector coin books, two with pennies and three with quarters.

The owner of the store contacted officers about 10 days later to report that someone had been buying items from a store in Swanton with silver dollars and fifty-cent pieces. After making contact with the owner of the store in Swanton, it was revealed that Andrews had been the one to take the coins and sell them at the store. The total worth of the coins sold was over $500. He was not prosecuted on a charge of theft valued at $500-plus.

Scot Anthony Bowman, 29, Swanton, was found guilty of disturbing the peace, and was sentenced to 54 days with 54 days' credit for time served and $157.40 in fines.

MSP responded to a Swanton residence in November 2009 for a reported domestic violence assault in progress. Upon arrival, troopers made contact with the victim of assault, and an investigation revealed that Bowman had become intoxicated and became angry, at which point he began to physically assault the victim and scream profanities. A neighbor heard the commotion and called the police.

It was reported that Bowman was out of control at the scene and at the barrack jail cell. He was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge.

Victor Franklin Gardea Jr., 30, Oakland, was found guilty of two separate charges, the first for theft valued at less than $100 and the second for attempting to alter a drug/alcohol test. He was sentenced to 38 days for the theft charge with 38 days' credit for time served. He received a 30-day sentence for the altered drug/alcohol test charge with 30 days' credit for time served.

Gardea's theft charge stemmed from an incident in November 2009 at the Oakland CVS. GCSO had entered the store and recognized Gardea. Officers knew that the GCSO held several warrants for his arrest. He was placed under arrest, and a search incident revealed a CVS Allergy medication bottle, a bottle of CVS children's cough syrup, and a CVS pill splitter in his pants pocket. Also located on his person were two metal pill containers clipped to his belt. The total amount of theft was valued at $37.26.

Gardea was charged with altering a drug/alcohol test in August 2009 after he was arrested on the strength of a bench warrant. While searching him, he advised officers that he had a bottle of water, but officers were unable to locate it. A pill bottle was found in his pants that had liquid inside, and investigation revealed that he had a bottle of urine. It was reported that he intented to defraud the outcome of a drug screening by possessing a bodily fluid alternate.

James Milton Tucker, 53, Oakland, was found guilty for a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) possession of marijuana charge, and was sentenced to 30 days and to $307.50 in fines.

MSP and members of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force conducted a traffic stop of Tucker in September 2009 for having an inoperative brake light. A K-9 scan was conducted while officers ran Tucker's information, and a positive alert for the odor of drugs was given.

A search of the vehicle revealed a canister containing suspected marijuana, a metal smoking pipe with trace marijuana, and a pack of cigarettes containing a hand rolled marijuana cigarette. Tucker was not prosecuted on a CDS possession of paraphernalia charge.

Tina Joeann DeWitt, 28, Mtn. Lake Park, was charged in October 2009 with two counts of second-degree assault, after an altercation with an adult and a minor. Her charges were placed on stet with conditions to not go to the home of the victims and to have no contact with the victims of assault.

Dustin Tyler Smith, 23, Oakland, was not prosecuted on two charges of forgery of private documents, two charges of issuing a false document, three charges of theft valued at less than $500, two charges of conspiring to forge private documents, two charges of conspiring to issue false documents, and two charges of conspiracy of theft valued at less than $500. He was charged in July 2009.

Lacie Briana Dumire, 26, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a November 2009 charge of confining an unattended child. She allegedly left a child in a vehicle unattended.

Joseph Michael Collins, 30, Oakland, was not prosecuted for second-degree assault, stemming from a June 2009 domestic dispute.

Matthew Shane Hinebaugh, 24, McHenry, was not prosecuted on a violation of a protective order from September 2009.

DUI/DWI HEARINGS

The following driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI) cases were heard in Garrett County District Court, with Judge Eiswert presiding.

Shelby Ovilene Fultz, 45, Md., was found guilty for a DWI charge from October 2009, and was sentenced to 60 days with 30 days suspended, two years of supervised probation, and $257.50 in fines. She was not prosecuted on charges of DUI and DUI per se.

John Carlon Doerr, 20, Md., was found guilty for a September 2009 DWI charge, and was sentenced to 60 days with 30 days suspended, one year of supervised probation, and $307.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on charges of DUI and DUI per se.

Colin John Rodgers, 22, Md., pleaded guilty to a DUI charge from October 2009, received a probation before judgment (PBJ) verdict, and was sentenced to 30 days with all being suspended, one year of supervised probation, and $307.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on charge of DWI.

Matthew Robert Morgan, 21, Md., pleaded guilty to a DWI charge from November 2009, received a PBJ verdict, and was sentenced to 30 days with all being suspended, one year of unsupervised probation, and $257.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on charges of DUI and DUI per se.

A Most Significant Error...

With a 5-4 vote, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled last Thursday that the government may not ban political spending by corporations in candidate elections. The five judges in favor said that their vote hinged upon their concern that any kind of control of such spending would infringe upon freedom of speech, guaranteed by the First Amendment to the Constitution.

"If the First Amendment has any force," Justice Anthony M. Kennedy wrote for the majority, "it prohibits Congress from fining or jailing citizens, or associations of citizens, for simply engaging in political speech."

President Obama chastised the court for its decision, calling it "a major victory for big oil, Wall Street banks, health insurance companies, and the other powerful interests that marshal their power every day in Washington to drown out the voices of everyday Americans."

For those of us in the newspaper business the First Amendment is, obviously, particularly precious. Any infringement of the basic right to free speech is something that we would typically rail against. Being the very first amendment to the U.S. Constitution, it is clear that the "founding fathers" recognized the magnitude of its importance in a free republic.

However, this particular editor tends to agree with the president's assessment of this court ruling. While the decision does not allow unrestricted funds to be donated directly to candidates, it does permit unlimited contributions toward advertising/media efforts that are directed for, or against, a particular candidate. It seems that allowing corporate money to flood the political marketplace also threatens to corrupt the democratic process. (Note cartoon above right.)

It is no secret that vast sums of money are typically needed in order for a candidate to be elected, at least to most state and federal positions. More often than not, the candidate with the most money behind him, and not necessarily possessing the greatest competency, wins the election. The reason a corporation donates to any candidate is the hope that it will get something in return, something that may or may not be good for the general populace.

Yes, the First Amendment is vital to us as individual Americans. All of the freedoms guaranteed by the Constitution are with the individual citizen in mind. Since when is a corporation considered an individual American? Can a corporation vote? Can a corporation run for office? Therein lies the most significant error in this ruling.

To the Editor:

It is certainly easy to criticize politicians. I certainly have in the past. But I would like to applaud the county commissioners for their recent decision to not raise the accommodations tax. I am sure that it was a difficult decision, but considering the economy, raising any tax should be avoided at all costs. Thank you for making the right decision.

Bill Weissgerber

P.S. I would also like to recognize Nancy Railey for her tireless efforts to gather data and educate many of us on the potential impact of raising this tax.

To the Editor:

Let me get this straight: The conservative side of the Supreme Court thought there wasn't enough money in elections already, so they overturned an existing ruling to allow any corporation/country to have unfettered financial access to our election process.

I was just wondering how much the Chinese would be willing to give for a couple of senators and a congressman or two. All the more reason to have federally funded elections. At least we could buy our own representatives.

With all this crazy money, maybe everybody in Congress could wear sponsor buttons instead of their flag pin. Certainly the two shouldn't be worn together.

To the Editor:

This letter is the best way I can think of to say "thank you" to all the people who visited and prayed for me during my time in the hospital. I was involved in an accident at work while working on a snow-grooming machine.

During the course of my work history, I have been faced with many highly dangerous situations, starting with the U.S. Air Force at age 17. After carrying a perfect safety record for 37 years, Mr. Murphy (of Murphy's Law fame) saw his chance to have his way with me. On Dec. 16 at 1:30 p.m., he made his near-fatal move.

I was amazed and deeply touched to learn how many friends, fellow veterans, and neighbors had thousands of people praying for my recovery. Folks I had helped and known from my past started to come out of the woodwork.

Among the many I want to thank are the members of the Northern Rescue Squad, the many physicians, therapists, and staffs of Garrett County Memorial and Ruby Memorial hospitals, members of local veterans organizations, and many friends, neighbors, and relatives, all of whom have greatly contributed to my ongoing recovery and state of mind. I especially thank co-workers Josh Sines and Carl Oester, who extricated me from the track of the groomer unit. I can never repay what you all have done for me and my faith in the good Lord. He is definitely always there.

With deep appreciation,
Kevan J. Monn

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation and gratitude to my friends, family, and the community for the help and support that was extended to my family during the recent illness and passing of my wife, Michele. I find myself profoundly moved by the outpouring of love and friendship, as well as the prayers from people whom I know and many I don't know.

I would like to thank the many people who sat by the side of Michele for endless hours, provided meals for my family, came in and took care of household responsibilities such as laundry and cleaning, and especially for the love and attention that was shown to my boys and me during this difficult time. I would also like to thank the hospice workers who provided an unparalleled level of dignified care for Michele.

It is truly a privilege to be part of such a caring community. On behalf of Eli, Ian, and myself, I thank each and every person who helped in so many ways. Every act of kindness is very much appreciated and treasured.

Sincerely,
Matthew Eggleston

To the Editor:

I wrote a letter several weeks ago about Friends of Deep Creek Lake recommendations to the state delegation for the current General Assembly. The information I included about the flush tax was incomplete.

I have finally obtained latest data, and it is even worse than imagined.

County septic owners have paid $1,486,265 into the fund, according to Maryland Department of Environment, Water Quality Planning Administration, since the start of the tax in 2004. Our county has received back $55,917.

There is something wrong with a program which flushes our money down the drain to a tune of $1,430,348.

Many septic systems in the county are old, in poor repair or failing. There is no enforcement of the health department's "recommendation" to pump these systems every three years.

Our delegation should demand our fair share of the flush tax revenue. We also need for the health department and county to create an incentive program for upgrades and enforcement of pump-out – at least on those properties near watersheds.

Barbara Beelar
Friends of Deep Creek Lake

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to Sen. Edwards and Del. Beitzel requested that it appear in this column.

Dear Senator Edwards and Delegate Beitzel:

The Maryland General Assembly and Democratic legislators are not listening to those who are unemployed and to Maryland employers. The people want jobs. Businesses want to employ people. The O'Malley administration and Democratic lawmakers have proposed SB 107/HB 91, which would permanently expand Maryland unemployment eligibility and benefits. The administration's justification for their legislation is for Maryland to qualify for $126.8 million in 2010 federal stimulus funds.

The expansion in Maryland unemployment eligibility SB 107/HB 91 would reach for the first time to part-time employees and workers who cannot work for medical reasons. While an admirable safety net, driving up costs to businesses to employ workers is not good policy during or after a recession. Because the Maryland Unemployment Fund has spent out more than is in the pot by Maryland regulations, the rate that Maryland businesses contribute to unemployment for those employed is already to rise in 2010.

Using the pretext of $126.8 million federal "stimulus funds" to pass this legislation is very short-sighted. The "initial short-term relief" promised Maryland businesses by the O'Malley administration will not be funded into the future by federal stimulus funds. For the administration to count on a continuation of federal monies for this purpose is naïve.

Similar reasoning by O'Malley is pressuring Maryland hospitals. As a part of the Maryland 2010 budget-cutting initiative, the state of Maryland has cut state reimbursement to Maryland hospitals to the tune of $120 million-plus for Maryland Medicare reimbursements. The hospitals thus have to cover the out-of-pocket costs of providing medical service and the private insurance companies. Surprise, surprise that hospitals will turn to private insurance plans and cash-paying sick people to pay the "$120 million" bill. In turn, private insurance companies will once again raise their rates. So when the largesse of the 2010 federal stimulus funds runs out of money, the state will pass the expanded unemployment costs onto the backs of Maryland businesses and, therefore, employees.

We urge Maryland businesses and taxpayers to get the out-of-touch O'Malley administration to listen. Marylanders want jobs, not just short-term federal stimulus funds! Defeat SB 107/HB 91.

Sincerely,
Gary Ruddell

To the Editor:

As chambers of commerce, our organizations all share a common mission to enhance the business environment and serve as engines for economic growth. While each chamber operates independently and develops its own business-focused agenda, we have recently identified a singular issue that is of critical importance to each of our counties – the North/South Appalachian Highway.

This key transportation corridor is defined as U.S. 219 North, linking Garrett County to Somerset County, Pa., and U.S. 220 South, connecting Allegany County to Mineral County, W.Va. Bridging these two highways is I-68, which has already proven to be a significant contributor to the economic vitality of our region.

Our shared interest in developing a viable north/south transportation corridor to complement I-68 reflects an understanding of the positive effects that such intersecting highway systems have on business development. New businesses mean new jobs and a renewed sense of economic prosperity.

Nearly a year ago, the Greater Cumberland Committee identified the North/South Appalachian Highway as an important economic development tool, and determined that its advancement would be its #1 priority. Since that time, our chambers have joined efforts and have served as county-specific engines of progress on this highway. With well over 100 other businesses and organizations, we have worked together through the North/South Appalachian Highway Coalition to champion this project, and together we have overcome significant hurdles and achieved key successes.

Building a major transportation corridor does not happen overnight, but the actions that have been taken over the past 12 months have renewed the commitment to its successful completion. We believe that 2010 will be equally as productive. On behalf of the hundreds of businesses we represent, we will continue to be active participants in advancing the North/South Appalachian Highway.

Garrett College

Interim president Dr. Jeanne Neff reported that enrollment at Garrett College continues to increase. Both the fall 2009 and spring 2010 figures are up from previous years. She noted there are currently about 820 students enrolled in degree programs and residence halls are full.

"Full to the brim is a good thing," Neff said.

But, she added, the downside is a flat budget that does not expand to accommodate more students.

"The amount that we are able to spend per student keeps going down, as our enrollment keeps going up," Neff said.

As a result, the college has taken several cost-control measures that do not directly impact students. For example, some vacant staff positions will remain open, staff travel has been greatly reduced, and energy-saving measures are being taken.

The president also reported that the Community Athletic and Recreation Center project is on schedule. Nearly 30 contractors/subcontractors picked up bid packages earlier this month for construction of Phase I, the aquatics fitness center.

Allegany's Forest Technology Gains SAF Accreditation

Forest technology at Allegany College of Maryland, Cumberland, an associate-degree program from which graduates are in strong demand, is among the first to be granted accreditation by the Society of American Foresters (SAF), according to an announcement from the college.

The SAF commended ACM for its "dedication to excellence in forest technology education and its support of the valuable accreditation process."

ACM, the only college in Maryland and the surrounding region to be granted the newly established status, was granted accreditation of its career program in forestry through 2018.

The move follows an extensive independent review based on a two-day visit last year by three forestry professionals from across the nation and a staff member from SAF headquarters in Bethesda, as well as the approval of an extensive self-study document.

Steve Resh, ACM professor and program coordinator, believes that accreditation is a status that was "well worth the effort" taken by the forest technology faculty.

"To be among the first six schools in North America to become accredited by the Society of American Foresters is a unique honor," he said.

The process examined all aspects of the forest technology program, including its objectives and curriculum, the faculty who teach it, and the students enrolled in it.

The review also looked at physical resources and facilities available to the program, plus other forms of institutional support.

SAF concluded that, without qualification, the community college had met all seven of its standards for accreditation.

ACM has graduated over 500 forestry students since 1971, the bulk of these in forest technology. The program, which prepares students for entry-level careers in the profession, has seen 476 men and women earn the degree.

For more information about ACM forestry programs, persons may telephone professors Steve Resh at 301-784-5307 or John Jastrzembski at 301-784-5309. Information is also available on the web site for ACM forestry programs at www.acmforestry.com.

DANCE FUNDRAISER HELPS TO BUY FOOD FOR LOCAL FAMILIES – In early December the Grantsville Involvement Group (GIG) and the NHS FFA hosted a fundraiser dance at Grantsville Elementary school. The admission price was non-perishable items which were combined with other donations and given to local families in need. Dance participants could have their picture taken with Mr. and Mrs. Claus, make crafts, or help themselves to cookies and hot chocolate. Pictured with Mrs. Claus (Scarlett Fost) and Santa Claus (Rick McCrobie) are Colton Groves, Morgan Brenneman, and Jordyn Folk. An auction raised money to purchase additional items for the food bags. "Thanks go to 'Jimmy B' and his family for donating their disc jockey services for the dance," said Sharon Menges, outreach worker at the Garrett County Health Department. "They always do a great job. We also want to thank the FFA for doing a wonderful job of taking pictures and helping with the crafts. It truly was a community effort, and we thank local businesses, including First Peoples Federal Community Credit Union, and all the people that helped to make this possible in these tight times." GIG packed 15 bags of nonperishable items and distributed them to families before Christmas. Volunteering their time to pack bags are those pictured below. Shown from left are Aly McKenzie, Tina Broadwater, Wilma Hutzel, Meighan Jones, Rusty Christner, Heather Christner, Kendra Georg, and Robin Jones. Not pictured but helping to plan the event were Melanie McKenzie, Brittany Lynch, and Sharon Menges. To volunteer with GIG, persons may contact Menges at 301-895-3111, ext. 6528, or Robin Jones at 301-895-3144.

Library To Start New Web Print Service Monday

Ruth Enlow Library patrons will soon have the option of using a new web print service. Beginning on Monday, Feb. 1, patrons will be able to print documents from their laptop computers while using the library's WiFi, and also send files remotely to print at any of the branches: Accident, Friendsville, Grantsville, Kitzmiller, and the Oakland main library.

Patrons will send the print job to a specific branch, and then library staff will print that file when the patron comes in and requests it. The files will not be released from the print queue until the patron is physically present at the library.

This service will be available from the library's web site at relib.net by selecting the link for "Public PC Use," choosing "Web Print" and the branch where the file is to be printed, and following the prompts to enter user name, filename, and branch.

The web print service costs the same as printouts from the library computers: $.20 per black and white page and $.50 per color page. Color printing is not available at the Kitzmiller branch.

For questions, persons may call the Oakland library at 301-334-3996, ext 100, or their local branch.

In 30 minutes, Suzanne changed her fate.

Before I opened my own Curves, I was a member and it changed my life. I finally found an exercise program that I could stick with. It allowed me to work out on my schedule; a trainer was always available to help, encourage, and answer questions; and I did not feel like I had to lose weight before I walked in the door. There were women there just like me - some struggling to meet their goals, some who were there to maintain their success, and some who were there to help stay healthy. I lost over 60 pounds and more than 36 inches - and have been able to keep it off for more than 2 years! Curves works.

Thank You

to everyone who helped us after a fire destroyed our home. We can't begin to express what your gifts mean to our family. The money and gifts are most definitely helpful and will go to extremely good use, there's no doubt about that. But more than the monetary value and gifts that were provided, we so greatly appreciate the thought behind the gifts and the money. This time has been very difficult for us, but knowing we have the support of people like you certainly helps. Please know we won't forget your kind gestures. We would especially like to thank our families for all their moral support. Thank you all again; We really appreciate everything that everyone has done for us.

Sincerely,
Jason, Kristen, Landen and Hunter Beitzel

Real Estate Facts by...

THE STRONGEST LINK

The question on everyone's lips is, "When are things going to return to normal in real estate?" Well, if the "normal" being referred to is the conditions and shady financial dealings that created the artificially inflated markets of five years ago, then we need to be thinking about redefining "normal."

The bad lending practices of the past are indeed making it more difficult now to secure financing, but try to understand that's not necessarily a bad thing. Those days of lower standards and easy money led us into this predicament in the first place. It's good for housing and for the economy when banks become interested in whether loans will be repaid.

In the "new" normal, home prices will stabilize, the number of sales will start gaining, and more people will again realize the benefits that homeownership offers, for both personal and financial security. With historically low interest rates, affordable prices, government incentives, and motivated sellers, the housing market is already experiencing the initial signs of recovery.

All of these factors combine to get first-time buyers excited about a purchase. As these consumers enter the market, they will trigger other purchases, and the chain of transactions grows. Expect your real estate representative to reveal a wide range of affordable choices and guide you toward securing the financing you need to make your dream come true. Call your REALTOR® today.

If you are thinking of buying or selling a home but feel "out of touch" with real estate, give me a call today.

FEBRUARY SUN – As February begins the sun is in front of the stars of Capricornus moving about a degree a day eastward relative to the stars. On Feb. 16, the sun enters the star group Aquarius, where it stays through March 11. Both of the above star groups are lost in the sun's glare in February. The star group Pisces is behind (east) of the sun so it sets after the sun, appearing low in the southwestern dusk. The star group Sagittarius (to the west of the sun) rises before the sun and is visible low in the southeastern dawn. In early February, sunrises in Garrett County are at about 7:20 a.m., while sunsets are about 5:40 p.m. (10.3 hours of daylight). Around the end of February, Garrett County's sunrises are about 6:55 a.m. and sunsets occur about 6:05 p.m. (11.2 hours of daylight). So during February, the stars are last seen around 6:15 a.m. (early dawn) and then reappear about 6:40 p.m. (late dusk).

FEBRUARY MOON – The moon is full right now (Jan. 29), so there will be evening moonlight on Feb. 1 and 2. Late in the evening of Feb. 2, the moon will appear near the planet Saturn in the east. After Feb. 3, the moon rises after midnight and is best seen at dawn. On the morning of Feb. 12, a very slender crescent moon appears near the planet Mercury low in the southeastern dawn. On Feb. 14, the moon swings from the morning to the evening side of the sun (new moon). This triggers the Chinese New Year, 4708, the Year of the Tiger. On Feb. 16, the moon reappears low in the western dusk. On Feb. 21, the evening moon appears half full, offering the best views of its craters and mountain ranges with a telescope. Look along the moon's left or straighter edge; there you will see the craters most easily and any nearby lunar mountain ranges. The nearly full moon appears near the planet Mars on Feb. 25. The moon is full on the evening of Feb. 28, appearing in the star group Leo.

FEBRUARY PLANETS – The five nearest planets are easily seen by eye, four of them shining steadily in contrast to the twinkling stars. Of the five, Mercury is usually the most difficult to see, at a low angle to the sun and seen very close to the horizon at dawn or dusk. In February, Mercury can be seen low in the southeastern dusk in the first eight days of February, when it rises about an hour ahead of the sun. In the first half of February, Jupiter can be seen low in the west at the start of twilight. The yellow planet Mars in the eastern evening sky improves in visibility in February.

To find Mars, look in the east between the two bright stars of Gemini and the sickle of Leo. (Gemini's bright stars can be found by going from Orion's brightest star, Rigel, through the belt and onto pinkish Betelgeuse and an equal distance beyond. Leo's sickle can be found by taking the two top stars of the Big Dipper's scoop and going to the right.) Mars has a distinctly yellowish tint, shining with a steady light. The planet Saturn appears in the east in the late evening sky. The brilliant planet Venus is at too low an angle to the sun to be seen in February.

JANUARY STARS – The Big Dipper's scoop is well placed in the north-northeast. The two top scoop stars point up and left to the North Star, a modest star about halfway up in the north. Orion is striking in the south with his three-star belt. The belt points up and right to the bright orange star Aldebaran and the 7 Sisters (Pleiades) star cluster. Orion's belt points down and left to Sirius, the night's brightest star.

JANUARY PROGRAMS – The Frostburg State Planetarium's program for February is "Quick Intro to the Universe," reviewing the basic concepts of the universe. The free public programs are on February Sundays (7, 14, 21, and 28) at 4 and 7 p.m. in Tawes 302. Free planetarium material for visitors includes Night Highlights (for 2010), a February evening sky map and a summary of the main program. After a brief intermission, planetarium visitors are invited to tour the Science Discovery Center where a collection of preserved animals from five continents are on display. Persons may telephone 301-687-7799 and leave name and address, and a free planetarium bookmark (includes small campus map showing planetarium and easy parking areas) will be sent to callers. Persons may also visit the Frostburg State web site, where there is an area devoted to the planetarium (http://www.frostburg.edu/planetarium).

Dr. Doyle writes this column for those who like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards.

God saw you getting tired
And a cure was not meant to be.
So he put his arms around you
And whispered come to me.
With tearful eyes we watched you
As you peacefully passed away.
Although we loved you deeply
We could not make you stay.
Your golden heart stopped beating
Hard working hands at rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.

We Love & Miss You Lots.

DK BIOGRAPHY: HARRIET TUBMAN

by Kem Knapp Sawyer
George Klein with Chuck Crisafulli
C. 2010, DK Publishing, $14.99; 128 pages
Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

Always keep away from "It."

That's the most important rule you learn when you play Hide & Seek. "It" covers his eyes and counts, while you run and hide. Then, while "It" looks for you, you try to get "home" safely.

Hide & Seek is a game you learned long ago. You've played it now and then, but what if it weren't a game? What if hiding and getting back home were a matter of life or death? In the new book DK Biography: Harriet Tubman by Kem Knapp Sawyer, you'll read about a serious and brave version of Hide & Seek.

Young Araminta (sometimes called "Minty") was a slave. Her grandmother probably came from Ghana, and her mother was born into slavery. Although historians think Minty was born in 1822, nobody knows for sure.

When Minty was 4 years old, she was put to work taking care of her siblings. At age 8, she was sent to live with another family and was taught housekeeping. She didn't do a very good job, though, and was whipped often. Not long afterward, she was sent back to the farm where her family lived, and she learned to do men's work in the fields.

In 1844, Minty married John Tubman and changed her name to Harriet.

Maybe because of a severe head injury she got as a young woman, Harriet was a dreamer. She claimed she had visions of flying and nightmares of being dragged off. Her fear was that she would be sold and sent away, and it made the nightmares worse. Soon, Harriet was plotting her escape.

Following the North Star and sleeping in fields and forests, she carefully made her way to Philadelphia, home to 20,000 free blacks. Everything felt different as a free woman, but Harriet missed the people she left behind.

Promising herself that she would bring her family to freedom, too, Harriet took odd jobs and saved money for travel and food. Though she was first a passenger on the Underground Railroad (a secret route to freedom), she quickly became a conductor (the helper or leader), eventually leading up to 80 slaves to safety and freedom in the northern U.S. and Canada.

Filled with true stories that will thrill young readers, DK Biography: Harriet Tubman is, despite its title, not just about the woman they called Moses. It's also about the Civil War, other key people in the flight to freedom, friends and family members of Harriet Tubman, and slaves on their way north.

Although little of the information in this book is new (at least to an adult), author Kem Knapp Sawyer brings Tubman's legacy up-to-date, including new scholarly studies that "give a fair representation" to Harriet Tubman. Kids will appreciate the pictures, drawings, reproductions of letters and handbills, and the wealth of sidebars that serve to explain details in the main story.

If your child wants a good biography for fun or for class assignment, look for this one. Perfect for 9-to-12-year-olds, DK Biography: Harriet Tubman is a book to seek.

These and several other cats and dogs are currently available for adoption. "This has been an extremely busy winter at the shelter, with lots of dogs coming in; most of them had no collars or tags and most were not reclaimed," said a Garrett County Humane Society spokesperson. "On a positive note, last week's husky and a hound were reclaimed, and the shelter had one adoption. HART also took several canines and a load of felines out to rescues over the weekend." Hay is available for free at the shelter for doghouses, courtesy of the Humane Society. For more information, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553. AURORA CEOS

The meeting of the Aurora Community Education and Outreach Service (CEOS) was recently held at Melanie's Restaurant, with six members and a visitor attending. President Opal Myers used the "Beginnings" for the devotions, which encouraged the group to "get involved with life now."

In lieu of a lesson, vice president Ressie Conrad directed the time to committee goals and responsibilities. Jeannie Whitehair is chair of the Purposeful Reading Committee, Dee Douglas is head of the Family Life Committee, and Dean Sisler is in charge of the Continuing Education Committee.

The club joined with Aurora Pioneer 4-H in December for the Community Tree Lighting. They found gifts for nine people who were named on the County Santa Tree. Aurora and Cranesville clubs will be responsible for planning the Achievement Day in the spring. The annual yard sale to benefit Relay for Life is slated for June 11 and 12.

Mary Jane Hanline has been selected as the CEOS Member of the Year. She has remained active despite an accumulation of illnesses and advancing age.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 1 p.m. in the home of Wilda Harsh. The hostess will be responsible for devotions, and Opal Myers will lead the lesson.

Rams Fall To Huskies, But Defeat Sentinels; Stun Campers, Miners

In Southern High School varsity girls' basketball action this past week, the Rams fell to Northern, 57-39, last Thursday in Accident, but came back with a 57-47 win over Fort Hill on Saturday night in Cumberland. Southern hosted Allegany on Monday night and stunned the No. 1 Campers with a 41-40 defeat. The Rams squeaked out another close game against Mtn. Ridge last night, defeating the Miners 54-53 at home. See other story for the Northern, Southern game.

Southern rallied in the third quarter to over take Fort Hill last Saturday. The score was tied 14-14 going into the second quarter, and the Sentinels pulled ahead by one point to lead 28-27 going into halftime. The third quarter saw the Rams outscore Fort Hill, 14-8, for a 41-36 fourth quarter beginning.

Alli Shaffer and Heidi Welch each sank five field goals to record 13 points apiece to lead Southern, and Alycia Horner finished with 10 points in the win.

Alyssa Twigg had eight baskets and was 3-for-3 from the foul line for a game-high total of 19 points to lead Fort Hill. She also aided with 10 rebounds for a double-double, and teammate Mariah James provided 10 points in the loss.

The Ram jayvees won the first game, 47-35, with 15 points coming from Hannah Horne and 10 from Mandy Sweitzer. Alesha Jackson sank 13 points for the Sentinels' junior varsity.

In Monday's upset of Allegany, the Rams held the Campers to five points while accumulating 14 of their own in the first quarter. Scoring was closer in the second quarter with Southern leading 15-13 for a halftime score of 28-18. Allegany rallied in the second half, netting 14 points and holding Southern to just four points in the third quarter for a 32-32 period tie. The Campers took a brief lead during the fourth, but Southern's Welch provided a late three-pointer that gave the Rams a four-point lead.

Shaffer led Southern with 12 points, and Welch finished with four baskets, two of which were three-pointers, for 10 points.

Brooke Wharton led all players and Allegany with her 14 points. She sank three 3-pointers and was 3-of-4 at the free throw line.

The Southern jayvees defeated Allegany's junior varsity, 29-22, with Horne leading with 12 points for the Rams. Teammate Raislee Weimer added nine points, and Sweitzer aided on the glass with 16 rebounds. Megan Hammersmith scored seven points for the Campers.

The Rams led 10-8 through the first quarter of last night's game against the Miners, but reluctantly fell three points behind the Miners in the second to go into the half at 20-17. Southern managed to outscore Mtn. Ridge, 17-10, in the third period to gain a 34-30 lead going into the fourth. The Rams trailed in the fourth quarter, 53-51, when Welch hit one of her six 3-pointers from the right corner to boost the score to 54-53. Mtn. Ridge attempted a final shot, but it fell short as the buzzer sounded.

Welch scored 24 points in the win for Southern, and teammate Emillee Bosley sank two 3-pointers to finish with 10 points.

The Miners were led by Madi Nightengale as she hit eight field goals, including three 3-pointers and 8-of-9 foul shots for a total of 23 points. Heather Shipe added 12 points and Shae Winner recorded 11.

The Southern jayvees fell in overtime, 40-37, to the Mtn. Ridge junior varsity. Horne led with 14 points and teammate Tess Watson added 10 for the Rams. Carlie Lewis had a game-high 27 points, which included five 3-pointers, for the Miners.

Southern, now 10-5 and 8-2 in the AMAC is scheduled to travel to Keyser on Monday and then to Accident to once again face cross-county rival Northern on Wednesday, with the junior varsity game beginning at 6 p.m. and tip-off for the varsity game at 7:30 p.m.

MAKING IT LOOK SO EASY is Northern High School senior Alex Smith (#32) as he takes a shot from the three-point line in last Friday's varsity boys' basketball home game against cross-county rival Southern. Keeping their eye on the ball are Ram players, from left, Joe Kisselovich (#35), Kurt Gangler (#5), and Ben Myers (#11). Smith's teammates Garrett Rayner (#1), left, and Matt Gibson (#21), far right, stay on top of their opponents. Southern's Calvin Hilliard (#34) is seen below going for a layup, while Northern's Trevor Tombley (#10) reaches for a block. The two are flanked by Northern's Gibson (#21) and Steve Holtschneider (#3). Southern's Derek Collins (#3) runs to catch up as Ethan Brady (#33) tries to get past Holtschneider. Hilliard scored 15 points for the Rams that night, and then went on to score 13 points against Frankfort on Tuesday night. See story for more details of the games. Photos by John McEwen. SHS Boys' Basketball Team Defeats Northern, Frankfort For 9-5 Record

It's been quite a week for the Southern High School varsity boys' basketball team as it pulled out a shocking Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference 62-43 defeat of Northern last Friday night in Oakland. The third-ranked Rams continued with a 60-42 AMAC victory over Frankfort on Tuesday at home.

The first half of the game against Northern last Friday was tense as Southern led by just two points in the first quarter, 10-8. The pressure was on in the second period as the score was tied 23-23. The Rams broke away in the third period by allowing just two points from the Huskies but putting up 19 of their own to lead 42-25 going into the fourth.

Southern's Joe Kisselovich proved to be too much for the Huskies as he recorded a game-high 26 points, with 15 coming in just the third quarter alone. He also aided with 10 rebounds. Teammate Calvin Hilliard scored 15 points as the only other Ram to score in double digits.

Trevor Tombley finished the evening with 10 points for Northern, and teammate Dylan Miller sank two 3-pointers to end with eight in the loss.

Northern's junior varsity had the first victory, however, as it defeated the Southern jayvees 43-32. Mikail Perrine recorded 11 points for the Rams, and Patrick Sines scored 16 for the Huskies.

In Tuesday's game against Frankfort, Southern worked its way to a 13-7 advantage after one quarter, and remained ahead 25-17 by halftime. The Rams outscored the Falcons 14-5 in the third quarter to carry a 17-point, 39-22 lead into the fourth.

Kisselovich led three scorers in double digits with 15 points, and added seven rebounds, for Southern. Ethan Brady and Hilliard each finished with 13 points, and Brady also aided with seven rebounds.

Frankfort got 13 points from Logan Wolford, and Robbie Heltzel finished with 11.

The junior varsity game was won by Frankfort, 28-22, but details were not received.

The Rams, now 9-5 and 8-2 in the AMAC, are scheduled to host Petersburg on Friday night, and will then travel to Mtn. Ridge on Tuesday.

Huskies Fall To Cross-County Rival Southern; Cruise Over Moorefield

In a surprising upset, the varsity boys' basketball team of Northern High School was handed a 62-43 loss by cross-county rival Southern last Friday night in Oakland. The Huskies made up for the loss as they cruised to a 60-43 win over Moorefield on Tuesday night. See other story for the Northern, Southern game.

The Huskies trailed by six points in the first period to begin the second 14-8, but found their strength in the second as they outscored Moorefield 23 to 10 for a 31-24 halftime lead. Northern allowed just five points from Moorefield in the third period and widened its margin to 46-29 by the final quarter.

Dylan Miller sank 6 of 8 foul shots to lead a balanced attack with 14 points for Northern. Matt Gibson and Trevor Tombley added 23 points each in the win.

Moorefield was led by Trevor Markwood's 11 points, and was followed by Korey Reed, who recorded nine.

The Huskies' junior varsity team fell, 51-46, to the Yellow Jacket jayvees. Patrick Sines had a game-high 16 points for Northern, and Mikey Pultz finished with 10 for Moorefield.

Northern, now 5-7 and 2-6 in the Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference, is scheduled to travel to Mtn. Ridge on Friday and to Keyser on Tuesday.

Lakers Win Seven Straight; Edge Cardinals, Roll Over Catamounts

Two more victories were recorded this past week by the Garrett College men's basketball team, as the Lakers picked up a big 75-73 Maryland JUCO win over visiting CCBC Catonsville on Saturday, and then went to Keyser on Monday to hand non-conference foe Potomac State College a 79-61 defeat.

The Lakers have won their last seven games in a row, improving their overall record to 14-7, while upping their JUCO mark to 8-3.

Strong efforts by Kory Gibson, Chris Hilliard, and Joe Dubuche paced the Lakers in their tough win over Catonsville on Saturday.

Coach Dennis Gibson's squad found a way to win, despite being down by as many as 20 points in the first quarter. It was 50-34 at intermission, but the Lakers took control of the contest early in the second half, holding the Cardinals to just eight points in 14 minutes. That outstanding defensive effort resulted in a 66-66 tie with about six minutes to play.

The lead exchanged hands numerous times, but a lob feed by Dubuche to Hilliard, who jammed it home, with 37 seconds remaining broke a 73-73 tie and ultimately gave the victory to the Lakers.

The Cardinals had two opportunities to tie in the final 15 seconds, but missed both shots.

Gibson led the scoring column with 19 points, followed by Hilliard with 18 points and eight rebounds.

"Joe Dubuche scored only eight points tonight, but he handled the point for us for the second straight night and did a great job," said Coach Gibson. "Catonsville trapped and pressed the entire game, and Joe stood up to the pressure. I was proud of his effort, playing out of position and with little practice at the point."

Dubuche had to take the point position because of injuries to both Shawn Greenfield and Jeff Stem.

"Chris Hilliard made a huge difference, too, coming off the bench, playing less than 20 minutes, and yet scoring 18 points and grabbing eight rebounds," Gibson said.

Howard Ferguson also reached double figures with 13 points, and was 6-for-6 at the free throw line. Jordan Gipson provided a balanced effort, finishing with eight points, eight rebounds, three assists, and two blocks.

Leading Catonsville were Mark Evans with 16 points, Lawrence Weldon with 14, and Ernest McGill and Justin Hawkins with 10 apiece.

Gibson also led the scoring column with 18 points in Monday's win over Potomac State, as he hit four three-pointers and scored 16 of his points in the first half.

Sophomore center Doma Ibrahim had what Coach Gibson called his best game of the season, with 12 rebounds and 11 points. Hilliard finished with 16 points and 11 rebounds.

The Lakers built leads of as many as 20 points in the first half, but the Catamounts fought back in the second half to cut the lead to 11 with about nine minutes to play.

Potomac State's Tyrone Smith then came off the bench to hit back-to-back three-pointers and a pair of free throws to cut the Lakers' lead to 59-50.

But the Lakers went inside to Ibrahim, who responded with nine of his 11 points in the closing minutes on a variety of power moves and offensive rebounds.

The Catamounts were led offensively by Jordan Brooks, who hit a game-high 22 points, and was the only member of his team to reach double figures.

"They had to come out and put a lot of pressure on our guards, with the shooting of Gibson and Jordan Gipson, which allowed us to put the ball into the big guys, and they responded very well," said Coach Gibson. "Hilliard gave us a lot of energy on the boards, as did Mario Lloyde.

"It is always a good win at Potomac State, because they have some very talented players," he continued. "I feel fortunate that our team has won as many games as we have, but it seems someone is always stepping up for us."

The next two games for the Lakers will be on the road, the first this Saturday at Anne Arundel CC, and the second at Frederick CC next Wednesday.

LAKERS HOLD SUCCESSFUL CHASE – The men's basketball team of Garrett College held its annual Snowflake Chase at Deep Creek Lake on Saturday, with over 140 persons participating in the 5-mile run and fun walk. Procceds from the event were donated to local resident Amelia Wolf, who makes and sells bonbons and Easter eggs every year to benefit Cindy's Fund, a local organization founded in memory of Cindy Kutchman that provides financial assistance for cancer screening. The event was also held in memory of Dave Martin, who was Garrett County's clerk of court and also an assistant coach of the Lakers. A major sponsor of the event is Uno's Restaurant, and pictured above with Bill Ingram, Uno's manager, are the members of the team. From left are Joe Dubuche, Marko Agbaba, Jordan Gipson, Chris Hilliard, Jeff Stem, Kory Gibson, Vladimir Vukovic (hidden), Doma Ibrahim, Theo Dubuche, Howard Ferguson, and Mario Lloyde. Pictured below are Amelia Wolf, right, and Fran Martin, widow of Dave Martin, accepting a check for $250 that Amelia will use for candy supplies. Proceeds from her candy sales totaled over $13,000 last year, all of which she donated to Cindy's Fund. See story for results of the race.

The Sentinels' only pinfall victory was by Glen Vincent in the 215-pound division.

The Huskies will compete in the annual Bedford Tournament this Friday and Saturday. They will host county rival Southern next Thursday, with action slated to begin at 7 p.m.

DeWitt Winner Of Annual Uno's Snowflake Chase

Frostburg resident Dan DeWitt came out of winter hibernation long enough to secure a victory in the annual Uno's Snowflake Chase 5-miler, held Saturday at Deep Creek Lake.

The event is coordinated by the Garrett College men's basketball program and hosted by Uno's Restaurant. Proceeds this year were donated to local resident Amelia Wolf in support of her personal effort to make and sell bon-bons to benefit Cindy's Fund.

"We hold this annual event in memory of our former assistant coach Dave Martin," said Dennis Gibson, head coach of the Lakers. "He was a super guy, and we don't ever want to forget him and what he did for our team and the community."

Martin was a victim of cancer, and Cindy's Fund, established in memory of Cindy Kutchman, provides cancer screening funds to local residents.

DeWitt, 22, defeated 90 other runners to the finish line, recording a time of 27 minutes and 7 seconds, for a pace of 5:26 per mile.

Jeremy Rice, 27, also of Frostburg, placed second overall with a time of 29:58, while Ridgeley, W.Va., resident Dennis Mickey finished third overall in 30:05.

"I had a good day," DeWitt said. "I wasn't really sure what to expect. It was good to get out after being cooped up for a couple weeks."

Mickey, 44, edged Dexter Blank, 44, of Uniontown, Pa., for the top spot among master runners. Blank was fourth overall in 30:07, while Woody Snoberger, 25, of Ridgeley, W.Va., rounded out the top five with a time of 30:47.

Heather Parks, 34, of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., was sixth overall and the top female runner on the day. She recorded a time of 31:53, nearly two minutes ahead of her closest female competitor, Shannon Kovack, 24, Connellsville, Pa. Her time was 33:35.

Bobbi Moose, 40, Leesburg, Va., was third overall and the top master female runner, recording a time of 37:45.

The fastest Garrett County runner in the event was Tom Ruckert, 57, of Grantsville, who placed seventh overall and finished in 32:28. Cody Brenneman, 16, also of Grantsville, was five seconds behind Ruckert, placing eighth overall.

A total of 140 persons participated in either the run or the 2-mile fun run/walk.

Coach Gibson noted his appreciation to those who assisted the Lakers with this community service effort.

"Scott Winters does a great job in handing out the prizes and with promotion, and he had some Southern High runners there to help," he said. "High Mountain Sports always offers a cash prize for anyone who breaks a course record. Uno's makes the event more than just a race for charity. Dayie Ritchie and the Queen City Striders take care of all the timing and race set up. And I sincerely thank Deep Creek State Park and Patty Manown. She did a lot with park usage, the roads, and even helps with registration."

Glotfelty Wins Three More For McDaniel Terror

Former Northern High School student athlete Brock Glotfelty, Grantsville, went 3-0 to lead McDaniel College to a 2-1 day in Centennial Conference (CC) wrestling action on Sunday. The Green Terror (9-7, 3-1 CC) dropped a 31-10 decision to 13th-ranked Merchant Marine Academy to open the day, before downing Stevens, 22-13, and Washington and Lee, 38-9.

In a rematch of the 2009 CC heavyweight title bout, Glotfelty used a takedown midway through the first sudden-victory period to notch a 3-1 win over Merchant Marine Academy's Judson Connell. The pair exchanged escapes early in the second and third periods, and were tied at 1-1, requiring the extra period.

Glotfelty earned a second-period escape for the lone point of the heavyweight bout in the match against Stevens College, as he edged James Roarty. The win sealed the team victory for McDaniel.

In the match against the Washington and Lee Generals (1-6, 0-4 CC), the Green Terror won seven bouts, including a forfeit victory for Glotfelty.

Glotfelty's personal record for the season is now 31-4.

The Green Terror will return to action in a tri-match at Centenary (N.J.) this Friday.

ON A PERSONAL NOTE
by Lucretia Sines

I would first like to apologize to everyone for the poor quality of my Friendsville News in 2009. Last year was a hard year for many of us, and as they say, "When it rains, it pours," and so it did on our family in the way of that dreaded word "cancer." It is somewhat strange how cancer does not just affect the victim or immediate family, but also the friends and extended family members of those around them; even a neighborhood.

Cancer struck three members of our family this past year; first, my sister-in-law Sissy, then my husband Kenny, and then Sissy's husband Dick (bing, bang, bong!). Then add Uncle Tom and our cousin Bonnie from Meyersdale, and you get so surrounded by it that you can't seem to feel any happiness anymore.

My husband survived his cancer and is cancer free, so far, for which we are very grateful. Dick lost his battle six months ago and his wife lost her battle this week, putting an end to her year-long battle with bravery that I feel I would have failed to produce had it been me.

I found out during my husband's illness that friends and family are some of the greatest gifts anyone can receive in this world. They help build your strength and your will to live, and comfort you in times of need. Thanks to everyone!

As last year came to a close, we can only hope for better years to come for everyone. I think this year shows some promise with a new life coming to our family soon with the birth of a baby expected in February to Andy and Lori Schmidt and Douglas.

As for those who were taken from this community in the past year, I would like to offer one more time of remembrance and take a moment to reflect on their lives: Pearl Blocher, Ethel Schroyer, Delanna Frye, Alice Hauser, Hillis Sisler, Robert R. Frazee, Ada Savage, Wayne VanSickle, Matilda Smearman, Joan Dixon, Patricia A. Bennett, Anna Kisner, Randy Dwire, Paul Frazee, Clyde Sanner Jr., Grace VanSickle, Troy Fike, Kelvin Fearer, Robert G. Sines, Connie Wakefield, Euguene Sessa, Tony Eckenrode, Richard (Dick) Artice, Martin Friend, Geraldine Humberson, Hattie Nedrow, Verna Paugh, JoAnn Paugh, and Ruth George. Their lives have touched many, and they will be greatly missed.

If I have missed the name of a deceased loved one, please let me know, and know that I sincerely apologize for any errors and omissions.

Farm Service Agency Reports

Eric M. McCartney, County Executive Director
Preston County FSA Office
157 Plaza CT., Suite 13, Kingwood, WV 26537-1793

DEADLINE FOR NAP AND CROP INSURANCE IS MARCH 15

Eric McCartney, county executive director of USDA's Farm Service Agency in Preston County, reminds producers of the March 15 deadline to obtain Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) Insurance and Federal Crop Insurance for spring seeded crops.

NAP is a federally funded program that provides coverage to producers for non-insurable crops when low yields, loss of inventory or prevented planting occurs because of natural disasters. Crops eligible for NAP coverage are those for which crop insurance is not available, including fruits and vegetables, aquaculture, and forage crops. Producers must apply for NAP coverage before a disaster strikes.

NAP coverage requires a service fee of $250 per crop, per producer, with a $750 cap per county. Out-of-pocket expenses will not exceed $1,875 for any producer, even if production occurs in more than three counties. Service fees may be waived for eligible limited resource producers.

NAP applications for coverage must be filed and service fees paid by the applicable closing date. Application closing dates vary by crop. The application closing date for 2010 annual crops, such as vegetables, is Monday, March 15.

Preston County farmers are reminded that the final date to apply for crop insurance for corn and oats is also March 15. Current policyholders also have until March 15 to make any changes to their existing contracts. Crop insurance provides protection against losses from natural perils such as drought, hail, wind, and excessive moisture.

Farmers may also want to inquire about Crop Revenue Coverage, a revenue plan that offers protection against market price declines for crops like corn. In addition, low-cost group plans such as the Group Risk Plan and Group Risk Income Protection are also available in many counties for corn.

Producers are strongly urged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for premium quotes and more details. A list of crop insurance agents can be obtained at the Farm Service Agency, located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, or by telephoning 304-329-1923. Persons may also log on to the Risk Management Agency web site at http://www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents/ for this information.

"Annie's Project" Classes Available To Farm Women

Openings are still available with Annie's Project, a course which focuses on the many aspects of farm management and is designed to empower women in overall farm decision making and to build local networks throughout the state.

The course is open to any women interested in farm management practices.

Classes began at Garrett College on Jan. 27, and will continue on Wednesdays through March 17.

Sessions are held from 6 to 9 p.m. each evening and include a meal. The cost is $50 per person, which includes materials and meals.

Anyone requiring special assistance for classes should call 301-334-6960. Registration information is also available at that number from Cheryl or Willie.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Yes, we did have some kind of January thaw. But it left a big thick ice dam at the end of my ramp. Now here we go again.

Last Thursday, I fell asleep to the sound of freezing rain. It was just the kind of weather that makes you want to curl up with your spouse. Of course, that is something I don't have anymore. Last night, I was plagued with dreams about what I lost. Everything about myself, friendships, and love were all wrong.

Why did the Haitian government call off the rescue effort phase? Yes, it is 11 days after the earthquake, but still every day the rescue squads find more people alive in the rubble. All the rescue groups from so many nations saved 113 or so.

A man found yesterday said, "I'm glad they did not call off the rescue effort a few days early." How many are still buried, but alive? Each is valuable. It may be a father, mother, grandparent, child, brother, or sister. There are hundreds, maybe thousands, of families across the globe who still hold hope that their missing loved ones there will be found.

I just saw a story about a young man from America who arrived in Haiti the day the quake hit. He was there to assess the possibility of digging more wells. He was formerly with the Peace Corps and other service organizations.

About $58 million was raised by the concert fundraiser. Yes, it is important to donate money, but hard work is also needed, such as that of the many search and rescue squads from nations with those dogs that are able to scent human life deep under tons of debris.

A week ago, I saw a story about one hero of 9-11. It was a search dog, and somehow a clinic in California cloned him. They made so many copies of that canine hero. Maybe one or more of them are working in Haiti.

What a wonderful activity to be involved with those search and rescue groups. Of course, I would be practically worthless on a squad. With my physical limitations, I couldn't dig or even be very mobile. The only thing I could do to help is make people aware of the wonderful work they do, and maybe contribute a little money to them.

I saw a story about a rescued woman who was trapped under tons of collapsed buildings. When the roof of the supermarket she was in collapsed when the quake hit, she happened to be on her knees, and she spent nine days in that uncomfortable position. While she waited, she spent many, many hours in prayer. She said the only thing that made it possible to survive was her religious faith.

Imagine what a joyful moment it was when she heard voices above her, and she realized that perhaps her prayers were answered. But even when she got her first glimpse of daylight or felt hands on her, she was still far from all right, or even when she felt the wonderful first trickle of water or the first taste of food. She had to have immediate aid, especially for the "crush" injuries that happen when a building falls onto someone.

Thousands of doctors dropped everything and rushed to Haiti. They can do their life-saving work if the supplies and medications are available. The good news is that those medical supplies are getting out where they are most needed. They are no longer stuck in the airport or on a ship.

Experts from many agencies and organizations are trying to make a workable plan for all the longer-term health risks and needs. It is important to get the survivors out of the city and into some basic housing. That is the first step to healing the psychological damage injuries, which are massive.

There must be lots of parents in those horrible mass graves; probably thousands. And they left behind lots of children, who are now alone. Many Americans tried to adopt children from Haiti to try to give them a better life. The orphanages were filled with children of all ages.

But even before the earthquake, it was very hard trying to deal with Haiti's bureaucrats. Now, of course, post-earthquake, so many records are lost. Imagine what was faced by the would-be adopted parents who were well into the process. They were wondering if their child even survived the after-shocks.

Sunday was the final playoff game to determine which teams go to the Super Bowl. Of course, the Steelers were already gone. I made a decision months ago that if that happened, I would root for the New Orleans Saints. Sure enough, they pulled out in fine form. They will play the Indianapolis Colts.

So, the long successful career of the very popular Brett Favre of the Vikings is probably over. Unfortunately, he did not go out well. He had several pass interceptions. But the game was close and went back and forth in the last minutes. The Saints broke a tie with a field goal. It's strange that the kicker Garrett Hartley's father told him that he dreamed that he made the winning 40-something yard field goal. And that's exactly what happened.

It was a pleasant weekend for my family's college students. Maryland beat last year's national champion North Carolina, and West Virginia beat Ohio State on the hardwood courts. Let's go, both Mountaineers and Terrapins!

I woke up a little more than an hour ago. Yet at 7 a.m. there is no sign of the sunrise! We still have almost two months of this too much darkness.

My Claire started the process of moving to the Washington, D.C., area to pursue her first serious job. She and her close friend are on this great adventure. They found an apartment in Arlington, Va. Now the tough step is finding jobs. She plans to get a decent restaurant job first before looking for a serious job using her education.

She is among several cousins down there. Robby and Blakely Glotfelty are employed, as is Matthew Bass. Blakely's job is a result of the stimulus bill. She is injecting enthusiastic teaching talent into inner city schools. Actually, she is in the Baltimore area.

And my Caitlin is in her senior year in college. She has a very clear idea about what she wants to do with her life. She wants to go to the poorest parts of the globe and "change the world."

Despite my many and deep fears, I tried my best not to discourage her adventurous spirit, or put out the fire burning within her to make a real difference in the world, which she says she got from me. But I am actually really scared and dread the day when she will board an airplane heading to some remote and undeveloped place, where there are no decent hospitals.

The natives of Togo tried their best to get my brother Scott to a fully equipped hospital after he was attacked by a swarm of bees. But they were few and far between, and they didn't have a decent vehicle to take him on their poor roads. If a good hospital had been available, he wouldn't have died.

Of course, the last week increased my fears because many young Americans like Caitlin were in the disastrous earthquake. And some are still missing. But I am deeply proud of her for choosing to make a better world for the most helpless people. We chose her late uncle's name for her middle name: Caitlin Scott Sussman, so she would be a living memorial to him.

I decided to give her for Christmas two special used books that belonged to me. One was about a young girl who rode a bicycle from Ireland to Afghanistan. Another was the story of another girl who hitchhiked into Africa. I just hope and pray that God will keep her safe and that she will someday come home to me. In the immediate future, I can only treasure every minute I share with her.

I am sure all my readers know how I feel about my hero Roberto Clemente. When the corrupt government of Nicaragua was stealing all the relief goods after a terrible earthquake in 1972, he assembled a large cargo plane to ensure the medical supplies went to the people in need. He climbed aboard himself, and everyone knows what happened then. The plane went down into the Caribbean Sea.

But one of his twin sons, Roberto Jr., followed his father's lead. In 2004, his charity Project Club Clemente in New York City sent a load of two tons of medical supplies and $18,000 to the victims of the terrible Asian tsunami.

Roberto Jr. is a commentator on ESPN Spanish. One of his goals is to buy and send a solar-powered water purifier to Haiti. The country runs on diesel fuel, and one of the major shortages in Haiti is fuel. So they are sitting around unused. Each of the solar-powered machines costs $125,000, and are used to turn contaminated water into drinkable water. But long range, Haiti needs more community wells. In fact, just about all Third World nations do not have enough drinkable water.

Perhaps it is a shame that he did not inherit his father's "thunder arm" and turn into a legendary baseball player. But he did inherit his father's heart his desire to help suffering humanity, which of course is more valuable. And he always was a family man. I remember a picture from the 1960s of Roberto Sr. holding his sons to his face.

The information about Roberto Jr.'s charity work came from an article Brenda Ruggiero printed for me from the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

If you are a fan of sports and love a good book, I cannot recommend highly enough the biography of Roberto Clemente, The Great One.

I was happy to see the picture of my friend Dr. Dona Alvarez with some medical supplies from Garrett County Memorial Hospital that are headed off to Haiti. I was sure she would take action, because that is something she cares deeply about.

Since the weather is so darned icy, I do not go anywhere unless absolutely necessary. But I was able to buy True Compass, a memoir of the lion of the Senate, Edward Kennedy. The only reason I could afford it was that the day I visited Main Street Books in Frostburg was Monday, when all hardbound books were half price, so I gave myself a Christmas present. Joan Beitzel took me down.

I have to tell you that Frostburg doesn't do a good job of sidewalk clearing. We had to plow my wheelchair through about eight inches of snow. But somehow we made it. Thank goodness, because that was all the Christmas I was able to do. They stock the most wonderful books, at least for readers with my tastes.

The special election to replace Kennedy in the Senate resulted in a tragedy. One reason that the voters in Massachusetts don't care that much about the availability of health care is that their state is already providing it. But that is not an excuse to elect a lightweight Republican.

Mary Brenneman Frey is a patient at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Gary Shumway preached at all three churches of the Bittinger Parish on Sunday, Jan. 24. Gary is a second-year student at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg and is interested in rural ministry. He spent several days in the community with Pastor Randy Richardson to learn more about ministry in this area.

The fifth Sunday Bittinger Parish joint service will be held this Sunday, Jan. 31, at 10 a.m. at Emmanuel. Everyone is welcome to attend, and to enjoy the refreshments and fellowship afterward.

The planning committee for the Bittinger Parish 2010 Vacation Bible School met recently at the parsonage. The date for VBS was set for June 27 through July 1. Classes will be held for pre-K through teens. The lessons will be based on the theme "Cross Roads." The committee will meet again in April to make additional plans.

How much is on your plate?

For most of us, the answer is "TOO MUCH."

Our culture has a hard time saying "no" to just about anything. So week after week, we just keep adding things to our plates that we just don't have room for.

It's important that we all know the size of our plate and we know when to say "no."

For the past few weeks we've been talking about the importance of setting goals and devising plans to achieve them. There may be certain things that we need to add to our lives to achieve our goals, like a budget or a diet.

But there may also be things that we just need to DELETE.

As you read the Bible you'll find times when Jesus would leave the crowds and get away in order to be refreshed. Even after God was finished with creation....he rested.

He makes me to lie down in green pastures; He leads me beside the still waters. He restores my soul: Psalm 23

GC Names Student Ambassadors

by Melissa Parker

Garrett College recently chose a new group of student ambassadors, a select group of students who are dedicated to enhancing the image and promoting the awareness of the college. The new student ambassadors assist the college with recruitment, retention, and community-relations efforts.

GC student ambassadors reach out to prospective students and make them aware of the programs and services available at the college. In that process, the ambassadors gain leadership and communication skills.

Garrett began the student ambassador program two years ago. The students are chosen through an application and interview process.

This year, the college has a mix of student ambassadors with varying experiences and backgrounds. The majority of the new ambassadors are fresh faces at the college who just began their educational journeys at the McHenry campus in the fall. However, one of them is in his final semester at Garrett and preparing to transfer upon his graduation in May.

Marko Agbaba, an international student from Belgrade, Serbia, came to Garrett in the fall of 2008 to play basketball and study business. During his time at GC, he has been a standout student. He is a member of the Phi Theta Kappa International Honor Society and was awarded the Academic All-American award, which is sponsored by Phi Theta Kappa.

Agbaba hopes to transfer to either Bucknell University or Johns Hopkins University, but is still researching other transfer opportunities. He plans to eventually obtain a master's degree in business administration, and possibly a doctorate degree, before beginning a career in the business field.

In his spare time, Agbaba enjoys visiting museums, admiring European painters and sculptors, and listening to classical music.

Of the six ambassadors who plan to return to Garrett next fall, each brings to the program his/her own experiences and goals.

Kalendra "Kellie" Friend, a first-year student from Oakland, has a passion for languages. In fact, she wants to become a linguist and specialize in at least three languages. She already has one foot in the door; she's studying Spanish and French at Garrett, and in high school she won awards for her Spanish-speaking abilities.

After finishing at Garrett, Friend hopes to transfer to Frostburg State University, where she wants to join the women's cross country team, and she would also like to study abroad. By the age of 30, Friend hopes to have mastered seven languages and be living in Europe. She currently has a 3.9 grade point average.

Danielle Fazenbaker brings to the ambassador program a military background. She spent time as a soldier medic in the U.S. Army and hopes to volunteer for deployment so that she can assist in bringing as many soldiers as possible home from the war.

Fazenbaker grew up in Boynton, Pa., and plans to stay in this area. Upon graduation from Garrett, she intends to transfer to Frostburg, major in athletic training, and eventually become an athletic trainer for a high school. She hopes that school is Salisbury High School, her alma mater in Boynton. Someday, though, she hopes to open her own training facility.

Matthew Davey-Karlson came to Garrett from Chevy Chase to major in adventure sports management, a program for which he has a strong passion. One of the highlights from the program for Davey-Karlson was a recent trip to the Adirondack Mountains in New York, a trip his class took over the winter break.

Davey-Karlson plans to earn his A.A. degree at Garrett and then transfer to Western State College of Colorado to complete a bachelor's degree in outdoor recreation. His choice of transfer colleges is based partly on the fact that it would give him the opportunity to climb in the Black Canyon of Colorado on a daily basis.

Wherever his future takes him, Davey-Karlson hopes that it involves working with people, mainly youth, in a therapeutic recreation setting, helping others better their lives and find happiness. He says he would love to one day work for an organization like Outward Bound and lead international expeditions involving at-risk youth.

Davey-Karlson is a member of the National Technical Honor Society for his work in the field of automotive technology.

Amber Branthoover, a student from Accident, is majoring in secondary education. Although she is only in her first year at Garrett, she hopes her college career moves quickly; she plans to finish college as soon as possible so that she can begin a teaching career. After graduating from Garrett, Branthoover plans to transfer to Frostburg to complete her bachelor's degree. It is her hope to teach at the middle school or high school level.

Coming from a large family of eight brothers and sisters likely has influenced Branthoover's desire to start her own family as soon as she's settled into her career. She plans to get married and have children "as soon as the time is right" in her life.

Gina Rando began her college career several years ago, but life's circumstances halted her higher-education dreams. She decided to return to college last summer and has been at Garrett since.

Rando is majoring in business and plans to eventually transfer to West Virginia University to complete her bachelor's degree. She is a member of Garrett's Honors Program.

Rando currently works full-time at Clear Mountain Bank in Bruceton Mills, W.Va., as a personal banker, with a concentration in courtesy coverage. She was recently named to Who's Who Among Business Professionals.

In her spare time, Rando enjoys karate and has earned a black belt in the Kick Masters Karate System. She has also coached for the Spinoff Twirling Academy. In fact, she took the team to the Junior Olympics, where it won a silver medal.

Although he grew up in Baltimore, Janek Bracken was born in Riga, Latvia. He came to Garrett to major in adventure sports management.

Bracken plans to become a paramedic and trauma registered nurse. He says that his "dream job" would be a rescue flight paramedic for the park service. He is currently a volunteer firefighter and has received considerable recognition for his volunteer work with various organizations.

For more information about the student ambassador program at Garrett College, persons may contact Melissa Parker at 301-387-3010 or melissa.parker@garrettcollege.edu.

The Revised Draft of the Deep Creek Watershed Zoning Ordinance also reduces the area of the proposed Scenic Protection Overlay District to include only those areas identified as "Crestline Sub-District" on the initial draft zoning map.

Within the crestline areas, the revised draft has eliminated requirements for design, location, and screening of buildings. Requirements for preserving and/or planting trees are retained for the sides and rear of structures within the crestline areas.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Deep Creek Water Zoning Ordinance:

•New zoning districts are proposed: AR, RR, and Lake Residential-2 (LR-2) are new districts intended to preserve rural character and conserve natural resources by limiting residential development to a relatively low average density. Standards for subdivisions in the AR and RR districts are proposed. The Rural Development (RD) district is proposed to be eliminated.

•A Scenic Protection Overlay District is proposed for those areas identified as "Crestlines" on the proposed zoning map. This provision is intended to preserve the scenic views of the ridge tops and crest lines surrounding Deep Creek Lake. Requirements for retaining and planting trees on the sides and rear of structures when viewed from the lake and shoreline are proposed.

•Provisions, including setbacks, for domestic, agricultural, and industrial wind energy devices are proposed.

•New setbacks for drilling for natural gas are proposed.

•New provisions for non-conforming structures and grandfathered non-conforming lots are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Subdivision Ordinance:

•The AR and RR land classifications are proposed to be expanded, and new standards for subdivisions in these areas are proposed.

•A provision that would allow the Planning Commission to require a traffic impact study for major subdivisions is proposed.

•A provision to retain trees and other vegetative cover for new subdivisions abutting scenic byways is proposed.

•Provisions to delineate the boundaries of any wetlands or Source Water Protection Areas on subdivision plans are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Sensitive Areas Ordinance:

•Provisions to protect Source Water Protection Areas are proposed.

•A provision to limit the exemption from the steep slope requirements to lots of record that are less than four acres is proposed.

•A provision to prevent construction of buildings on man-made slopes exceeding 30 percent grade is proposed.

•A provision to use the Maryland Sensitive Species Project Review Areas map as the indicator for referring applicants to the Department of Natural Resources is proposed.

The Revised Draft Ordinances are formatted such that readers will be able to easily compare them with the Sept. 29 drafts.

All three Revised Draft Ordinances and related maps are available for public review on the county's web site at garrettcounty.-org by clicking on "Draft Revisions to Ordinances" under "News."

The drafts are also available at the Department of Planning and Land Development office, all branch locations of the Ruth Enlow Library, and in the main offices of the Crellin, Swan Meadow, Bloomington, Yough Glades, and Route 40 public schools.

ners who provide the services, but often see their medical malpractice insurance skyrocket when they deliver more than 30 babies per year, noted the spokesperson.

"We are working hard to come to a lasting solution for the future of all of Garrett County's citizens. This is a truly collaborative effort involving the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, Garrett County Health Department, Garrett Memorial Hospital, and the local doctors providing obstetrical services," said Beitzel.

Beitzel and Edwards also sit on the House and Senate budgetary committees. These committees are charged with approving or modifying the governor's proposed budget.

In addition, the local lawmakers are members of subcommittees that deal with transportation issues.

community collaborators with the success of the program.

"The program that won the award would not have been possible without the assistance of other community groups," she said. "The training conferences and early markets were held in partnership with Garrett College. The Garrett County Fair Board supported the project by hosting the youth market at the fairgrounds. Members of the Mountain Fresh Producers Association supported the youth market by providing consulting and approving a reduced fee for youth vendors."

According to a spokesperson, the Annie E. Casey Foundation sponsors the Family Strengthening Award because of the belief that in order for children to do well, their families must do well, and families do better when they live in supportive communities.

The youth entrepreneurship project was also supported by donations from Garrett and Preston County farm bureaus, Garrett and Preston county chambers of commerce, Clear Mountain Bank, Farm Family Life Insurance Company, Helbig Insurance Agency, Champion Farms, Crimson Shamrock Alpacas, and Sincell Publishing/ The Republican.

tions, limited visibility, low ceilings, 40 foot seas, and wind gusts reaching 75 knots," the HAI report states. "Completing a challenging visual approach to the vessel, the crew was unable to find a safe hoisting area because of extensive rigging and framework that littered the deck. After a careful risk assessment, it was determined that the survivors should enter the water to be hoisted to safety.

"Undaunted by the weather, rescue swimmer AST3 Jon E. Geskus powered through towering waves for nearly 30 minutes to locate and hoist the first survivor to safety," the report states. "During the third hoist, Cathell realized that the helicopter was being driven back over the fishing vessel by the hurricane-force winds. Aware that Geskus and the survivor were still dangling below the aircraft, and could possibly be dragged through the rigging, Cathell assertively maneuvered the helicopter safely away from the vessel as Geskus and the survivor were recovered.

"In the face of furious winds, 40-foot swells, and limited kicking power due to a lost fin, Geskus successfully rescued all four terrified survivors," the report continues. "Despite exhaustion from his efforts, Geskus rendered medical assistance to all four survivors before they were transferred to a local hospital to be treated for minor hypothermia.

"Despite being a relatively inexperienced crew, CGNR 6033 worked flawlessly as a team to ensure the safe execution of this critical mission. The newly designated flight mechanic, AMT3 Jason A. Menezes, completed his first operational hoist during the mission. Each crewmember's airmanship and courage stood out as they rose to the challenge, allowing the crew of the stricken vessel to safely return home," the report concluded.

The air crew was also awarded the Outstanding Helicopter Rescue for 2008 by the Ancient Order of the Pterodactyl (the Coast Guard Aviation Association) at the annual "Roost" in Elizabeth City, NC.

Cathell is the son of Carl and Kayla Cathell, Oakland. He is a 2002 graduate of Southern High School.

may not all bid, but it certainly ensures a very competitive bid process," Neff said about the number of potential bidders.

Bids will be opened on Feb. 4. Phase I work is expected to start in early April, with the aquatics center opening in fall 2011.

Phase II, the gymnasium, is still in the design stage. But in order to stay within budget for both phases, the bid amount for Phase I will determine the size and nature of the gym, Neff noted.

The Phase II bid process will begin sometime in April, with gym construction to start soon after that. Neff said that facility could be finished in fall 2011 or spring 2012.

Economic Development

Director Jim Hinebaugh, Department of Economic Development, said he was looking forward to spring, as several private and government projects will begin when the weather improves.

Those initiatives include construction of the Garrett County Exhibit Hall at the fairgrounds, the start of the McHenry Business Park, and renovations to the former Phenix Technologies building in Accident for a new Career Technology and Training Center.

Also planned are roadway improvements at the intersection of Rt. 219 and Glendale Road that will be conducive to business growth in that area, and construction of an access road into the old county roads garage site in Oakland. That road will give access to a Dairy Queen, currently under construction, and a new Clear Mountain Bank, to be built in the near future.

Hinebaugh also noted that a new Walgreens opened in Oakland on Friday.

Board of Elections

The governor's new budget does not contain any funding for a new voting system, reported Steve Fratz, Garrett County Board of Elections director. However, he noted, that does not completely eliminate the possibility that a new system will be required for the upcoming election.

"But time is really starting to run out," Fratz said.

He also reported that the new cycle for election judges starts on June 15. The director needs to have his judges "in place" by that date.

"But I lost about 20 percent of my workforce since the last election," he said. "The Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park area is the hardest hit."

He said this is his biggest vacancy since becoming director. But, Fratz noted, the Board of Elections has never had a problem with finding residents to serve as judges.

"People of Garrett County feel it's their civic duty, and we've always had an extremely good election judge base," he said.

For more information, persons may call Fratz at 301-334-6985.

Extension Office

Administrative changes are coming to the University of Maryland Extension, reported Ann Sherrard, director of the Garrett County office. The Extension is regionalizing its administration work. In the local area, one director will oversee activities in Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties.

"This is just a change in the administrative structure," Sherrard stressed. "Everything else, we hope, will continue."

She said things will just be "a little different," and university officials may return to "the way it was before" if the change does not work.

Garrett College Job Fair Slated For March 25

The 2010 Garrett County Job Fair, offering business owners and managers the opportunity to spread the word about what they do and what kind of employees they seek, will be held at Garrett College on Thursday, March 25, from 3 to 7 p.m., with registration beginning at 2:30 p.m.

"Last year's job fair was an outstanding success, with more than 450 job seekers in attendance and a full house of employers," said Judy A. Carbone, coordinator of Career & Transfer Services at Garrett College. "Feedback from all participants was incredibly positive. Unfortunately, we ran out of floor space and had to turn some employers away. Please don't let that happen to your organization. Register early for the 2010 Garrett County Job Fair."

Businesses are encouraged to return the registration form by no later than Feb. 27, in order to be included in pre-job fair radio and print advertising. Additional spaces will be available on a limited basis until March 20.

Participating employers will be offered display space, including a table, chairs, and a sign with the company name. Access to electrical outlets will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.

The job fair will be open to all members of the community, including college and high school students, and experienced workers seeking a job or career change. The fair is open to any employer who is expecting to hire people within the next several months, whether full time, part time, summer, entry level, or experienced.

"Job seekers will be encouraged to bring copies of their resumes and to prepare for making the most effective impression possible on the employers with whom they speak," said Carbone.

The registration form for businesses is now available on the job fair web site at www.garrettcollege.edu/events/jobfair/em-ployers.htm or by contacting Carbone at 301-387-3046. The cost for employers is $35.

The job fair is being sponsored by Garrett College, the Garrett County One-Stop Job Center, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, and Radio FX.

RE Library Director Attends Access To Justice Conference

Cathy Ashby, director of the Ruth Enlow Library and a member of the Maryland Access to Justice Commission, recently attended the Self-Represented Litigation Network – National Center for State Courts Conference on Public Libraries and Access to Justice in Austin, Texas. The conference was funded by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and addressed how public libraries can improve access to online legal information.

Conference organizers had selected 10 to 15 teams in a competitive application process nationwide, with 42 teams from 31 states applying. Ashby's team was one of those selected, and her team members included Julie Strange, statewide coordinator of Maryland AskUsNow!, and Sarah Coffey Frush, supervising attorney, District Court Self-Help Center in Annapolis.

The conference offered a unique opportunity for participants to meet with public librarians and with legal and court experts to discuss strategies for integrating access to legal information into their programs. This included information about how to locate the best content and tools; how to talk about the content with library patrons; how to work with content partners to make sure needed content is developed; how to share what they have learned statewide; and how to use successful programs to advocate for the importance of public libraries as gateways to government institutions.

As one outcome of the conference, Ashby's team is to receive a mini-grant for training Maryland public librarians in legal research and access to justice issues.

According to a spokesperson, with the economic downturn, more and more people are turning to their public libraries as hubs of information, and to access online resources.

For questions or additional information, persons may contact Cathy Ashby at 301-334-3996, ext. 102.

Community Action Schedules Annual "Bundle Up" Drive

Garrett County Community Action Committee's Community and Energy Services (C&E) office will hold its annual "Bundle Up" Blanket Drive from Monday, Feb. 8, to Monday, March 8. The event is conducted each year to help local residents who are experiencing an energy crisis during the winter months.

The following establishments are collection sites for this year's drive: Garrett County Community Action, C&E Services; Church of the Brethren West Marva District office, 1009 Dennett Road, Oakland; and the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland, Accident, Friendsville, and Kitzmiller.

A spokesperson requested that donations be taken to any of these sites prior to March 8.

All donations will be stored and distributed at Community Action, located at 104 East Center Street Oakland.

The C&E program promotes the agency's goal of increasing the number of families and individuals who are economically self-sufficient and able to live independently in the county.

Persons in need of blankets may contact Michelle Dale, Community Action outreach specialist, at 301-334-9431, ext. 118, or toll free at 1-888-877-8403.

Yoga Instructor Among Health Fair Presenters

Peggy Santamaria, local certified yoga instructor, will demonstrate and lead simple stretch exercises at the Garrett County Health Fair, scheduled for April 17 at Wisp Resort, McHenry.

"Simple stretches will release hip flexor muscles and relax quadriceps," explained Santamaria. "Tightness in these muscles can occur while sitting and can cause a sense of 'stiffness' when standing. I will present some easy methods to flex the lumbar spine to relieve pressure from prolonged sitting, and to ease tightness from the neck and shoulders."

Santamaria began practicing yoga 42 years ago. Now, at the age of 65, she teaches people of all ages her "easy-does-it" method of yoga. Santamaria offers classes at the Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center in Accident.

The health fair will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. and will offer free health screenings, speakers, demonstrations, health information, and displays. Additional information about the event is available by calling 301-533-4178.

Have You HEARD?

by M. Keith Nester, Sr., BC-HIS

M. Keith Nester, Sr., BC-HIS — Cathy Arnold, HIS

WHAT DO YOU HEAR?

If you think that hearing loss is solely a symptom of old age, you should know that many of the millions of people currently suffering from hearing loss are anything but old. Due to generally noisier environments and earphones that feed loud music directly into listeners' ears, hearing loss is about two-and-a-half times more common among young people than it was just 25 years ago. Thus, younger individuals should forget the stereotypes surrounding hearing loss and old age and ask themselves if they experience difficulty hearing. If you experience problems hearing people speak, need the TV volume turned up inordinately loud, or have trouble hearing in noisy environments, you have reasons to believe that you are losing your hearing.

Regardless of a person's age, discovering and acknowledging there is a hearing problem is the first step toward correcting it. The next step is turning to a hearing specialist for comprehensive examination, evaluation, and determination of the best approach to the impairment. Are you thinking there might be a problem with your hearing? Would you like to learn more about today's advanced technology in hearing instruments? We can help you address these issues and others at AUDIBEL.

P.S. When it comes to hearing loss, prevention is best. Limit your exposure to loud noise.

NORTH STAR
by Kara Savage, reporter

The North Star 4-H Club held its regular meeting on Nov. 10 at the Accident Fire Department. The meeting was called to order by president Kevin Haenftling. There were two members, eight guests, three parents, and two leaders present.

The program was about the shoe box ministry and making decorations for the Christmas party.

Kara Savage and Kevin Haenftling reported on the Maryland 4-H Gala that they attended, where they both received their Diamond Clover Level 6 awards.

Club officers for the new year are as follows: Kevin Haenftling, president; Kathryn Kitzmiller, vice president; Kara Savage, secretary, treasurer, and reporter; and Dalton Kitzmiller and Isaac Brenneman, photographers.

The club Christmas party was held on Dec. 6, and a planning meeting for the new year was held on Dec. 29. Both were at the Accident Fire Department.

Kara Savage gave demonstrations on her tractor project, rabbit project, and veterinary science project.

TRAILBLAZERS
by Erika Ritchey, acting reporter

The January meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club was held at Yough Glades Elementary School. New president-elect Austin Sines called the meeting to order, and secretary Nikki Pysell called roll. There were nine members and nine adults present.

Record books and enrollment forms were turned in and 4-H dues were also collected. The group discussed upcoming events. Officer training is scheduled for Feb. 9 from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at Southern Middle School.

Under new business, club members planned the 2010 calendar year. They decided to collect pocket change at every meeting, and next December it will be given to a family for Christmas. Everyone is asked to bring change to help raise money for the project.

The next meeting is planned for Thursday, Feb. 18, at 6:30 p.m. at Yough Glades Elementary School. All members need to have a speech or radio spot ready to present.

Anyone interested in joining 4-H is welcome to attend a meeting or call 301-334-6960 for more information on a nearby club.

EARTHQUAKE SEVERITY
by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. On TV they said the Haiti earthquake was bad because it was "near the surface." What does this mean?

A. I am greatly indebted to geology professor Gregory W. Pouch of Illinois Wesleyan University for this explanation:

How loud a firecracker sounds depends on both how big the firecracker was, and where it was relative to your ears. In that analogy, the Haitian earthquake went off right next to the ear.

There are several important terms about earthquakes that need to be explained.

The outer layer of the earth is made up of tectonic plates, and entire continents like North America and South America sit on individual plates. There is also a much smaller plate called the Caribbean plate. Those plates sometimes move relative to each other. The boundaries between tectonic plates are irregular and contain faults, where rock from adjacent plates touch. When plates move, disruption occurs along fault lines.

An earthquake is any event in which the earth shakes: This can be because of movement along a fault, which is what we usually mean. Other causes include volcanic eruptions, asteroid impacts, or even atomic bomb tests.

The various plates are constantly trying to move past each other, but friction prevents that. Consequently, stress builds up near the fault lines, and energy is stored in the adjacent rock. Eventually the stress reaches the point where the rocks can no longer resist the stress, and the fault ruptures. When that happens, energy is released, generally as waves moving through the rocks in all directions. The starting point of the rupture is called the focus; the point on the earth's surface above the focus is called the epicenter. The zone from which energy is released is called the source region.

When this movement happens, the failure begins at a point and propagates outward over some area: How much area slips and how far it slips determines how much energy is released; these both depend on the rocks and the fault. Slip regions can be kilometers to hundreds of kilometers across, so even though a location is a few kilometers from the focus/epicenter, it might still be in the source region.

The distance moved (the displacement) by the earth might not seem large (a meter or so), but the extremely sudden motion means the acceleration of the adjacent ground is great; and whatever is attached is accelerated too.

The released energy goes outward in waves of several types: The fastest are like sound waves, others are transverse waves, but it's slower-moving surface waves that do the most damage. The closer you are to an earthquake's source region, the more intense the shaking. In the case of the Haiti earthquake, the focus was close to the surface, within about 10 km, so surface waves were very strong.

For the same energy level, a lower-density substance will accelerate more than a high-density substance, which is why areas underlain by loose sediments suffer more damage than areas on rock. If the earthquake has a frequency that matches a frequency the sediments can shake at, it can set up harmonic vibrations, making it worse. Some sediments suddenly lose their strength when shaken hard enough, and buildings on top of such soils can tilt. The phrase "shaking like a bowl of jelly" refers to vibration of that loose sediment.

The other big factor in the Haiti earthquake was the widespread masonry construction. Most structures are not designed to resist the forces of vibration and acceleration. A brick building is held together by gravity, and a lateral acceleration will knock it down easily, compared to a wood or steel frame building, where the strength of the wood or steel needs to be overcome. The major city of Port-au-Prince had nearly all its masonry buildings destroyed.

The USGS notes that Haiti had major earthquakes in 1751, 1770, and 1860 and there are a number of other large or major earthquakes that have occurred nearby.

The customary way to represent the severity of an earthquake is via the Richter scale. The Richter magnitude of an earthquake measures the energy on a logarithmic scale, which has a step size of 31.6. Thus, a magnitude seven earthquake releases about 32 times as much energy as a magnitude 6 (which is equivalent to a 1 megaton atomic bomb) and 1,000 times as much as a magnitude 5. The Sichuan, China, earthquake of May 2008 was magnitude 8. In 1964, Anchorage, Alaska, suffered a magnitude 9.2 quake, the second largest yet recorded.

GC Teachers Participate In CASE Workshop

Several Garrett County school teachers recently attended a Center for the Advancement of STEM Education (CASE) teacher training workshop held at Garrett College. The program was designed to implement new, innovative classroom strategies to better prepare its students for careers in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM).

"In 2007, some of our teachers attended CASE's Summer Teacher Training institutes at Garrett College," stated Board of Education director of secondary education Lynn Bell, "They learned to use a variety of the Materials World Modules (MWM) produced at Northwestern University, which they then were able to implement in their classrooms that fall."

According to a spokesperson for CASE, President Obama continues to bring national attention to STEM education.

"Leadership tomorrow depends on how we educate our students today, especially in those fields that hold the promise of producing future innovations and innovators," noted Obama. "And that's why education in math and science is so important." He added, "Today, we are launching the "Educate to Innovate" campaign, a nationwide effort to help reach the goal this administration has set: moving to the top in science and math education in the next decade."

An MWM training was held in March at Northern Garrett High School, where local teachers learned how to use the ceramics material science modules. At this workshop, teachers learned the biodegradable module. "Our partnership with CASE is enabling our county to positively affect STEM education in Maryland and beyond," said Bell.

CASE was established in June 2006 with funding from the U.S. Department of Defense (DoD) and is a National Defense Education Program (NDEP) under the leadership of Robert McGahern. Its primary purpose is to add more professional engineers and scientists to the workforce by stimulating interest in middle and high school students and teachers nationwide. CASE is currently providing teacher professional development throughout the U.S. and has trained teachers from 25 states.

In many states, scientists and engineers from DoD laboratories have joined the training sessions. Following the institutes, the laboratory scientists and engineers partner with the classroom teachers to provide relevant, "real-world" strategies in the classroom.

A unique dimension to the CASE program is that DoD scientists and engineers have committed to serving as classroom mentors in schools across the nation. Scientists and engineers from the Rocket City laboratory in Keyser, W.Va., have offered to work with Garrett County teachers. These professionals provide their "real-world" experience with the teachers and students in an effort to enhance student learning and application.

"One of our primary goals is to train teachers in innovative classroom methods that will rekindle the interest of their students in STEM subjects by immersing them in inquiry and design-based learning," said Dr. Stephen Priselac, who serves as executive director of CASE. "The underlying objective is to provide students with experiences that will expand their natural inquisitive nature by exploring, observing, analyzing, and deciding how their new-found knowledge applies to solving new challenges."

"The U.S. has realized that a high-quality STEM education is critical to our country's future success and security," said director for training Dr. Nancy Priselac. "CASE is furnishing teachers, including some from Garrett County, with comprehensive instruction using the latest technology and cutting-edge best practices to better prepare them for the 21st-century classroom. A variety of instructional tools are being introduced, including the MWM material science modules developed by Dr. Robert Chang of Northwestern University."

CASE works with educators and partners to create intensive teacher training programs that supplement the normal science curriculum. Current partners include the National Institute of Aerospace (NIA), Northwestern University, Nortel, Tabula Digita, Museum of Science (Boston), Building Engineering and Science Talent (BEST), and Garrett College.

CASE is a response to President Bush's 2006 State of the Union Address during which he announced the American Competitiveness Initiative (ACI) to encourage American innovation and strengthen the nation's ability to compete in the global economy. ACI will increase federal investment in critical research, ensure that the U.S. continues to lead the world in opportunity and innovation, and provide American children with a strong foundation in math and science.

Health Insurance, Heating Loads To Be Topics At Mtg.

The Garrett County Electrical Mechanical Association (GCEMA) will hold a meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 3, at 7 p.m. in Room 224 at Garrett College.

Health insurance and the basic foundation of heating load calculations for the residential HVAC industry will be among the topics on the agenda, a spokesperson said. All area contractors and their employees associated with electrical, plumbing, and HVAC work are invited to attend the GCEMA meetings.

Dave Insley will be the guest speaker at the meeting. He will describe Health Savings Accounts (HSAs), MHIPA, and the various types of health insurance that may be available to company owners.

The basic foundation of heating load calculations for the residential HVAC industry, including R-values, U-values, heat transfer multipliers, and how heat flows through a building's thermal envelope, will be discussed.

An informational briefing or presentation is planned for each regular monthly meeting on the first Wednesday of each month throughout the year.

The GCEMA is a nonprofit, member-driven organization for electrical, plumbing, and HVAC contractors and their employees, established to advance professionalism and represent a collective voice to communicate on local, state, and national levels.

Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to everyone for the sympathy cards we received, Pastor Randy Nairn, Newman Funeral Home, and to St. John's Ladies Aid of the Cove for the delicious dinner they served.

In our fast-paced world it may be that we listen less, but perhaps we listen in different ways: tele-conferences instead of visits, text-messages instead of phone conversations, MP3 players instead of concerts. In any case, we can always listen more, especially to age-old wisdom, to worthwhile social mores, and to solid spiritual principles.

Proverbs 4:13 instructs, "Hold on to instruction, do not let it go; guard it well, for it is your life." We must choose carefully those to whom we listen and not assume that we ourselves always have the answers.

We can find instruction in numerous ways. One sure place to find it is in your local church or synagogue. Listen and learn about your Heavenly Father as you worship this week. He has the wisest advice.

Don't Expect a Reward

Virtue requires doing the right thing with no expectation of reward, and still doing it happily, but without becoming too proud of our good deeds. When we are raising our children, we often use punishment and reward to shape their behavior. But as they grow older, we want them to understand that some things are inherently good (or bad) and must be done (or avoided) regardless of whether one is rewarded (or punished) for doing them. If punishment and reward are overemphasized, we run the risk of raising children who are only good when they are being supervised. Likewise, we don't want to be adults who are overly concerned with reward. The idea that we will be rewarded in heaven for our good deeds is often comforting when we are being punished for them here on earth. But, if that is the only reason we are doing good deeds, to be rewarded for them, then surely we've tainted the pure effect of those good deeds. Virtue is indeed its own reward, and we shouldn't expect to be paid handsomely for doing what is right. We should do the right thing simply because it is the right thing to do.

He who does good is of God; he who does evil has not seen God.

Antibiotics for Pneumonia Prevention

Pneumonia is an inflamation of the lungs. It is caused by an infection. Although pneumonia can occur at any age, persons over 65 years of age are more likely to be affected. Persons who smoke are also at an increased risk of developing pneumonia. Symptoms may be similar to the flu, including a cough and fever. Other common symptoms include shortness of breath, sweating, chills, and muscle pain. Community-acquired pneumonia (CAP) is a specific type of pneumonia that is commonly acquired at school or work. This type of pneumonia is commonly caused by the bacteria streptococcus pneumoniae.

A family of antibiotics, which include azithromycin and clarithromycin, may be prescribed for those who were healthy prior to pneumonia infection. For individuals with other conditions at the time of the infection, such as diabetes or a chronic heart condition, a fluoroquinolone-type antibiotic, such as moxifloxacin or levofloxacin may be prescribed. Alternatively, a combination of a beta-lactam antibiotic, such as amoxicillin, and an antibiotic like azithromycin may be prescribed. In addition, persons 65 years of age and older and others with chronic conditions are recommended to receive the pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It was American political scientist, economist, psychologist and professor Herbert Simon who made the following sage observation: "What information consumes is rather obvious: It consumes the attention of its recipients. Hence a wealth of information creates a poverty of attention, and a need to allocate that attention efficiently among the overabundance of information sources that might consume it."

• Those who study such things claim that the act of licking a stamp burns one-tenth of a calorie.

• The shortest song in the world is "You Suffer," recorded in 1986 by the British band Napalm Death. It lasts precisely 1.316 seconds.

• Stanley Mason was an inventor who really got around, in a manner of speaking. In addition to coming with the idea for the granola bar, he also created the squeezable ketchup bottle, the disposable diaper, heated pizza boxes and the dental floss dispenser.

• There are more Polish people living in Chicago than in any city on Earth except for Warsaw, Poland's capital.

• You might be surprised to learn that the most dangerous profession in the country — in terms of the percentage of people holding that profession who have been killed — isn't firefighter or police officer, it's president of the United States. A total of 9 percent of our presidents have been assassinated.

• Studiers of statistics say that in any random group of 23 people, the chances that at least two of them share a birthday is more than 50 percent.

• In the Commonwealth of Virginia, a statute contained within what's known as the Code of 1930 prohibits bribery or corruption by anyone other than a political candidate.

Thought for the Day: "I think the biggest mistake most people make when they pick their first job is they don't worry enough about whether they'll love the work, and they worry more about whether it's good experience." — Steve Ballmer

• On Feb. 4, 1959, Lawrence Taylor, one of the greatest defensive players in NFL history, is born in Williamsburg, Va. • On Feb. 7, 1964, "Beatlemania" arrives at New York's Kennedy Airport. The "Fab Four" were greeted by 3,000 screaming fans, who caused a near riot when The Beatles stepped off the plane and onto American soil.

TV Pipeline

'Raising' falls: TNT cancels its law drama

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q: I noticed "series finale" recently on "Raising the Bar." Did TNT cancel the show? –Nancy Rooks, Enid, Okla.

A: It did. After two seasons of the Steven Bochco-produced law drama, which starred Mark-Paul Gosselaar (who also had worked for Bochco previously on "NYPD Blue"), the cable network decided against ordering a third round. The last three episodes were shown on Christmas Eve, and ironically, the final one was subtitled "Happy Ending."

Q: Will "Bones" ever broadcast a new episode? My friends and I like the show, but we're sick of all the reruns. –Nancy Jones, Tequesta, Fla.

A: Something tells us you may be watching the show on TNT or in local station syndication rather than on Fox, the series' home network. Though a lot of programs were largely in repeats at the start of winter, "Bones" has had its share of new episodes on Fox so far this season – including a holiday-themed tale last month that featured star Emily Deschanel's sister, Zooey, of the sleeper-hit movie "(500) Days of Summer."

Q: What happened to the old ABC "Movie of the Week" that was shown in the 1970s? It produced memorable films such as "Brian's Song" and "Go Ask Alice." Will they ever be available on DVD? –Peggy Schneegurt, Wichita, Kan.

A: As for "what happened" to it, it went off the air ... as so many series from the '70s have by now. As for their DVD availability, it depends on the given title and what the studio that owns the rights to it has decided. To use the two examples you gave, both "Brian's Song" and "Go Ask Alice" have been released on disc; an Internet search of the title, followed by "DVD," will indicate where you can find it for purchase.

Q: Do you know what Julianne Hough is doing now? –Georgia Dess, Greenfield, Wis.

A: Though ABC hadn't yet announced the cast of "Dancing With the Stars" for the show's spring season at this writing, it appeared that Hough wouldn't be part of it. She seems to be focusing more on her music career, encompassing her intention to write more of the tunes for her next album. However, her main mission these days is prepping to film the movie remake of "Footloose," in which she'll assume the role Lori Singer played in the 1984 original.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Garrett County Planning Commission will conduct a hearing concerning proposed revisions to three principal land development ordinances currently implemented by the County. The proposed revisions would affect the following ordinances:

1) Deep Creek Watershed Zoning Ordinance;
2) Garrett County Subdivision Ordinance;
3) Garrett County Sensitive Areas Ordinance.

The Date and Time of the Hearing is:
Saturday, February 6, 2010, at 10:00 a.m.

The Location of the Hearing is:
Garrett College Auditorium

All interested citizens are cordially invited to attend

Initial preliminary drafts of these three ordinances were released for public review on September 29, 2009, by the Department of Planning and Land Development. The Planning Commission sponsored a public information meeting on the initial draft on October 14, 2009. The Planning Commission has accepted citizen comments submitted at the public meeting and in writing or by e-mail since the public meeting.

Based on the comments received, the Planning Commission has prepared Revised Draft Ordinances that incorporate major changes to the September 29 drafts regarding subdivision policies in the AR (Agricultural Resource) and RR (Rural Resource) land classifications and zoning districts. The Revised Draft Ordinances:

- Allow subdivisions using either a non-cluster option or a cluster option.
- Remove the provisions requiring creation of a resource parcel when subdivision occurs.
- Allow subdivision with a 3-acre minimum lot size.
- Allow subdivision with a one-acre minimum lot size for transfer to children or grandchildren of the lot owner; for subdivision of a parcel less than 20 acres in area; or by waiver, for subdivision of parcels larger than 20 acres if they are primarily surrounded by subdivided lots.
- Provide incentives to promote cluster subdivision as a preferred option.

The Revised Draft of the Deep Creek Watershed Zoning Ordinance also reduces the area of the proposed Scenic Protection Overlay District to include only those areas identified as "Crestline Sub-district" on the initial draft zoning map. Within the Crestline areas, the Revised Draft has eliminated requirements for design, location and screening of buildings. Requirements for preserving and/or planting trees are retained for the sides and rear of structures within the Crestline areas.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the DCW Zoning Ordinance:

1) New Zoning Districts are proposed: Agricultural Resource (AR), Rural Resource (RR) and Lake Residential 2 (LR-2) are new districts intended to preserve rural character and conserve natural resources by limiting residential development to a relatively low average density. Standards for subdivisions in the AR and RR districts are proposed. The Rural Development (RD) district is proposed to be eliminated.
2) A Scenic Protection Overlay District is proposed for those areas identified as Crestlines on the proposed zoning map. This provision is intended to preserve the scenic views of the ridge tops and crest lines surrounding Deep Creek Lake. Requirements for retaining and planting trees on the sides and rear of structures when viewed from the lake and shoreline are proposed.
3) Architectural Standards for non-residential structures in the TC, TR and GC zoning districts for metal buildings are proposed.
4) Provisions, including set-backs, for domestic, agricultural and industrial wind energy devices are proposed.
5) New set-backs for drilling for natural gas are proposed.
6) New provisions for non-conforming structures and grandfathered non-conforming lots are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Subdivision Ordinance:

1) The Agricultural Resource (AR) and Rural Resource (RR) land classifications are proposed to be expanded and new standards for subdivisions in these areas are proposed.
2) A provision that would allow the Planning Commission to require a Traffic Impact Study for major subdivisions is proposed.
3) A provision to retain trees and other vegetative cover for new subdivisions abutting Scenic Byways is proposed.
4) Provisions to delineate the boundaries of any wetlands or Source Water Protection Areas on subdivision plans are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Sensitive Areas Ordinance:

1) Provisions to protect Source Water Protection Areas are proposed.
2) A provision to limit the exemption from the steep slope requirements to lots of record that are less than four acres is proposed.
3) A provision to prevent construction of buildings on man-made slopes exceeding 30% grade is proposed.
4) A provision to use the Maryland Sensitive Species Project Review Areas map as the indicator for referring applicants to DNR is proposed.

The Revised Draft Ordinances are formatted such that readers will be able to easily compare them with the September 29 drafts. All three Revised Draft Ordinances and related maps are available for public review on the County's website at http:/www.garrettcounty.org by clicking on Draft Revisions to Ordinances under News. The revised drafts are also available at the Department of Planning and Land Development office, all branch locations of the Ruth Enlow Libraries and in the main offices of the Crellin, Bloomington, Swan Meadow, Yough Glades and Route 40 public schools.

Vitéz & Wampler United In Double-Ring Ceremony In July

Jennifer Ann Vitéz and Kenneth Daniel Wampler were united in marriage on Friday, July 24, 2009, in a double-ring ceremony that took place at the Friendsville United Methodist Church, with Pastor Daymond Schmuck officiating.

Michelle Harman served as pianist, and Esther Maust performed a solo. Paula Streets was wedding coordinator, and Danny Streets directed parking. Guests were greeted by Gabrielle Daniels and Michaela Vitéz, cousins of the bride, who passed out programs and attended the guest book.

The bride is the daughter of Frank and Rebecca Vitéz, Friendsville. She is the granddaughter of the late James and Helen Vitéz and the late Raymond and Alta Schlosnagle, who resided in Friendsville. She graduated from Northern High School and Frostburg State University. She is an art teacher at Southern Middle School.

The groom is the son of Vernon and Diane Wampler, Friendsville. He is the grandson of Kenneth Metheny, Shirley Metheny, and Betty Wampler, all of Friendsville, and the late Daniel Wampler. He graduated from Northern High School and Garrett College. He is a fisheries technician for the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She wore an ivory silk taffeta A-line gown by Cymbeline Paris. The gown was detailed with a strapless pleated neckline and rouched bodice, which laced up in the back. The gown was also detailed with side flowers and a ribbon and tulle under skirt with a cathedral train. Her veil was a cape cut, edged with ivory ribbon. She wore a Cymbeline pearl and crystal embellished long wrap necklace and her late grandmother Alta's diamond earrings. She carried a handkerchief bouquet from her new mother-in-law. The bride carried a bouquet of stargazer lilies, pink mini calla lilies, pink lisianthus, mini ivory gerber daisies, wax flower, and grass loops hand-tied with ribbon.

Serving as maid of honor was Jane Williamson, Salt Lake City, Utah, friend of the bride. The bridesmaids were Shenna Rodeheaver, Atlanta, Ga., Laurie Betlo, Middletown, Katie Linnell, Washington, D.C., all friends of the bride, and Holly Wampler, Friendsville, sister of the groom. The bridesmaids wore watermelon knee-length dresses with bubble hems in different styles. They carried bouquets of light pink mini gerber daisies and alstroemaria lilies, with grass loops hand-tied with ribbon.

The flower girl was Kylynn Vitéz, niece of the bride. She carried a basket of light and dark pink rose petals. The ring bearer was Khloe Vitéz, niece of the bride.

Serving as best man was T.J. Nine, Friendsville, cousin of the groom. Groomsmen were David Wampler, Martinsburg, W.Va., cousin of the groom, and Travis Spear, Friendsville, and Johnny Hook, Friendsville, both friends of the groom, and Benjamin Vitéz, Friendsville, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, the couple were transported to the reception in Engine/Rescue 32, courtesy of the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company, of which the groom is a volunteer firefighter. The wedding party followed in a white limo.

The reception was held at Wisp Resort, Deep Creek Lake. Entertainment was provided by C.J.'s Music Masters, Shepherdstown, W.Va. Guests enjoyed cocktails, hors d'oeuvres, and a buffet dinner. The wedding cake, baked by Norma Rodeheaver, consisted of tiers of cupcakes with a small cake on top and decorated with fresh flowers. The reception venue was decorated with live greenery and white lighted trees. The tables were decorated in shades of pink with spring potted flowers, vases with beta fish, and candles on a mirror centerpiece. The potted flowers and beta fish were souvenirs for the guests. Flower arrangements were created by Country Garden Expressions.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake. The bride was the guest of honor at a bridal shower at the Friendsville Community Center.

The couple honeymooned in Hawaii and visited the islands of Honolulu and Maui. They now reside in Accident.

Miss Wolfe To Wed Mr. Peaslee

Jessica Wolfe and Justin Peaslee have announced their engagement and forthcoming marriage.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Neal and Andrea Groves, Congress, Ariz., and the late Elmer Wolfe Jr. The prospective groom is the son of Mike and Anita Peaslee, Kingwood, W.Va.

The couple are graduates of Preston High School and West Virginia University.

Jessica earned her doctor of pharmacy degree and is employed as a pharmacist at Ruby Memorial Hospital. Justin earned his master of science degree in civil engineering and is employed as a structural engineer at Gannett Fleming.

The couple will wed on June 5 at Otterbein United Methodist Church in Kingwood.

Sweitzer, Paugh Couple To Marry

Gloria Sweitzer, Elk Garden, W.Va., and Robert Paugh, Westernport, have announced that they will soon be married.

The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Raymond and Phoebe Sweitzer, and Mr. Paugh is the son of Robert and Josephine Paugh Sr. of Westernport. The couple are both originally from Swanton.

Paugh is employed at NewPage Corporation in Luke. Miss Sweitzer is employed as an advocate in Keyser, W.Va.

The wedding is planned for Feb. 14 at 2 p.m. at the Church of God in Elk Garden, followed by a reception at the Elk Garden District fire hall. Donations to the building fund of the Church of God in Elk Garden should be made in lieu of gifts. No invitations will be sent. Family and friends are welcome to attend.

MTN. LAKE PARK WATER SYSTEM
NOTICE OF VIOLATION
Surface Water Treatment Technique

The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities is providing the following notice regarding the Mtn. Lake Park Water System. The springs for the water system have been evaluated for protection against surface water influence as required by the Surface Water Treatment Rule (SWTR), as adopted in the Code of Maryland, COMAR 26.04.01, Quality of Drinking Water in Maryland. The springs were determined to be under the direct influence of surface water by the Maryland Department of the Environment. As a result, this source requires additional treatment, such as filtration, or replacement with a protected water source. Federal and state regulations require that the Mtn. Lake Park Water System install filtration.

What is the Department of Public Utilities doing?

The Mtn. Lake Park Water System disinfects the drinking water that is produced from the spring. The drinking water is tested monthly for coliform bacteria and results have met state and federal standards.

The Department of Public Utilities is in the process of replacing the water supply with a protected water source.

What should I do?

People with severely compromised immune systems, infants, and some elderly may be at increased risk. These individuals should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA's Safe Drinking Water Act Hotline (800-426-4791). If you have specific health concerns, consult your physician.

What does this mean?

This is not an emergency. This notification is provided to advise Mtn. Lake Park Water customers of the treatment requirements for their water system. Any questions or concerns should be directed to Allen Festerman at 301-387-9141. Please share this information with others who may find it useful.

SHE DID IT! Congratulations go to Kaitlynn Fratz of Northern High School as she made history last night by becoming the Huskies' most prolific scorer. She needed only 17 points to break the girls' school record of 1,250 career points held by Kristen Edwards, and break it she did when she finished with 26 points in a home game win over Southern. Fratz is seen above receiving high-fives for her achievements. Because she is only a junior, she is destined to record many more points before her high school career is over. See story in the sports section of this week's paper for more details of this game. Photo by John McEwen.

AMONG BEST IN THE WORLD – Garrett County native Jesse Broadwater continues to be among the world's elite archers, as he captured a gold medal in the 2010 European Tournament of Archery, held in Nimes, France. Held Jan. 22-24, the event featured more than 1,500 shooters from 29 nations and four continents. Broadwater edged out Braden Gellenthien, also of the USA, in the compound men's division by one point, recording a final score of 119. For the qualification round, Broadwater explained that he had to shoot 60 arrows. He qualified with the highest score, a 596 out of 600, or just four shy of a perfect score. Last year, Broadwater won gold and silver medals at the World Indoor Archery Championships in Poland. He also was a part of the United States men's compound team that won gold by setting a new world record with a perfect score. He plans to compete in the Las Vegas World Archery Festival later this month. Broadwater currently lives in Jennerstown, Pa., and shoots professionally for the Hoyt Bow Company. He is the son of Tom and Brenda Broadwater of Garrett County. Pictured above, from left, are Gellenthien, who was awarded the silver medal; Broadwater; and Pierre Julien Deloche, USA, who won the bronze.

Garrett Co. Man Receives 10-Year Prison Sentence

A 25-year-old Oakland area man was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court on Monday to 10 years in the Division of Corrections for conspiracy to commit first degree burglary. David Spencer Glotfelty had pleaded guilty to the charge in December 2009.

Glotfelty was arrested and charged by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in March 2009 after it was determined he and another man, Michael Lynn Park II, had traveled to a residence off Oakland Sang Run Road, where a house was entered and a sum of currency was stolen. Park is currently serving a sentence in the Garrett County Jail after pleading guilty to theft.

Also in Circuit Court on Monday, Victor Frank Gardea Jr., 30, Oakland, was found guilty of violating his probation. Judge Jim Sherbin then reimposed Gardea's previously suspended sentence of 2½ years to the Division of Corrections.

Gardea was convicted in 2006 of distribution of a controlled dangerous substance and sentenced to five years in the DOC, and 3½ years of the sentence was suspended. Gardea served an additional year of the sentence for violating his probation in 2008.

The current violation was based on Gardea's convictions in the District Court for altering a drug test and theft, as well as failing to pay his fine, failing to report his new arrest, and failing to keep appointments with his probation agent.

In other court proceedings, Hugh Eugene Ferguson, 28, Culpeper, Va., pleaded guilty on Tuesday to possession of heroin. Sherbin then sentenced Ferguson to six months in the Garrett County Jail.

Ferguson was a passenger in a vehicle stopped for traffic violations along I-68 in July 2006. The vehicle

Businesses Asked To Complete 2009 Recycling Reports

The Garrett County Solid Waste and Recycling Division is requesting that local businesses complete their 2009 recycling reports by the March 15 deadline. Forms will be mailed this month.

The Maryland Recycling Act (MRA) authorized the Maryland Department of the Environment in 1988 to reduce the disposal of solid waste in Maryland through management, education, and regulation.

The MRA requires that each of Maryland's jurisdictions develop and implement recycling programs and report the amount and types of materials recycled annually. Populations with less than 150,000 are required to recycle 15 percent of their waste.

"Therefore, we are requesting that each business in Garrett County report its recycling efforts within the county or outside of the county and state," said local recycling coordinator Kim Madigan. "The Solid Waste and Recycling Division is proud of the Garrett County residents and businesses who helped us achieve a 47.95 percent recycling rate in 2008. These efforts are applauded."

Examples of not-often-thought-of recycled materials are landscaping debris (grass clippings, leaves, brush and branches, and mixed yard waste); carpet or cloth remnants; newspapers or catalogs sent back to manufacturers; wood waste to mulch/compost (canes/crutches; pallets, crates, barrels, wood furniture, wood shavings, and sawdust); oil filters; all mixed paper; toner cartridges; camera/film canisters; and all plastics.

Common recyclables include aluminum cans, newspapers, cardboard, magazines, and office paper; glass bottles and jars; electronics; and mixed metal.

"All over Garrett County, businesses have noticed the benefits of recycling by enjoying a reduction in their monthly disposal fees," Madigan said. "If you are not recycling at this time, but are interested in receiving information on how you can save money while preserving the precious natural resources in Garrett County, please contact our office immediately at 301-387-0322 or kmadigan@garrettcounty.org."

Those who have questions and require assistance in completing the report are also asked to contact Madigan.

She also noted that all

Local Lawmakers To Review Gov. O'Malley's Budget

One of the many signs that the 2010 session of the Maryland General Assembly is in full swing is the release of Gov. Martin O'Malley's fiscal year 2011 budget last week. The Senate Finance and the House Appropriations committees will now begin reviewing the expenditures and hold hearings on the proposed budget.

The members of Garrett County's legislative delegation both sit on the budgetary committees. Sen. George C. Edwards (R-Dist. 1) serves on the Senate Finance Committee, and Del. Wendell Beitzel (R-Dist. 1A) serves on the House Appropriations Committee.

Current estimates suggest that Maryland faces a $1.5 billion deficit for FY 2011.

"This year's budget is going to be difficult," Beitzel said. "We are looking at another massive structural deficit that the state needs to address to balance the budget."

A major concern for the western Maryland delegation is that the governor is once again proposing to completely eliminate the Maryland-Mined Coal Tax Credit, Beitzel noted. Similar action was taken during the 2009 legislative session. But Beitzel and Edwards were able to persuade their committees to only reduce the tax credit to $4.5 million.

"Maryland gets 60 percent of its electricity from coal fired power plants," Beitzel said. "Last year the governor tried to take away all of the Maryland coal tax credit. We managed to keep one-half of the loaf. This year they want the other half."

The tax credit is taken by companies that purchase Maryland-mined coal. The funds are then rebated back to the individual coal producer, who in turn provides jobs and/or equipment, thus contributing heavily back to local economies, Beitzel noted.

"The amazing part of it all is that at the same time the governor is proposing a cut in a proven job creator for Garrett and Allegany counties, he is also proposing to spend $20 million to create new jobs elsewhere," the delegate said.

He added that the governor's new budget creates a serious problem for the counties and municipalities statewide. Highway User Funds, for example, are cut approximately 95 percent for all of the counties. Baltimore City is cut only 32.5 percent, yet highway user funding for Allegany County is reduced 95.2 percent, and Garrett is cut 95.3 percent.

"Investing in our infrastructure is key," Beitzel said. "The rural counties of Maryland cannot sustain these cuts year after year."

The proposed FY 2011 budget totals $32 billion. This amount is about $300 million less that of FY 2010.

"Yet, the state's funding of its major expenditures continues to grow," Beitzel said. "The state's Medicaid will increase 3.4 percent to $6.1 billion in spending for FY 2011. K through 12 edu-

Two Arrested For Burglary In Accident

Two men were arrested last Thursday in connection with a November burglary that occurred at an Accident area hunting cabin. Garrett County Sheriff's Office received a report on Nov. 21 that several hunting rifles and bows had been stolen.

The Garrett Bureau of Investigation investigated the complaint, which resulted in warrants for Michael George Reed, 19, Accident, and Sidney Timothy Burgess, 30, Oakland. Both are charged with first-degree burglary and felony theft plus $1,000. When taken before the District Court commissioner, Reed was released on personal recognizance, and Burgess was held on $5,000 bond.

Hearing Scheduled For Sen. Edwards' Wind Turbine Bills

A General Assembly committee will review two wind turbine related bills next week that were introduced in this year's session by Sen. George Edwards. The Senate Finance Committee will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, Feb. 9, in Annapolis at 2 p.m. for SB 200 and SB 301.

The purpose of SB 200 is to cover costs involved in decommissioning wind turbines once they cease to operate and to restore their sites to "preoperation condition." The legislation would apply to all wind-powered electric facilities in the state with a generating capacity that does not exceed 70 megawatts.

"If we are going to have wind turbines in the state of Maryland, then there need to be simple standards that make sure that they do not leave a footprint for years to come," Edwards said in a press release last week.

His bill would require that turbine companies pay surcharges or post bonds and would authorize the comptroller/Maryland Public Service Commission to collect that revenue and place it in the "Maryland Wind-Powered Electric Generating Facility Decommissioning and Restoration Fund."

Edwards filed a very similar bill in last year's General Assembly, but the Finance Committee did not give it a favorable review.

SB 301 would apply specifically to Garrett County. That bill would authorize the county commissioners to enact ordinances regulating the setback of commercial wind turbines and set a fee for decommissioning those structures. The proposed legislation does not outline any specific regulations or fees, but would simply give the commissioners the ability to establish them.

Del. Wendell Beitzel has introduced a companion bill to SB 301 on his side of the General Assembly as HB 390. A hearing date for Beitzel's bill has not yet been set.

The local lawmakers introduced the same proposed legislation in last year's session, but these bills also died in committee.

Written support or opposition to Edwards' bill may be addressed to Sen. Thomas Middleton, Finance Committee chair, 3 East Miller Senate Building, 11 Bladen Street, Annapolis, MD 21401-1991.

Should SB 301/HB 390

THIRD ANNUAL WINTER FEST SLATED IN OAKLAND – When life hands out ice, make ice sculptures. That's what will happen in downtown Oakland at the third annual Winter Fest weekend, slated for Feb. 19-21. Expert ice sculptor Bill Sandusky will return with his company, Frozen Assets, to carve more than 30 sculptures throughout downtown Oakland on Friday and Saturday. Sandusky, now a resident of Colorado, has been a member of the National Ice Carvers Association since 1999. This will be his third Oakland Winter Fest. This year's event will feature a progressive dinner on Friday evening, beginning at the Oakland Train Station, with guests being transported to each dinner course via a horse-drawn sleigh. On Saturday the carvings will continue, and there will be an ice throne, a "dragon slide," frozen alley bowling, snowmobile races, a snowman building contest, performances by the Preston Madrigals and Maria Rose and Danny Elswick, a campfire with s'mores, arts and crafts vendors, wine tasting, and the announcement of Oakland's 2010 Snowflake Toddlers, selected by the community (see separate story.) More information can be obtained by contacting Jim Johnson, Winter Fest committee chairman, at 301-616-4008 or Arlene Murray, Oakland Main Street manager, at 301-616-2411. Persons may also get a detailed brochure with times and locations e-mailed upon request made to gobamainstreet@hotmail.com. Photo (from last year's event) by John McEwen.

Five LEGO Teams Compete At State Competition; Four Awards Received

Five Garrett County FIRST LEGO League (FLL) robotics teams competed at the Maryland FLL State Championship at the University of Maryland Baltimore County (UMBC) campus last Saturday. The local teams were among the 66 teams that competed across the state of Maryland. Out of the 66, Garrett County teams were the recipients of the top two championship awards known as the Champion's Award, as well as two additional awards. In the robot competition, all five Garrett County teams finished within the top 10 highest scoring teams.

Accident Elementary School's Accident Moovers, who are coached by Accident Elementary teacher Angie Rush, received the third place Robot Performance Award. Northern Middle School's Fiery SnowBricks, who are coached by Accident Elementary teacher Maxine Miller, received the first place Champion's Award, which is FLL's most prestigious award. Southern Middle School's NeXT Gen, coached by Swan Meadow teacher Arlene Lantz, won the second place Champion's Award. Northern Middle School's Polar Extremes, coached by NMS teacher Lorie Burdock, received the second place Project Innovative Solution Award.

Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of GC schools, cited the teams' success at capturing first and second place Champion's Awards as a result of the wonderful support teams receive from their schools, parents, businesses, and community. He also thanked the team coaches for their leadership.

The Champion's Award is FLL's most prestigious award celebrating the ultimate success of the FIRST mission and FLL values. It measures how the children inspire and motivate others about the excitement and wonders of science and technology while demonstrating gracious professionalism. The Champion's Award is determined by giving equal weight to all four arenas of competition – technical design and programming, robot performance, project presentation, and teamwork – and additional consideration to how the team demonstrated FLL values to all the judges.

"The more often I describe FLL to friends and family and the more our children succeed, the more I understand what an accomplishment it is, in every way," stated parent Liz Moran.

FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) LEGO League is a program that targets students ages 9 to 14 and is designed to inspire young people to pursue science and technology related fields. Garrett County students have been participating in FLL for the past 8 years as a school sponsored extra-curricular activity meeting evenings and weekends. More about FIRST and FLL can be found at www.usfirst.org. More local information can be found at www.sites.google.com/site/garrettqualifier.

LEGO TEAM MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS – The Fiery SnowBricks gave a presentation to the Garrett County Transportation Advisory Committee (TAC) two weeks ago. The robotics team is composed of sixth grade students at Northern Middle School and competes in the FIRST LEGO League. The members' presentation included video of the crosswalks on Rt. 219 in McHenry. The team also had recommendations and public service announcements to improve safety at those crosswalks. The TAC is appointed by the Garrett County commissioners and meets the third Wednesday of each month to discuss traffic issues in the county. "I thought the team did a fabulous job of studying a relevant transportation issue in our county," said TAC member Brad Frantz, director of the Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Management. "Their recommendations were well received by the committee and will be looked at for possible implementation." Chuck Trautwein and Maxine Miller coach the Fiery SnowBricks. Pictured, left to right, are Jay Moyer, TAC president and Garrett County Roads Department general superintendent; Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of schools; team members Alexandra Miller, Clark Morin, Zach Voelkel, and Saylor Wampler; and Ernie Gregg, Garrett County commissioner.

Two Taken To GCMH After SUV Hits Tree

Two people were injured in a single-vehicle accident Tuesday that was reportedly caused by a medical situation.

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to the accident, which occurred on Maryland Highway in the area of King Reis Lane. Investigation revealed that Walter Atwill, 86, Swanton, had been operating a 2003 Chevrolet SUV, when he lost control, sending the vehicle across and off the roadway. The SUV drove onto a snow bank and went airborne into a tree.

Atwill and passenger Helen Atwill were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad. Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene. Atwill was not cited for the accident.

FLL TEAM HAS SUCCESSFUL SEASON – Northern Middle School's First LEGO League (FLL) robotic team, Polar Extreme, received three trophies this competition season: first in research project, second in the robot game at the regional qualifier at Northern High School, and second in project presentation at the Maryland Championship. They were also able to take a real life problem and demonstrate that real solutions can be tried, tested, and implemented successfully in a relatively short time," said a spokesperson for the group. "The students of NMS completed surveys about hall traffic congestion issues in the newly reopened building, and with the support of students, staff, and administration, solutions including staggered bells for different grades, rerouting of certain classes, and the "to the right" themed education, were implemented and evaluated to create a better environment in this school community." From left are mentor Ellen Pitt-Nairn, Matthew Knauf, Trevor Green, Cameron Newman, Ben Nairn, Joseph Burdock, Jacob Williams, and coach Lori Burdock. Beachy Pharmacy financially supports the team, and Chuck Trautwein provides technical support.

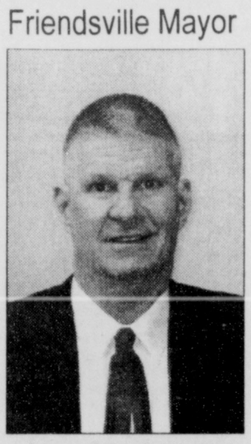
Schlosnagle Seeks Another Term As Friendsville Mayor



Spencer R. Schlosnagle has announced his intention to seek another term as mayor of Friendsville. Schlosnagle, who was first elected at the age of 21, was the youngest mayor ever elected in the state of Maryland.

During his career, Schlosnagle has served on numerous boards and committees. He is a member of the Grace Lutheran Church and past president of the church council. The mayor has also served on the local American Red Cross and the American Heart Association boards, the Democratic Central Committee for Garrett County, and the Friendsville Town Council.

Several years ago he was inducted into the Maryland Municipal Leagues Hall of Fame for his more than 20 years of service as an elected official.

He currently serves as an advisory member of the Garrett County Development Corporation, is a member of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce representing the municipalities of Garrett County, and is a member of the board of directors of Garrett County Municipalities Inc.

Schlosnagle noted that during his tenure as mayor numerous projects have been accomplished for the town. He cited cooperation of the town council, local citizens, and various organizations as well as county and state agencies as a major component in achieving several of his many goals.

The local water and waste water treatment plants, which were once owned and operated by the town, were improved and upgraded with more than $1 million worth of state and federal grant monies, he noted.

"This accomplishment would not have been possible without local letters of support and a local lobbying campaign, which I hand delivered to Annapolis and Washington in support of our community," stated Schlosnagle.

The mayor also noted that over the years, various state and federal grants have facilitated the development and construction of the Friendsville Head Start Center and the Friendsville Community/Senior Center. He added that a number of local senior citizens actually traveled to Annapolis to lobby legislators for support of the grant funding.

The mayor said Friendsville has one of the most beautiful community parks in the tri-state area, which was purchased and developed through Program Open Space funding along with the Governor's Parks and Playgrounds Grant Program.

"Over the years countless hours of volunteer labor have made us proud of what we have today," Schlosnagle said. "Despite our relatively small size, the fact that our town has received these numerous grant monies should be a source of pride and accomplishment for all the citizens of Friendsville. We are building hope and prosperity in our town, and as your mayor I promise to continue what we have begun."

The town is working with the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) on tree beautification projects. Each year the mayor appoints a committee to oversee these projects. This past year the town received the DNR PLANT (People Loving and Nurturing Trees) Green Level Award and was designated a Tree City USA Community.

Schlosnagle noted that community pride is evident every day, and it reaches a high point during the annual "Clean Up, Paint Up Week" that is sponsored by the mayor and town council each spring. Conscientious of both environmental and public health concerns, the town contracts with a scrap metal recycler to collect old appliances and recyclable metal items at no cost to the local residents, the mayor said.

"During the holidays, the town, with the support of the Friendsville Community Watch members, really sparkles," he added. "Community Watch has prepared bows in the last few years in honor and remembrance of individuals in our community; they are displayed on our town Christmas tree in our town parklet and can be enjoyed by our citizens and visitors."

Schlosnagle noted that because of recent budget cuts, the town was limited on funds, but local businesses and citizens came forward to help pay for lighting of the Christmas decorations. Two local businesses purchased the Christmas tree for the center of town, and several churches gave "generous" donations to help with the cost of Christmas treats that are given to the young people each year, according to the mayor.

"I am very proud of the organizations that support our community such as Woodmen of the World, which sponsors the annual 9/11 Honor and Remembrance event at our Community Park," Schlosnagle said.

He also acknowledged the Friendsville Lions Club, which sponsors the annual Fiddle and Banjo Contest every July; the Community Watch, which works throughout the year on various activities for the youth of the community; the volunteer fire department, which recently celebrated 100 years of service to the community; and the "dedicated" members of the rescue squad, who also give tirelessly to the Friendsville area.

In the past couple years, the town has joined forces with the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the Friendsville Lions Club to sponsor the annual Friendsville Days celebration. This is a homecoming celebration for the citizens and visitors of Friendsville and the community, noted the mayor

"I support these organizations who are working for the betterment of our town," Schlosnagle said. "We should all take great pride and commend them for giving back to our community."

The candidate said he recently received notification from Gov. Martin O'Malley that the town has been awarded a grant for $88,500 to build a pedestrian bridge over Bear Creek.

"These funds are a valuable resource for Friendsville and will assist our town with the much-needed bridge," the mayor said. "We could not have done this without the many citizens in our community who wrote letters, as well as the staff at the Head Start center and our seniors who gave their support for the project."

Schlosnagle concluded by stating: "This administration from the very beginning has worked to build, strengthen, and unify our community. Although we are dealing with difficult times due to the recession and budget cuts, we as a community are strong. Neighbors watch out for one another, which makes us proud to live in a small town such as ours. My motto from day one has been 'the friendliest little town in Maryland: Friendsville.' My desire is to follow through with my goals for the betterment of Friendsville."

MARTIN'S LIVERY STABLE was believed to have been located at the corner of Third and Oak streets in Oakland back in the early part of the last century; however, members of the Garrett County Historical Society are not certain if that is correct. Persons who can verify that location, or who have information suggesting that the stable was located elsewhere, are encouraged to contact the society. Some of the stable's façade elements, which can be seen in this 1905 photo, will be incorporated into the design of the new GCHS museum of transportation, for which ground will be broken along Liberty Street this spring. GCSO RECEIVES GRANT – The Garrett County Sheriff's Office recently received one of nine Cal Ripken Sr. Maryland Jurisdiction Grants, Badges for Baseball. Attorney General Douglas F. Gansier and the Cal Ripken Sr. Foundation are launching the 2010 program. Badges for Baseball is a crime prevention program designed to pair law enforcement professionals as mentors and coaches with youth. The program serves as a positive outlet for youth during out-of-school hours when they are most likely to commit or become victims of crime. Participating youth will learn the basics of baseball/softball while taking part in the foundation's character development program, Healthy Choices, Healthy Children. Sheriff Gary Berkebile (above right) announced that the $20,800 grant will be managed by Lt. Rob Corley (above left), who was instrumental in acquiring the funding through the foundation. Lt. Corley, as well as several other deputies, will attend a one-day training at the Cal Ripken Sr. Academy, Aberdeen, this month to learn more about the grant operations.

Well Intentioned, But...

We Americans should generally be pleased with most of our efforts to aid earthquake-ravaged Haiti, particularly the level of monetary and material donations, which is approaching a rather astounding $1 billion. In addition, working with personnel from a number of other countries, many lives have been saved via the rescue of earthquake victims from the debris and subsequent medical treatment both on the scene and in many hospitals here in the U.S. where the most critically injured are being transported.

However, the efforts of some Americans, though probably well intentioned, have crossed the line of not only appropriateness, but also legality. There are currently 10 members of a Baptist church in Idaho who are sitting in jail in Haiti, having been arrested after trying to take 33 Haitian children across the border into the Dominican Republic without the required documents. The attempt outraged Haitian officials, who called them child traffickers.

There is a presumption by some Americans that we know what's best for people of other nations, particularly Third World nations. Those accustomed to relative affluence in their lives jump to conclusions when suddenly surrounded by relatively extreme poverty. The natural tendency is to assume the role of Superman and take charge of the scene, but all the while forgetting about the local culture, what is and what is not appropriate, and the prevailing laws. Regardless of the Baptists' great desire to save these children, such a goal must be accomplished via legal means. For them to assume that they could bypass the necessary paperwork and restrictions is downright brazen.

One can only imagine what our reaction would be if a similar disaster occurred in the United States and a group of well-intentioned Mexican missionaries rolled in, rounded up a bunch of our children, ignored all social services procedures for such matters, and then tried to cross the border back into Mexico with no authorization or necessary paperwork. Pardon the expression, but "Yikes!"

Granted, in the case of the Haitians there are some parents who willingly gave their children to the missions group because they knew that they would have a much better life outside Haiti, or because they were simply no longer able to care for them. "My main concern is that if the kids come back I'm not going to be able to feed them," said one mother. Such desperation is understandable in such a devastated environment, but even in that extreme circumstance, proper procedures must be followed.

It is far better then for those wishing to serve on the ground in Haiti to provide immediate life-saving aid and then help the people rebuild, thereby enabling them to stay in their own country, instead of uprooting children from their families, their culture, their home – from what they know – and taking them to a foreign land.

To the Editor:

My wife Linda and I would like to thank everyone for the support of our son Tobi. It was a wonderful evening last Friday, seeing the Southern Rams and Northern Huskies fight for superiority on the floor. It is always great watching these two teams play, but most of all, it was great seeing Garrett County come together as a community to honor our son.

With everything happening in our world, and especially in Haiti, it was so great seeing our young and old alike having such a wonderful evening. Although Tobi has had great success as a professional athlete, we need to look at our youth and focus on their futures. Seeing those kids line up for autographs made me realize that they want the same thing. As parents, if we can give our youth hope and positive motivation, they too can become pros in so many ways.

When I see the mentors at Northern and Southern, I realize that this is why the county we live in is so amazing. We have teachers, parents, and coaches taking the time to instill worthiness and confidence in our youth. As parents, if we do more for our kids, just imagine how many Tobi Stoners there could be.

We especially thank Paul Mullan, Jim Bosley, Bill Ewing, and the county commissioners for making this such a wonderful event.

Again, thanks to all!

To the Editor:

There has been a lot of hand wringing about the Supreme Court's recent campaign finance opinion in Citizens United vs. Federal Election Commission. While there is little question that campaign money is a corrupting influence, this court opinion is not the problem.

The opinion simply allows corporations and unions to use their general treasury funds to run advertisements that name a specific candidate before an election. These are not direct contributions to candidates, and the source of the money for the advertisement must be disclosed. Before this decision, some corporations could spend unlimited amounts of money to disparage or support candidates, right up to election day; that is, the media: the NY Times, Fox News, ABC, Sincell Publishing, etc. Why would anyone think they're trustworthier than any other corporation, when, in fact, they disguise their opinions as "news"?

Our First Amendment assumes a "marketplace of ideas." It makes no sense to close that marketplace to some voices while giving a monopoly to others. Corporations and unions are just collections of people. Why should these groups be treated differently? The corporate plaintiff in this recent case was a corporation formed for political purposes, not to sell a product. Many for-profit corporations will not risk being associated with a candidate, and with the disclosure requirement, we know who is paying for the advertisement. Unless you adopt the Washington-establishment assumption that all of us outside the Beltway are gullible fools, we are entitled to hear what's being said and can decide ourselves whether or not we're going to buy what's being advertised.

The "horrible" raised is that foreign corporations will participate in this process. Again, the advertiser must be disclosed, so when you see that a Chinese company is supporting a candidate, you can take that fact into consideration when you decide how you want to vote. Last election cycle, the corporate media provided hours of coverage of how the world revered candidate Obama, so we can probably discount complaints that this court decision allows foreign opinion to be heard in our elections.

Clearly, money corrupts our political system. Big donors get big influence. The purpose of this letter is simply to change the dialogue. We should be finding ways to address the flow of money behind the scenes rather than complaining about who gets to have a voice in the public debate.

To the Editor:

Critics of Supreme Court free speech decisions typically are those who are offended by the source or content of the protected speech. Thus it was not surprising that The Republican's January 28 editorial quoted the president's denunciation of the recent Supreme Court decision protecting corporate free speech as "a major victory for big oil, Wall Street banks, [and] health insurance companies," the current trifecta of evil.

This proves the adage that the First Amendment is not needed to protect popular speech; but it's essential for the protection of unpopular speech. The heart of a republican democracy is an informed electorate, and the founders trusted common citizens to make sound judgments if they are given a robust debate.

But won't big corporation messages "flood the political marketplace" and "drown the voices of everyday Americans?" Right now, I'd place my bet on the everyday American. In fact, if I were advising Exxon, Goldman Sachs or AIG, I would suggest that if they oppose a candidate they should run ads in his favor. Don't companies marketing products to consumers of all political stripes have to use discretion in their political ads, if they run them at all?

The cartoon flanking The Republican's editorial featured a senator covered with decals and logos promoting Mobil and the other usual corporate suspects. I didn't notice any decals promoting labor unions, the Sierra Club, or the National Rifle Association, all of whom are corporations who, like Exxon, are now liberated from the ban on corporate speech. (In fact, the plaintiff in this case [Citizens United v. FEC] is a nonprofit corporation.)

Exempt from the previous ban were media companies like The New York Times, The Washington Post, and The Republican. Now these companies may face some competition from outside the media monopoly.

Conservatives have traditionally blasted the ACLU for supporting the rights of flag burners and pornographers. Now it's the liberals' turn to rail against the ACLU for its amicus brief supporting the rights of corporations. Once again, the familiar adage is proven: The more unpopular the speech, the more it needs protection.

Mr. President, please trust us citizens, not the government, to weigh the content and the sources of public debate in making our decisions.

Bob Lewis

To the Editor:

It is ridiculous that this newspaper would deny 1st amendment rights to corporations while turning a blind eye to the media corporations that broadcast and print constant, not-so-thinly veiled ultra-liberal political advocacy. The American people are subjected to daily barrages of distorted "news" by media corporations, which are apparently of little concern to this newspaper, yet you are irritated and accuse the Supreme Court of erring when non-media corporations are given the opportunity to broadcast their views to the American people.

The New York Times is a corporation, owns The Boston Globe, the International Herald Tribune, and 13 dailies and one weekly across the US. The Washington Post is a corporation and owns media outlets in Detroit, Houston, Miami, Orlando, San Antonio, and Jacksonville. In addition, the Washington Post owns Cable One and 35 newspapers in Maryland alone. Gannett is a corporation and owns USA Today and 34 other newspapers across the country. General Electric, a corporation, owns NBC. Disney, a corporation, owns ABC. TimeWarner, a corporation, owns CNN and, of course, News Corp. owns Fox News.

While it is perfectly acceptable for the majority of these media corporations and General Electric to spew their loopy view of issues and candidates in the guise of news across the country, today's whipping boys "big oil, Wall Street banks, [and] health insurance companies..." must be prevented from buying advertising to get their views of the same issues and candidates across to the public. The blatant hypocrisy is mind boggling, especially considering that the chairman and CEO of General Electric, Jeffery Immelt, is a frequent and favored guest of the White House.

Instead of grousing over the affirmation of rights, perhaps a clear, critical look at the sorry state of your own industry is in order.

"It seems that allowing corporate money to flood the political marketplace also threatens to corrupt the democratic process." Political marketplace; are you serious? Now that is a sad but revealing statement. It appears that you already subscribe to the idea that the political process is rife with trading dollars for political favors, which somehow isn't corrupt, but adding those corporate dollars will somehow crumble the very foundation of American democracy.

The county planning commission is holding another forum on revision of three county ordinances this Saturday. The Deep Creek Lake Watershed Ordinance has received all the attention, as well as considerable anger, from parties who believe their private property rights or property values will be negatively impacted under the proposed revisions.

No attention is being given another very important ordinance – the Sensitive Areas Ordinance. No Powerpoint was presented to the crowd at the college last fall. I predict it will ignored again on Saturday.

There are 110 miles of streams and 19 major tributaries which feed Deep Creek Lake. Yet, according to the county map, only Cherry Creek, Meadow Mountain Run, and Red Run tributaries are covered under the Sensitive Areas Ordinance. I do not understand.

A stated purpose of the ordinance is "to carry out goals, objectives, and visions of the Maryland Code, Article 66B." Googling this code, I found the section on sensitive areas clearly says "sensitive areas, including the following: 1) Streams and their buffers. . . ."

Seems like all lake tributaries meet the Maryland Code goal – exactly.

Additional purposes of the county ordinance are: "to minimize soil erosion, avoid sedimentation of waterways, protect aquatic habitats . . . conserve Garrett County's important natural features, which will help promote tourism and thereby strengthen the county's economic. . . ."

Seems like all lake tributaries meet these purposes – exactly.

Dr. L. Rhodes To Speak At Garrett Co. Health Fair

"Whose pill is it to swallow?" will be the question of the hour when Dr. Lance Rhodes talks about medication safety at the Garrett County Health Fair scheduled for Saturday, April 17, at Wisp Resort in McHenry.

"The prevention of medication errors is an area of national focus," Rhodes said. "Both governmental and community groups have taken action to reduce the risk of medication errors."

He added that new safety regulations have been implemented and educational resources made more readily available to the public.

"During the presentation, I will recommend strategies, actions, and resources that may aid in preventing a medication error that involves you," Rhodes said.

He is a graduate of the West Virginia University School of Pharmacy and Shenandoah University School of Pharmacy.

Rhodes has been director of pharmacy services at Garrett County Memorial Hospital since 1996, where he also serves as a patient safety officer responsible for implementing patient safety initiatives.

The Health Fair is open to the public and will offer free health screenings and demonstrations. Additional information on the event is available by calling 301-533-4178.

Deep Creek Lake tributaries from this ordinance. While the state owns the lake, without any doubt, it is the responsibility of the county to protect the streams that feed the lake. The water quality of any lake can only be as healthy as the tributaries which feed it.

I would hope at some point the planning commission steps up and assumes its responsibility for protection of streams and buffers, including those feeding Deep Creek Lake. And, for those lake tributaries and other county streams covered, the commission should strengthen the ordinance by expanding the width of the buffer zones, broadening protective measures, and creating compliance standards and an enforcement mechanism to protect the streams fortunate enough to be covered under this ordinance.

To the Editor:

I enjoyed your editorial on the Supreme Court decision that regards corporations as individual citizens. Nice to see you and Bill Thomas agree, too.

I read about Lee Iacocca's new book on leadership. It's sad to see that he ignores history as he criticizes the administration. He seems to forget that the federal government bailed out Chrysler, saved the company, and kept him on to help.

In response to Iacocca's question, "Where are the leaders?," easy answer – not among the Republicans. Such boldly obstinate obstructionists at work! How they, too, forget history as they cruelly criticize the president! They accuse him of not taking their ideas or working with their bills. The truth is, and they know it, that many of their ideas have been adopted across the board. And, their so-called bills are just other broad ideas, but with no numbers included that would make it possible to see their workable value.

To make it really disgraceful, many of the ideas the administration has put forward in health, recovery, and bank bills were ideas the opposition supported just a short time ago. This is simply true, on record, and can easily be researched. But the Republicans feel safe in their plan to destroy any forward motion by the president. They don't think the ordinary citizen will seek out the truth, and they know the corporate-owned television news people will not.

It's too bad that their election to power is more important than the good of the country and the downtrodden citizens. The Republicans just voted down the bill that would have regulated the bank activities that almost brought our country down. So it's okay to continue on with the "Wall Street Casino" gambling with money as they focus on derivatives.

And, why are folks so aghast at government spending. We've all been encouraged to keep the economy going with debt on our part. Now it seems the government is the "buyer of last resort," and the only place to look for the money to put the country back on its feet. The Republicans grew the debt after the Clinton administration balanced the budget with "pay as you go." Now they are voting against that.

I say grow the debt to make jobs, then pay American workers decent wages, and our taxes will help pay down the debt. God help us!

Sincerely,
Cynthia Knight

To the Editor:

I am constantly perplexed why our local politicians spend so much effort being a "Friend of Coal." It seems to me that it's very much like being a "Friend of Tobacco." Tobacco has been a great industry since the mid 1600s. People made a lot of money working in the tobacco industry. People became addicted to its use, while dependent on its associated jobs. That was great for business.

Then, 350 years later, the day came when we found out it wasn't so good for us after all. People got sick and started to die from clinging to the habits of old. Our health care system was caught in the aftermath of public subsidized medical expenses. The Marlboro Man quickly rode his horse out of Dodge City to Europe, where he has been very successful at selling his poison to anyone who has two fingers and a pair of lips. And low and behold, the tobacco-backed city left behind turned into a dust bowl, leaving vacant houses and few jobs.

I see a parallel between the coal industry and the tobacco industry. They have a strong lobby group that works real hard at keeping our good neighbors addicted to their not so high-paying jobs. Their byproducts are bad for our health, the health of their workers, and the environment. They expect subsidies and buy-outs like the Coal Tax Credit to artificially support their failing business model.

And when the coal runs out – and it will – Mr. Peabody's coal train will pull up its tracks as it heads back to Pennsylvania or wherever it came from, leaving western Maryland with nothing but bad water and a far lagging economy behind.

Here is my challenge to Senator Edwards and Delegate Beitzel: Think and plan beyond your elected term in office. You are paid to be smart, and not to do what everyone before you has already done, just because it's the legacy of the past. What will you do to pave the way for a sustainable future for western Maryland? One thing is for sure, attracting young workers to a dying coal industry is no different than inviting the Marlboro Man to show up for career day at the local high school! It is time to stop playing the same old record.

To the Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to make the public aware of the poor customer service my mother has received from an area memorial company based nearby, but outside Garrett County, to inform individuals of what they can do to ensure they choose a reputable memorial company, and to provide direction to anyone who may be in my mother's situation.

On March 28, 2009, my mother ordered a monument from the company's salesman who came to her house. From June until August, she called the company several times to inquire on the status of her order. Although his reason for the delay varied, for the most part, he blamed it on the company he'd hired to make the monument. He didn't agree to advocate for mom or give her a timeframe in which her order would be filled. I've since contacted three memorial companies and have learned that the standard wait time is 60-90 days.

In November, mom requested in writing that her money be refunded. To date, she hasn't received the monument or a response to her request.

If you're in need of a monument, take the following steps. You'll probably receive solicitations via phone and mail following the death of your loved one, but do your homework prior to making a decision. Get references, and check with neighbors, friends, and family. Go to the Better Business Bureau's web site at www.bbb.org to view the company's rating and brief details of how it was obtained. When you've made your decision and placed an order, don't pay for it in full. This will give you some recourse if you have any problems. Also, if possible, get a commitment in writing as to when your order will be filled.

If you're in a situation as my mother, there are two steps you can take that won't cost you anything. First, go to the Better Business Bureau's web site or telephone them at 412-456-2700 and file a complaint. Secondly, contact the Ebensburg, Pa., Office of Attorney General at 814-471-1831. They will send you a dispute form to complete or you may ask how to complete one online. Afterward, they will contact the business and work to resolve the problem.

At this time, the monument business owner has agreed in writing to have mom's order filled by April 15, 2010.

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County commissioners requested that it appear in this column.

Gentlemen:

As a result of expert testimony showing that a federally endangered species, the Indiana bat, was in the vicinity of existing and proposed industrial wind projects in nearby West Virginia, U.S. District Court Judge Roger Titus halted their operation. At a Maryland Public Service Commission evidentiary wind hearing a few years ago, expert testimony from the nation's leading bat researcher, Thomas Kunz, revealed the presence of the Indiana bat near a proposed wind project atop Roth Rock. A number of other wildlife experts, including those from Maryland's Department of Natural Resources, have also given public testimony about the presence of rare, threatened, and endangered state species along southern Garrett County's Backbone Mountain ridgeline.

The staff of the county office of planning and zoning is specifically prohibited by the Sensitive Areas Ordinance from issuing a building permit that could adversely affect an official habitat for Federally Rare, Threatened, and Endangered Species. Further, landowners and developers are directed in Section 6 of the ordinance to "work cooperatively with the state and federal environmental agencies to minimize harm to habitats of rare, threatened, and endangered species."

In light of the U.S. District Court's decision and acknowledged existence of an endangered species in the area, as well as in the spirit of the Sensitive Areas Ordinance, it is respectfully requested that any and all permits pending or granted for Garrett County wind development either be rescinded or not be granted until the appropriate federal agency provides an incidental takings permit.

Please consider meeting with appropriate officials within the state's Department of Natural Resources. A proactive joint county/state inquiry directed to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service asking for a formal review of the site in question would be a progressive act of statesmanship. Taking such an enlightened course of action may also prevent future claims related to willful negligence.

Very truly yours,
Kimberly A. Connaughton

In memory of

Fannie Mae Woods

August 17, 1920 – January 31, 2005

I can't believe it's been 5 years since we heard the news we all still remember; where, we were when our life turned sour. Our heart still today has a hole in it that can't be filled with anything. Our tears still come and you are still at work wiping them away. Grandma, you would be so proud of all your grandchildren; they are doing so well.

And I believe in some ways you know. A toss to you, Grandma, where life had left many memories, and I say that we would never let you be forgotten. We love you and truly miss you. I pray that the angels in Heaven are watching over you. To our memories of our friend, mom, and to the best Grandma that ever lived, we miss you.

Love you,
Clif, Eleanor, Lori

Adorable Adoptables

THIS VERY TALKATIVE BEAGLE was recently dropped off at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. He and numerous other canines are available for adoption, including the female longhaired mix breed pictured at right. There are also several cats in need of homes, including a dark gray and black one (not pictured). "Last week there were very few adoptions and reclaims, so the dog kennels were very full," said a Garrett County Humane Society spokesperson. "HART was able to take out a dozen dogs to rescues; so they will be adopted. But there are only 12 dog kennels at the local shelter so they fill up quickly, and dogs cannot be kept there for months." The spokesperson added that the GCHS has gotten more hay for residents to use for their dog boxes, and it is available at the animal shelter. "Please take only what you need and re-cover it after you have taken some," she said. "Also, please bring in your old blankets and rugs for reuse at the shelter."

Women's Formal Wear Sought For Local Fundraiser

The Garrett County Humane Society is seeking donations of "gently used" women's formal wear for a fundraiser to be held in March. Dresses should be clean and of current styles.

Wedding, mother-of-the-bride, prom, and other type dresses can be dropped off at the Oakland Curves from Monday through Friday between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m., or during operating hours on Saturdays.

"The town of Oakland has graciously donated the use of the historical train station for our sale," said Lisa Baker, Humane Society president. "There is plenty of room in there and plenty of parking outside."

The scheduled dates for the dress sale are March 11, 12, 13, and 14, and March 19 and 20.

"We already have wedding dresses, never been worn, priced at $99 each, and at least 30 other dresses," Baker said. "But we need more current, younger style dresses for those girls who will be shopping for a nice one for upcoming proms and the father/daughter gala, both in May."

Non-wedding dresses will be priced starting at $25, and some may be more, depending on whether they are new or used.

The GCHS is a non-profit 501(c)(3) volunteer group that helps homeless and neglected animals. Members depend on private donations and fundraisers to pay for veterinarian expenses and for the hundreds of spay/neuter vouchers they hand out to county pet owners.

The GCHS is also the only organization that responds to animal neglect reports, which number over 150 per year. For more information, persons may call 301-616-4425.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Preston County

Farm Service Agency Reports

Eric M. McCartney, County Executive Director
Preston County FSA Office
157 Plaza CT., Suite 13, Kingwood, WV 26537-1793

2010 CROP YEAR WOOL, MOHAIR, UNSHORN PELTS REQUESTS BEGAN JANUARY 1

The Preston County Farm Service Agency reminds producers that Loan Deficiency Payments (LDPs) are payments made to producers who, although eligible to obtain a Marketing Assistance Loan (MAL), agree to forgo the loan in return for a payment of an eligible commodity. Each crop year, there are producers who fail to submit an LDP application before beneficial interest is lost in the commodity.

To be eligible for MAL or LDP, eligible producers must have beneficial interest in the applicable commodity. A producer is considered to have beneficial interest in a commodity if both the following remain with the producer: title of the commodity, and control of the commodity.

Producers must complete page 1 of the CCC-633 EZ form to indicate their intentions to receive an LDP before the loss of beneficial interest, and to file an LDP request for payment at any time during the MAL/LDP availability period (before or after losing beneficial interest). By completing and agreeing to the terms and conditions before producers lose beneficial interest, they may be eligible to receive an LDP based on the earlier of (1) the date beneficial interest is lost in the commodity, according to acceptable production evidence, or (2) the date of request for payment.

The CCC-633 EZ will allow producers to request an LDP for each eligible commodity produced on the farm for the applicable crop year. The CCC-633 EZ need only be filed in one county office for all counties in which producers have an interest in an eligible commodity.

By submitting page 2 of the CCC-633 EZ to the FSA office, on or before the final availability date for each commodity, the producer is completing the request for an LDP on those commodities. Once page 2 of the CCC-633 EZ is submitted to FSA by the producer, those commodities are no longer eligible for a Marketing Assistance Loan.

The following are the loan rates for 2010 through 2012 crop years: graded wool, $1.15 per pound; ungraded wool, $0.40 per pound; and mohair, $4.20 per pound.

Producers wishing to file Form CCC-633 EZ or receive further information on the new Loan Deficiency Payment procedures may visit the Farm Service Agency, located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza; telephone 304-329-1923; fax 304-329-3056, or e-mail Eric.Mccartney@wv.usda.gov.

THREE APPOINTED TO STATE COMMITTEE

The Obama administration announced this week the names of individuals who will serve on the West Virginia Farm Service Agency State Committee. The committee members will oversee the activities of the agency, including carrying out the state agricultural conservation programs, resolving appeals from the agriculture community, and helping to keep producers informed about FSA programs.

"These individuals will work with USDA to help farmers and ranchers build and maintain successful operations that produce the safe, nutritious food supply that America needs while spurring economic development in our nation's rural communities," said Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack. "They bring the experience and passion necessary to help continue the Obama administration's efforts to rebuild and revitalize rural America."

The individuals appointed to serve on this committee are Marjorie H. Burke (chairperson), G. Warren Mickey, and Harry K. Perkins.

Burke, Sand Fork, served on the board of governors for Glenville State College from 2000 to 2010. In 1978, she was elected to the West Virginia House of Delegates. She remained in the House of Delegates until 1990, serving as vice-chair of the Agricultural and Veterans Affairs committees and speaker pro-tempore. In addition to her public policy experience, Burke has owned and operated Titan Farm, a 1,000-acre farm, since 1970. She has a B.S. degree in education from Glenville State College.

Mickey, a resident of Charles Town, has been a teacher for more than 10 years and Jefferson County director of federal programs for eight years. He served on the Jefferson County Board of Education for 18 years. He also served on the West Virginia Democratic Executive Committee. He holds a master's degree in history and secondary school administration from West Virginia University.

Perkins, of Frankford, has been farming for over 50 years. Perk Farm is a certified organic dairy and turkey operation. He served on the West Virginia State Vocational Education Committee for eight years, served nine years on the Farm Service Agency County Committee, and served six years on the Greenbrier Valley Conservation District Board. Have You HEARD?

Cathy Arnold, HIS

ONE SENSE FUELS ANOTHER

The art of ventriloquism makes good use of the sense of sight's ability to exert its effect on hearing. This is but one example of the intermingling of the senses. Thus, when hearing-impaired individuals utilize a hearing instrument, they are, in effect, doing more than increasing their hearing ability. They are helping themselves to see, as well. Understanding this concept begins with the knowledge that we see the world with our brains. The retina converts light images into signals that the brain processes. When the brain receives sound signals simultaneously, it factors the information into the mix. Thus, hearing plays an important role in our ability to see, which underscores the benefit that comes from optimizing our hearing ability.

The first step toward better hearing is recognizing that a hearing problem exists. Having a hearing test is the second step. If the signs are there–frequently misunderstanding what is being said, asking people to repeat themselves, or turning up the volume on the TV or radio–please call us at AUDIBEL. We have the answers to many of the questions you'll probably have regarding your hearing impairment.

P.S. It is also true that in the absence of seeing ability, a blind person's sense of hearing become more acute.

GARRETT COLLEGE NEWS BEAT

Garrett College, Hopkins Business School Sign Articulation Agreement

by Melissa Parker

Garrett College and the Johns Hopkins Carey Business School signed an articulation agreement last Friday which guarantees that qualified GC students may transfer to Johns Hopkins without loss of credit, provided that students follow the educational path set forth by the agreement. Upon graduation at Garrett, the agreement will allow GC grads to enter Johns Hopkins with junior status and begin work on a four-year degree.

"This is a wonderful addition to the options available to Garrett College students," said Dr. Jeanne Neff, college president. "We already have a long standing relationship with Bucknell University; a relationship with Johns Hopkins will be great for our students. We think Johns Hopkins will be very pleased with our outstanding students."

The articulation agreement is carried out through the Johns Hopkins Carey Alliance Program for Excellence (CAPE), which is designed to increase access and encourage greater academic success for students transferring from Garrett to Johns Hopkins.

CAPE offers eligible GC students the opportunity to benefit from joint programmatic efforts, shared resources, and other privileges while still enrolled at Garrett. In fact, GC students enrolled in the CAPE program can take up to two classes through Johns Hopkins while still at Garrett, as long as they have completed 45 credit hours. Students enrolled in the program also have access to the Johns Hopkins library resources and advising assistance, among other things.

"We are very excited about this opportunity," said Dr. Anne McCarthy, associate dean for professional programs at Johns Hopkins Carey Business School. "Often times, students who first attend community colleges perform better when they reach the four-year level than do those who began at the four-year level. We believe this is a result of the training and quality education they receive at the community college. We see getting these community college students as a great benefit that will strengthen our program."

Hopkins will indeed attract some of Garrett's top academic performers. One prospect who said he is "thrilled" about the articulation agreement and the idea of going to Johns Hopkins is Marko Agbaba, a sophomore at Garrett, slated to graduate in May.

"The articulation agreement is an excellent transfer opportunity for me," said Agbaba, an international student from Serbia. "I came to Garrett to study business nearly two years ago. It seems ideal that Garrett would sign this agreement in my last semester here. Everything's working out nicely for me."

Agbaba also sees the benefit of the agreement outside of the personal impact it might have on him.

"This agreement is going to be mutually beneficial," he said. "Because of the agreement, Garrett will attract more academically gifted students, and Johns Hopkins, as a result, will receive the highly qualified students who graduate from Garrett College."

While this offers an excellent opportunity, GC students must be dedicated to academic success to be accepted to and do well in the CAPE program. To apply for the CAPE program, Garrett students must earn an associate's degree at Garrett, with a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.5. While the requirements for admission may be high, but students who successfully complete the CAPE program are guaranteed admission into the Hopkins business school.

"Garrett College students are fantastic students," said Denise Dean, graduate advisor at Hopkins. "They'll bring a unique background to Johns Hopkins, and that will enhance our program. This agreement with Garrett will be a very symbiotic relationship."

Among the many benefits of the CAPE program is the possibility for students to be awarded scholarships. Those who successfully complete the CAPE program may be eligible for the Dean's Undergraduate Scholarship and the CAPE Scholarship, among others. This is a critical factor for Agbaba.

"The possibility of receiving scholarship money is very important to me," said Agbaba. "Currently, my family's financial situation is not that great. A scholarship would help me in achieving my dream of earning a bachelor's degree at such a prestigious educational institution as Johns Hopkins University."

The Johns Hopkins Carey Business School was established in 2007 with a gift of $50 million from trustee emeritus Wm. Polk Carey. The school is dedicated to transforming business education through a humanistic and multidisciplinary approach to instruction and research.

The business school, which is largely dedicated to graduate-level programs, is beginning to put more emphasis on its undergraduate programs. The school recently added five new undergraduate areas of concentration: management, marketing, accounting, information systems, and finance.

"We're trying to create a different type of business school," said Dean. "Garrett has a different type of student, who will benefit this different type of program."

For additional information on Garrett College's articulation agreement with Johns Hopkins, persons are invited to telephone 301-387-3043.

Financial Aid Night Scheduled For Next Thursday

Garrett College will hold GC Financial Aid Night on the McHenry campus next Thursday, Feb. 11, from 6 to 8 p.m. Students and parents are encouraged to attend the session to learn about financial aid and scholarships.

"This is a great opportunity for students and parents to learn about financial aid and scholarships," said Cissy Vansickle, director of financial aid. "The program is free, so if you're a student who's concerned about the financial aid process, the financial aid night is a great chance for you to get your questions answered."

During the program, the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) will be discussed at length. Students will have the opportunity to complete the FAFSA form following the presentation and submit it electronically. Those who wish to do so are encouraged to bring tax returns or W2 forms for 2009.

GC Financial Aid staff will be available to answer questions about state aid and various scholarships, including the Garrett County Scholarship and the Garrett College Foundation scholarships.

The program will be held in Room 205/207 in the college's Continuing Education building. For more information, persons may telephone the Garrett College Office of Admissions at 301-387-3044 or toll-free 866-554-2773, extension 3044.

The delegate also noted that the governor's budget is "infused" with federal funds.

"A $460 million increase in federally funded spending offsets an increase in spending from state funds," Beitzel said.

Education funding also received $422 million from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act.

The House Environmental Matters Committee will hold a hearing for Beitzel's HB 320 on Wednesday, Feb. 10, at 1 p.m. Titled the "Maryland Dormant Mineral Interests Act," this bill defines terms, outlines mineral rights and termination procedures, and clarifies the way title searches are made regarding dormant minerals found under property in the state.

Beitzel and Edwards introduced similar bills last year. The House favored the legislation, but it failed to receive approval from the Senate.

Persons wanting to testify on HB 320 may address their comments to Del. Maggie McIntosh, Environmental Matters Committee chair, Room 250, House Office Building, Annapolis, MD 21401-1991.

Art Gallery Of Garrett College To Host Art Fundraiser For Haiti Relief

The Art Gallery of Garrett College has announced a sale of art to benefit the people of Haiti. Local artists are being asked to donate original works of art for sale at reasonable prices to raise funds for Haiti relief.

The show and sale will be Valentine's Day, Sunday, Feb. 14, from 1 to 4 p.m., and is scheduled to coincide with a massive world wide initiative in the art community referred to as "Help–Portrait Haiti." Thousands of art sales will be occurring all over the world on Valentine's Day as an expression of "love" for the people of Haiti. All proceeds (100%) will go to Haiti through the internationally recognized "Hope For Haiti Now" organization.

"The crisis in Haiti is an emergency that requires our attention immediately, as well as our assistance for many years to come," said a spokesperson. "Musicians have held concerts, celebrities responded, and many relief agencies and church organizations have hastened to the call. Now, artists are joining the effort with a belief that there is power in numbers, and we can make a difference."

The Garrett County effort was initiated by Lorie Skidmore of McHenry, along with other artists and individuals. According to Skidmore, it was decided that hosting an art sale would be a way of contributing to a charitable organization for Haiti relief.

The show and sale at the gallery will include a vast array of paintings, photographs, pottery, prints, and drawings ranging in prices to suit everyone's budget. This is an opportunity for those who want to help the people of Haiti, and still have a unique piece of art to show for it. More details about this event will follow next week.

Christian Recording Artist Will Appear At Mountaintop

Dove-nominated recording artist Michael Neale will return for his third consecutive visit to Mountaintop 2010, the annual getaway weekend conference to be held March 5-7 at Wilson Lodge, Oglebay, in Wheeling, W.Va. Neale will appear in concert Saturday evening of the event at "A Festival in Celebration of God's Mercy." Along with his band, Neale will also lead musical worship on Friday and Saturday.

Neale has recorded several projects as a writer, artist, and producer with Integrity Music. His recordings include No Greater Audience, which features 12 worship songs. Bigger than Life, recorded with the 150-member Christ Fellowship Choir in Palm Beach, Fla., was nominated for a Dove award. His most recent creative effort is Shine Out: Live from the People's Church, a collaboration with the worship community of artists and songwriters within his church.

Neale serves as worship arts pastor for the People's Church in Franklin, Tenn. He leads worship, directs the creative arts team, and serves on the executive strategic development team of the People's Church He is also a featured communicator and worship leader for various conferences around the country.

"Michael Neale is an amazingly gifted artist," said Mountaintop co-founder and Garrett County native Anne Robinson. "His passion for the Lord is clearly evident in his music, in both his writing and performing. Whether seeing him in person or listening to his CDs, one is always drawn into worship, and his appeal reaches all generations."

Leading worship on Sunday morning will be Richard Allen Farmer, a longtime Mountaintop participant. Rev. Farmer has been the featured speaker, worship leader, and concert artist throughout the years, and returns to the stage to inspire attendees as vocalist and pianist.

Also featured will be Jerry Bridges, Christian speaker and best-selling author. His five-session topic is titled "The Beatitudes: Humility in Action."

"It's been said that when we 'stand on the mountaintop,' we see things from a different perspective," Robinson said. "That's what Mountaintop is all about, intentionally getting away from the world to see things from a different perspective through inspiring teaching, fabulous music, and wonderful fellowship with folks from many different denominations in beautiful surroundings."

The event is sponsored by Living for Christ Conferences and co-sponsored by WTRF-TV. For more information or to register, LFCC may be telephoned at 304-455-5322 or contacted online at mountaintopconference.org.

Performances will be held Thursday and Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Lyell B. Clay Concert Theatre. Described in the New York Post after its 1972 premiere as "our most successful American opera to date," the two-act treatment is considered one of Hoiby's most famous works, according to Lee Blair, production director and WVU assistant professor of acting. "The story centers on a high-strung minister's daughter, Alma Winemiller, and the romance that nearly blossoms between her and the wild and undisciplined Dr. John Buchanan," Blair said. "We find another tragic heroine in Alma that reflects Tennessee Williams' own struggles with sexuality, passion, freedom, and the confines society places upon us all." WVU music students Joshua Stubbs and Sarah Nalen, pictured, sing the leading roles. For tickets or more information, persons may call the box office at 304-293-SHOW.

FIRST-TIME HOMEBUYER TAX CREDIT EXTENDED, EXPANDED

Homeownership is a key step to the American dream, and with the current economic situation many think it is a challenging and difficult time to enter into the real estate market. But the extended and expanded first-time homebuyer tax credit continues to make homeownership attainable for those that qualify. The Worker, Homeownership, and Business Assistance Act of 2009 went into effect on November 6, 2009.

This new legislation extended the deadline for the existing first-time homebuyer tax credit and expanded to provide existing homeowners a "long-time resident" tax credit. The existing tax credit opportunities were set to expire on November 30, 2009, but are now extended to April 30, 2010, and if a buyer has entered into a binding contract by April 30, the buyer has until June 30, to settle on the purchase. To help those consumers who are considering a home purchase, the Garrett County Board of Realtors has summarized the details of the new legislation.

•Eligibility: The tax credit is now available for first-time home buyers and select homeowners. A first-time home buyer is defined as an individual who has not owned a principal residence during the three-year period prior to the purchase. For married taxpayers, the law tests the homeownership history of both the home buyer and his/her spouse. For example, if you have not owned a home in the past three years, but your spouse has owned a principal residence, neither you nor your spouse qualifies for the first-time home buyer tax credit. However, consumers should note that ownership of a vacation home or rental property not used as a principal residence does not disqualify a buyer as a first-time home buyer.

A qualified homeowner is defined as someone who has owned and resided in a home for at least five consecutive years within the last eight.

•The maximum credit amount for first-time home buyers is $8,000; the maximum credit amount for current homeowners is $6,500. The federal tax credit amounts to 10 percent of the cost of the home, up to a maximum credit of $8,000 for first-time homebuyers and $6,500 for current homeowners. Under the new legislation, a tax credit may only be awarded on homes purchased for $800,000 or less.

For example, if a home costs $60,000, the allowable credit for both a first-time homebuyer and a current homeowner would be $6,000. If a home costs between $80,000 and $800,000, then the allowable credit for a first-time homebuyer would be $8,000 and for a current homeowner, $6,500.

•Single taxpayers with incomes up to $125,000 and married couples with a joint income up to $225,000 qualify for the full tax credit. Individuals whose Form 1040 filing status is "single" are eligible for the tax credit if their income is no more than $125,000. Individuals who file a joint return are eligible if they have no more than $225,000 in income.

Single taxpayers who earn between $125,000 and $145,000, and married couples who earn between $225,000 and $245,000 are eligible to receive a partial credit. Individuals with incomes greater than $145,000 (single) and $245,000 (joint return) are not eligible for this tax credit at all.

•The credit is available for homes purchased on or after November 7, 2009, and before May 1, 2010. The federal income credit can be claimed on one's individual or joint tax return for the purchase of any single-family home (newly-constructed or resale, single-family detached, townhomes or condominiums) between the dates of November 7 and April 30. Home purchases subject to a binding sales contract signed before May 1 will also qualify for the tax credit provided closing occurs prior to July 1.

•The tax credit is refundable. A refundable credit means that if the amount of income taxes a home buyer owes is less than the credit amount he/she qualifies for, the government will send a check for the difference. In essence, the credit is a dollar-for-dollar reduction in what taxpayers owe for the calendar year following the year they close on their home.

For example, a first-time home buyer who qualifies for the full $8,000 tax credit and owes $5,000 in federal income taxes would owe nothing to the IRS and receive a $3,000 payment from the government. A current homeowner who qualifies for the full $6,500 tax credit and owes $5,000 would pay nothing to the IRS and receive $1,500 back from the government. If the move-up buyer is due to get a $1,000 refund, he/she would get $7,500 ($1,000 plus the $6,500 move-up buyer tax credit).

The tax credit is a true credit. It does not have to be repaid unless the homeowner sells or stops using the home as a principal residence within three years after the purchase. In that case, the full credit amount will be recouped on the sale.

This column is based on information available as of November 2009 from the IRS and the National Association of Realtors. It is not meant to be tax or legal advice. As with any tax change, consumers should consult with a tax advisor regarding eligibility and availability.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

VACCINES AND AUTISM

by Dr. Stephen I. Parks
Guest Scientist

Q: A friend tells me that vaccines cause autism. Can this be true?

A. First, let me explain a vaccine and how it works.

Think of your immune system needing target practice, so the doctor cripples a germ and sends it in there to be shot at. The human immune system quickly learns to fight off the look-alike cripple, while developing a resistance to the real thing. The first "crippled germ" vaccine was cowpox, a form of smallpox that grows best in cattle instead of people. Doctors noticed that milkmaids would sometimes get cowpox and recover easily, leaving them also immune to smallpox. The compliment "Pretty as a milkmaid" meant a girl's face lacked the all-too-common smallpox scars. In 1796, Edward Jenner deliberately infected some children with cowpox pus. The children got mild cases of cowpox and became immune to smallpox.

"Live" vaccines are still used in some vaccines, but most are now molecular in nature: It's kind of like setting up a picture of the germ to shoot at. A typical vaccine is made by growing the virus in a living tissue, usually a chicken egg. After the virus multiplies, a marker molecule – a single chemical made by the virus – is extracted, and becomes your vaccine. When the marker is injected into your body, your immune system prepares an army of cells to fight off anything with that marker – including the real virus.

Vaccines are not entirely safe. Rarely people are allergic to a trace ingredient. For example, people who are violently allergic to eggs might be sickened by the trace of egg white in a vaccine made from eggs. These problems are extremely rare, but can be fatal. If you're allergic to an ingredient, skip the vaccination. In addition to rare individual reactions, there are also cases of mislabeling and of contamination by mishandling at the clinic, more often in developing countries than the USA. But the protection a vaccine gives still far outweighs the risk. The greatest loss of human life in history – 50 to 100 million people dying from Spanish flu in 1918 – could be prevented today with vaccines.

Some people have claimed that ingredients in vaccine cause autism. There is no scientific evidence linking vaccines to autism, but it's worth a look to see why people believe it.

Suppose you wake up at 3 a.m. with a bellyache. The first thing you naturally do is think back ... "Is it something I ate? Maybe that leftover potato salad? Maybe the fish? It did taste kind of funny." In fact, it's stomach flu. You caught it last week from the waitress who coughed on your toast, but you'll never know that. Point is, it's natural to look for causes when something bad happens. Connecting cause and effect is necessary for survival, but we sometimes make mistakes. We look for something memorable, something exceptional, to blame. We are usually right, but we can be wrong too.

Suppose you get your daughter vaccinated. Next day she is sick, and after she gets over the sickness she acts funny. Eventually autism is diagnosed. As an individual, you are right to suspect that vaccine caused the autism. It's only when data are compiled from thousands of vaccinations that the conclusion is clear: No connection. Study after study has failed to find any link of vaccines to autism. The cause must be somewhere else, and the timing of your child's illness is a coincidence.

But that hasn't stopped juries from awarding huge amounts to families with autistic kids. The mistaken fear over vaccine risks has real consequences. A lot of kids have gotten sick and died, or are permanently disabled, because their parents refused vaccination. There are real effects on the innocent public as well. For example, in just the case of swine flu the hysteria has resulted in a great many deaths. Here's how:

One of the most popular theories about vaccine side effects is that using "adjuvants" causes autism. An adjuvant is an ingredient that does not directly create immunity, but it does put the immune system on "high alert," and can triple the response to a given amount of marker molecules. With an adjuvant you can immunize three times more people with the same amount of marker. That's important if production is limited and the virus is spreading rapidly.

Opposition to adjuvants has a direct effect on the vaccine supply. American vaccine makers were not allowed to use adjuvants, so they had to use three times the markers to make a single dose of H1N1 vaccine. They couldn't produce enough vaccine fast enough. As a result, a lot of people who wanted the vaccine couldn't get it. Some of those got swine flu, and some died. The Centers for Disease Control report over 1,700 U.S. flu deaths since August. How many of the dead wanted the vaccine, but couldn't get it? I blame those deaths on people who spread vaccine hysteria, and on their lawyers and faux experts who testify in court.

Granted, there is no such thing as a completely safe vaccine. Or a safe car. Or a safe loaf of bread. We look at risk and benefit, and place our bets. For most of us, vaccination is a very good bet for our families' health.

Nat'l Wear Red Day Slated For Friday, Feb. 5

National Wear Red Day has been slated for Friday, Feb. 5, and is when Americans nationwide will wear red to show their support for women's heart disease awareness. Heart disease is the #1 killer of women, according to a Garrett County Health Department spokesperson. Risk factors for heart disease include:

•high blood pressure (140/90 or higher)
•high blood cholesterol (240mg/dl or higher)
•diabetes
•smoking
•being overweight
•being physically inactive
•having a family history of early heart disease
•age (55 or older for women)

While heart disease risk begins to rise in middle age, heart disease develops over time and can start at a young age, even in the teen years. "It is never too early, or too late, to take action to prevent and control the risk factors for heart disease," noted the spokesperson. "Having more than one risk factor is especially serious, because risk factors tend to rally together and worsen each other's effects."

Risk factors like age and family history cannot be changed, but it is recommended that smokers replace smoking with walking, those with diabetes gain better control of it, and that all people read food labels for sodium and fat content.

NHS's Kaitlynn Fratz Makes History As A Junior; Now Has 1,259 Career Pts.

Making history and claiming the all-time school record for most points scored was junior Kaitlynn Fratz in last night's game against cross-county rival Southern. Fratz needed 17 points to break Kristin Edwards' mark of 1,250. She finished with 26 points to total 1,259, and she still has four regular season games plus playoffs remaining in the season. But before this accomplishment, Fratz and teammate Terra McKenzie led the Huskies in other successes this week.

Northern claimed two make-up game victories in a row, the first a 61-47 win over Keyser last Thursday. In the second on Friday night, the No. 1 Huskies, led by McKenzie's 23 points, defeated host Frankfort, 63-43, and then on Monday, Fratz made eight field goals in the Huskies 62-43 defeat of Bishop Walsh in Accident. Northern ended the week by crushing Southern, 79-44, last night at home.

Fratz had a big night at Keyser last Thursday, scoring 21 points for the Huskies and aiding with seven assists. McKenzie recorded 14 points and eight rebounds, and Morgan Brosnihan had eight rebounds and six points in the win.

Julia Ludwick scored a game-high 22 points for the Tornadoes.

The Huskies had to hold on tight in the first quarter to keep a 15-13 lead over the Falcons last Friday. Northern sank 22 points in the second quarter and allowed just nine from Frankfort for a 37-22 halftime score. The Huskies boosted their lead to 54-33 by the fourth period.

Northern's Fratz followed McKenzie's 23 points with 22 of her own, and hit three 3-pointers in the win.

To go with her many points, Fratz sank four 3-pointers and was 4 of 6 from the foul line. Teammate Graham added 22 points, and McKenzie finished with 14 points and 10 rebounds for a double-double.

Southern was led by Emillee Bosley, Heidi Welch, and Alycia Horner, each scoring 10 points.

The junior varsity game went to Southern, 37-29, with Hannah Horne scoring 16 points for the Rams. Kirsten Rayner had nine for the Husky jayvees.

Northern, now 15-2 overall and 10-1 in the Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference, is scheduled to host Hampshire on Monday, with the junior varsity game beginning at 6 p.m., and tip-off for the varsity at 7:30 p.m.

The Huskies posted a convincing 79-44 win over the Rams, and Fratz ended the evening by becoming the most prolific scorer. She is seen driving toward the basket, while teammate Terra McKenzie (#21) races to catch up. Guarding the basket is Southern's Alli Shaffer (#12) and teammates, from left, Alycia Horner (#3), Emillee Bosley (#11), Heidi Welch (#30), and Abby Wildesen (#33). HUSKIES HONORED FOR BASEBALL – The Northern High School baseball team was recently honored by receiving a third consecutive Area Championship trophy. The Huskies recorded a record of 15-2 last season and also captured a fourth straight Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference title. The trophy is sponsored by the Original Sports Shoppe in Cumberland. Dick Sterne, owner, is pictured above presenting the trophy to Husky head coach Phil Carr along with team members and assistant coaches. The Huskies have amassed a remarkable three-season record of 54-6. Photo courtesy of Julie Brenneman.

TO COMPETE IN REGIONAL SHOOTOUT – Two local athletes, Kristen Kope and Bailey Stephens, will compete in the BPO Elks' Mid-Atlantic Regional Invitational Soccer Shootout, slated in Carlisle, Pa., March 11–14. The girls qualified for the regional event after placing first in the 2009–2010 Maryland Soccer Shootout in Ocean City last fall. The first-place winners of the Oakland Elks Lodge shootout qualified for the state event. Those who competed in Ocean City are pictured left to right: Maria Walsh, Kristen, Bailey, Alex Miske, Antony Shreve, Ronnie Schrock, Justin Shafer, and Bryson McClung.

Cold Shooting Leads To Loss For GC Men

A cold-shooting night resulted in a 74-57 Maryland JUCO Conference defeat last night for the Garrett College men's basketball team at the hands of the host Frederick CC Cougars.

The Lakers could not find the mark, particularly in the first half of action when they scored only 19 points. The Cougars were on top 34-19 at the break.

Joe Dubuche and Kory Gibson paced what scoring the Lakers did put on the board, finishing with 14 and 13 points, respectively.

Jordan Gipson pulled down six rebounds, but was held to three points. Jeff Stem returned to the lineup after missing five games because of an ankle injury, and led with four assists to go along with five points.

Alex Jackson hit a game-high 20 points for Frederick, while Qumonte Metheny and A.J. Gardner also reached double figures with 12 and 11, respectively.

"It has been a tough week and, in fact, a tough season for our team,," noted Laker coach Dennis Gibson. "We were playing well together and then take more than a week off, and all the talk is about our two games this weekend being snowed out already.

"I don't not think I did a good job of preparing our team for this game," he continued. "Frederick was much more focused on stopping our outside shooting. We finally got it going with our press in the second half, and had a chance to get it to eight points with four minutes remaining, but we missed two free throws, gave up a three, and did not recover again."

The Lakers, who are now 14-8 overall and 8-4 in conference games, will be back in action this Friday, playing a make-up game at Anne Arundel CC. Then they will host Montgomery-Rockville on Saturday in a 7 p.m. start.

However, because of the predicted snow storm that is to begin Friday evening, Gibson said that the Anne Arundel game may be played earlier in the day, and Saturday's game with Rockville will likely be moved to Sunday afternoon.

Barely breaking a sweat, the reigning state champion Southern High School wrestling team coasted to another victory Monday evening, crushing the Hampshire Trojans, 75-6, at Frankfort High School.

It was the 11th win in 11 regular-season matches for Coach Dave Taylor and the Rams, who have an overall mark of 14-5 including tournament matches.

The Rams lost only the 103-pound match, as Hampshire's Matt Pezzanite recorded a pin.

Mike Skipper won the 140-pound division bout via decision, while forfeits were awarded to Sean Chapman (112), Gavin Murphy (119), Ryan Bennett (215), and Kevin Miller (285).

The Rams will face considerably stronger competition this evening when they travel to the Cove to take on county rival Northern in a 7 p.m. start.

Led by Jason Opel and Adam Moranduzzo, the Northern High School wrestling team placed 14th among 26 teams in the highly competitive, 22nd annual Thomas Subaru Wrestling Tournament, held Friday and Saturday in Bedford, Pa.

Opel won every one of his matches to claim the crown in the 171-pound division, recording a 3-0 decision in the final over Kyle Colborn of Bath County, Va.

Moranduzzo recorded his 100th victory with a pin on Friday, and then went on to finish as runner-up in the 152-pound division by being edged 2-1 in the championship bout by Craig Harris of Richland, Pa.

Moranduzzo, a reigning Maryland state champion, now has a personal career record of 103-17.

Also adding some team points for the Huskies was Nick Owens, who finished eighth in the 215-pound division.

As a team, the Huskies recorded 86.5 points. Host Bedford won the team championship with 195 points, followed by Penn Cambria with 154.5 and Northern Bedford with 150.5.

The Huskies will be back in action this evening when they host county rival Southern. That contest will begin at 7 p.m.

Northern will travel to Winters Mill this Saturday.

In a surprising upset, the Southern High School boys' bowling team fell to visiting Frankfort last Wednesday, and the girls' team came out on top with both "Adjusted" and "Actual" wins over the Falcons. To make up for the loss, the boys' team defeated Keyser last Thursday, and then went on to defeat Calvary Christian on Tuesday.

The Rams faced off with Allegany last night in a home match, but details were not received. The girls' split with Keyser last Thursday, losing the Actual, but defeating the Tornadoes in the Adjusted. The Rams defeated Calvary Christian in the Actual, but fell in the Adjusted on Tuesday at Par-Matt Lanes in Oakland.

The Rams had faced Frankfort in December, with the boys' team winning both point categories, and the girls taking the Actual, but not the Adjusted. This time around, the Falcons proved to be too much. The Southern boys' team suffered an Actual loss of 28-8, and an Adjusted loss of 30-6.

"We couldn't carry in the pocket and our adjustments just weren't there, so we depended on spares and we missed a lot of easy ones," said Southern's head coach John Sharpless. "We can not miss spares! If you miss spares, it's a sure thing that you will lose."

Against Frankfort, Travis Wolfe led in points for the Rams, collecting four each in the individual Actual and Adjusted categories. Andrew Inman finished up the match with two points each in the Actual and Adjusted, and Charlie Frazee collected two points in the Actual. Mark Mattingly scored a 186 in the second game, the highest of any bowler on Southern's team.

Leading the Frankfort boys' team was Matt Folmer, bowling a 215 and a 179 in two games, and recording four points in both the Actual and Adjusted. He was followed by Zach Folmer, also collecting four points in both categories, and bowling a 175 and 189, well over his average of 150.

The girls, however, won with scores of 29-7 Actual and 21-15 Adjusted.

"They have taken all the practice time and put it to good use," said Coach Sharpless. "They just couldn't do anything wrong in this game. It's a good feeling to see all that come together for our ladies. All eight of them work very hard to do what I ask of them. That's all a coach can ask for; work hard and apply it."

The Southern girls' team was led by Bethany Rexroad as she bowled a 143 and 181 in the first two games to collect four points each in the Adjusted and Actual. In her second game alone, she bowled 65 pins over her average. She was followed by teammate Megan Stolbom who collected four actual points and three adjusted points and finished with a 156 and 150 to pass her average of 138.

For the Falcon girls, Elisha Wagoner was the only girl to bowl all three games. She bowled a set of 304, with game scores of 125, 101, and 78. In her first game, she bowled 29 pins over her average of 96. Abigail Hutzell made the largest jump over her 92 average with 61 additional pins in the second game.

Southern made up for the boys' team losses with a 22-14 Actual and 28-8 Adjusted victory over Keyser last Thursday.

"They rebounded like they were expected to," said Coach Sharpless. "This team is too good and has too much Southern pride to be down for too long. They just simply refused to lose this match."

Senior Jeremy Sharpless bowled a set score of 569 with game scores of 209, 185, and 175 to lead the Rams. He collected six points in both the Adjusted and Actual categories. Travis Wolfe followed with scores of 223, 149, and 154, for a set of 526, while Mattingly was third for the boys with a set of 515, and game scores of 176, 137, and 202. The players bowled 38 pins over their average in the first game alone.

Leading the Keyser boys' team was Thayer Smith with a combined set score of 548. He also posted the highest score, 215, for the Tornadoes in the third game. Charlie Abernathy followed with a set of 503.

The girls' team finished with an Adjusted win of 22-14 to Keyser, but fell in the Actual, 28-8.

"We won the head-to-head, but not high enough to win the adjusted," said Coach Sharpless. "The ladies are just as tough as our guys, there is no quit in them. Rest assured they will be tough in the next games."

The Ram girls' team switched up players throughout the match, and were led by Stolbom with her four actual and four adjusted points. She shot the highest score for Southern, 153, in game two.

Sarah Bryan led the Keyser girls' team with her set of 422, and was followed by Jasmine Koech's set of 372.

Tuesday's match against Calvary Christian saw Southern's Wolfe, Sharpless, and Mattingly each scoring six Actual points. Mattingly also recorded six Adjusted points, while Sharpless had four. Mattingly finished with a set score of 619, with game scores of 206, 201, and 212.

The Rams won the Actual score, 34-2, but then tied with Calvary, 18-18, in the Adjusted.

For the Southern girls' team, Dawson collected six Actual points and had a high game of 174, and Julianna Sharpless and Rexroad each had four points. Dawson also finished with four points in the Adjusted, while Sharpless, Rexroad, and Aimee Spiker picked up two apiece.

Final scores for the Ram's girls' team was a 28-8 victory in the Actual, and a 22-14 Adjusted loss.

Alyssa Porter recorded six points in the Actual and in the Adjusted for Calvary Christian. Taylor Ultis shot a 130 for a high game, and posted two points in the Actual and four points in the Adjusted.

The boys' and girls' teams are scheduled to travel to Hampshire on Tuesday.
